There are lots of mothers in this world, we know,
But she was ours, and we loved her so.

These are the words she would have replied,
"Weep not for me, nor sorrow take,
But love one another for my sake."
—Lovingly remembered by her husband Ted, daughters Agnes and Josephine.

SAXBY — In loving memory of my late husband and a loving father Sgt. (S) Thomas Mayard Saxby, who was suddenly taken from us Jan. 14, 1971. He leaves us with fondest memories which we will never forget, we love him and miss him very much.

UVic Teams Face Weekend Crunch

University of Victoria men's and women's varsity basketball teams hope to climb the standings ladder in the Far West Division of the Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association this weekend.

They hope to do it at the expense of the University of Lethbridge.

Both teams are still in contention with the University of Alberta and UBC, currently one-two in both men's and women's leagues, in the fight for first place. However, both teams are advised to sweep series in the Alberta city if they plan to be serious challengers.

On the local front, the UVic Javees, decimated by the loss of three regulars travelling with Gary Taylor's varsity team, play Vancouver City College in a pair of junior varsity exhibition basketball games tonight and Saturday at the UVic gym at 8 p.m.

Doug Walton and Harry Hunter, two first-year players, and second-year man John Campbell got the call from Taylor to join the Vikings in Lethbridge.

Hotel Cracks Hoop Record

Tom Hatcher dropped 30 points and five of his clubmates — the only ones around — also hit double figures Thursday night to pace Hotel Douglas to a record-breaking 136-98 triumph over Restoration Services in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Cedar Hill Junior High.

The 136 points marked a new high in local senior "B" competition, breaking the old mark set by last season's Douglas team when they routed Robertson's 124-63 in November.

The mark was set by a Douglas team which dressed just six players.

All six players triggered the onslaught, which saw the league-leaders hoop 72 points in the first half and 64 in the second.

Hatcher got hot in the second half, dropping in 18 of his points then, while Mike Taaffe and John Lauvaas hit for 24 points apiece. Corky Jossul popped in 21 and Bruce Vallor had 13.

The result was never in doubt as Douglas jumped into an early 20-5 lead and were up 107-65 at one point during the final quarter.

Services' Jim Cunningham replied with a 28-point performance and Wayne Allen contributed 20 points.

Russian Beats Victoria Netter

HOBART (Reuter) — Don McCormick of Victoria, B.C., extended Alex Metreveli of Russia, top-seeded man in the Tasmanian tennis championships, before bowing out. The Russian won the third-round match 3-6, 6-0, 6-3.

McCormick plans to follow the international tennis circuit all the way to Wimbledon, England, this year.

Marlies Are for Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, says the Toronto Marlboros hockey team is for sale and he has had "feelers" from two parties interested in buying the junior A club.

He "certainly would sell" the franchise providing the buyer agreed to two conditions: the team would continue to play its games at the Gardens and "if pro sponsorship of amateur teams ever returned, we'd have the right to buy back the team."

"I'm interested in having Marlies as an attraction in the building, but we have enough things to do around here without the expense and bother of operating the team ourselves."

Marlies' manager Tom Smythe said:

"I guess Harold is trying to get rid of me. I just don't understand why he would want to sell the team now. The Marlie operation will make money this year, the Gardens get a good thing out of concessions and the future looks bright."

Smythe is the son of former Gardens president Stafford Smythe, who died in October.

The Marlboros have been in the Ontario Hockey Association finals the last two years and currently are in second place in the 10-team series.

Airports Face Strike Monday

Move Will Force Grounding of Jets

Times News Services

Air traffic controllers have set Monday, 4 a.m. for a nation-wide strike which will ground all commercial air traffic.

President J. R. Campbell of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association said members of his association this week voted 1,549 to 85 to strike.

The controllers also rejected a conciliation board report that recommended a 15.5-per-cent wage increase in a 27-month contract. Present base rate ranges between $7,000 and $14,600.

A strike means complete withdrawal of air traffic controllers across the country and parts of the North Atlantic. Virtually all commercial air traffic over a designated area covering Canada and about 800 miles out into the Atlantic will be grounded.

VISUAL FLIGHTS

Both Air Canada and CPA Air said the strike will cut off service but an Air Canada spokesman in Toronto said the company could "operate by visual flight rules in perfect safety." He did not say if Air Canada would adopt this policy.

CP Air spokesman in Vancouver said the company is trying to arrange use of American airports to salvage some overseas flights.

Earlier today, electronic technicians who sparked 24-hour walkouts at several airports, are returning to work. They have set a Tuesday strike after holding study sessions to protest settlement of a new contract by their union officials — International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

CONTRACT EXPIRED

The controllers contract expired Sept. 30. Negotiations for a new contract started with the treasury board in August.

The neutral public service staff relations board recommended that a mediator be called in to assist negotiations and both the treasury board and the union accepted this.

A union statement said the board made a "farce of the collective bargaining legislation."

A treasury board spokesman said he could not comment on the decision to strike until the government was officially notified.

He said the government offered to meet with the controllers when the conciliation board report was handed down last week. The controllers had replied they would be willing to meet with the government Jan. 18.

AWAIT ANSWER

The treasury board told the controllers it would like to sit down with the controllers earlier, if possible, but would settle for Jan. 18.

"We haven't received any further proposal on a meeting time," the treasury board spokesman said.

Campbell told his news con-

LAST-DITCH EFFORT TO KEEP PORTS OPEN

SAN FRANCISCO — Longshoremen's union leader Harry Bridges has flown to Washington in an apparent last ditch effort to head off a resumption of the West Coast dock strike that was suspended after 100 days.

If there is no agreement by midnight Sunday, the 15,000 members of the International Longshoremen's and warehousemen's Union are expected to resume their walkout at 24 West Coast ports.

Port officials in Vancouver warn that a serious situation will develop if the strike occurs. There are 72 ships in Vancouver and another 60 or 70 would be rerouted to the B.C port if the strike takes place.

ANDERSON'S PROTEST REJECTED

WASHINGTON (CP) — District Court Judge George Hart today turned down the request of Canadian MP David Anderson and the Canadian Wildlife Federation to intervene in American conservationists' court actions against the proposed trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

Judge Hart ruled that the lawyers for U.S. conservation groups are "extraordinarily able" and added:

"It is the court's view that if the American environment is protected, the Canadian environment of necessity must be protected."

N-Power Eyed To Save Fish

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

OLYMPIA — Nuclear power generation will be the main source of electricity in Washington State's future, Governor Dan Evans said today.

And state fisheries officials are hoping another massive fish kill will not occur next year on the Columbia and Snake Rivers because of water quality problems created by hydro-electric dams.

Evans linked the two subjects during a meeting with British Columbia's New Democratic Party MLAs in Olympia.

80 Per Cent of Salmon Died

Evans said the series of dams on the Columbia and Snake rivers led to unexpected nitrogen super-saturation in holding waters which killed off 80 per cent of the state's salmon run on those rivers last year.

"We are trying to correct the problem before next year's run but we won't be able to do it on time and all we can do is keep our fingers crossed and hope it does not happen again. We can't afford it," Evans told the group.

The subject arose under questioning from the MLAs who want to know what problems the hydro dams have created in Washington so they might better understand possible future problems in B.C.

Evans said no one suspected at the time the dams were built that they would have a cumulative effect in nitrogen build-ups in the water which killed the salmon when heavy melting snows created spillovers on the rivers.

The advantage of nuclear power, he said, is that it now appears to be almost pollution free. The state already has one nuclear reactor and another is being planned, he said.

Die Before Spawning

The fish kills first became evident four years ago when state fisheries staff noticed fewer salmon crossing over the spillways of successive dams up the Columbia and Snake Rivers.

They discovered the fish were dying before they reached their spawning grounds.

The problem became dramatically evident only last year. A state department of ecology spokesman said earlier this week there is no accurate way to measure the many millions of fish which have died.

The problems are of interest to British Columbia because of government policy favoring hydro-electric power generation and speculation that a dam in the Moran Canyon on the Fraser River may be built.

Dams Benefit Washington

The controversial proposal already has fallen into disrepute with the federal fisheries department. The provincial government has not committed itself to building the dam as far as can be determined.

Evans said Columbia River Treaty dams in B.C. have had the good effect of stabilizing water flows into Washington.

But he hoped a way could be found to meet future power needs without drastically altering and damming rivers in the state of Washington.

Aside from nuclear power, Evans said, geo-thermal energy sources may be the answer. These include natural steam and rock deposits underground.

State natural resources department director Bert Cole believes geo-thermal power is completely pollution free.

Career-Oriented Jobs For 4,000 Students

OTTAWA (CP) — About 175 students will be employed by the federal health department this summer in drug research projects under the supervision of scientists. Other students will be hired to welcome immigrants, pound parade squares, shuffle paper — the thousand and one occupations taxes create in government.

The public service commission has given university students until Jan. 31 to apply for 4,000 "career-oriented" jobs ranging from accounting to surveying.

Anticipating heavy competition, the commission says wise students should also apply through Canada Manpower Centres for one of the lesser jobs available.

These include positions at the bottom of a ditch, digging. Or sitting in an office, clerking. They may not be glamorous but they will pay — and the needy will be given preference.

TRAVEL GRANTS

The over-all summer program for students, announced Thursday, has a budget of $85 million, about $34 million for the Opportunities for Youth program and the rest for travel grants, regular jobs and educational activity.

The health department, besides hiring 175 students to test the effects of drug use, will provide grants of up to $2,000 for 800 athletes. The money is to be used during the summer to increase athletic ability.

Sports organizations will be consulted.

The defence department has budgeted $12.8 million for reserve and cadet training programs for 40,000 students during the summer. This is $2 million more than last year. A third-year course is being added for the militia. Naval and air reserve programs have yet to be worked out in detail.

CIVILIAN COURSES

About 2,300 students will be given a civilian training course in which community aid projects such as anti-litter and anti-pollution activity will be stressed.

The manpower department will set up 132 temporary student manpower centres staffed by about 500 students.

About 130 recent graduates will be hired in the next few weeks to work at regular manpower centres in areas where student centres will be set up. All regular centres will have staff to handle student applications.

The manpower department also will:

- Aim a national advertising campaign for student jobs at private employers and householders.
- Finance travel costs for 2,000 students to get a job away from home and help find such jobs.
- Use students as receptionists for arriving immigrants.
- Finance travel costs for 3,000 students to work in 11 European countries. Last year 1,000 students took part in the experiment. Wages are paid by the European country at its scale.

Meanwhile State Secretary Gerard Pelletier's department will spend $1.7 million to finance travel for 20,000 youths within Canada. About 5,000 aged 15 to 17 will travel under the Young Voyageurs program to another province or territory.

Grants for the other 15,000 will go mainly to "those who are geographically isolated, disadvantaged or belong to native communities."

Applications must be filed at least three months before a group plans to travel.

Pelletier's department will spend $1.2 million to staff some 96 youth hostels. Last year 80,000 young travellers slept at hostels, which will have larger staffs this summer. Applications from groups wishing to run hostels must be in by April 15.

HASH HAUL LARGEST IN HISTORY

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Customs agents seized what they called the largest hashish haul in history Thursday, confiscating 1,330 pounds of the drug from a truck which was unloaded on a Portland dock after being shipped from Karachi, Pakistan.

Agents reported finding the hashish concealed in the bed and fenderwells of a Volkswagen pickup with attached camper. They estimated its wholesale value at nearly $2 million and street value at more than $7 million.

Pollen Slams Groos

The Barnard estate zoning problem might not have occurred if Victoria had better representation in Ottawa, Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

In an interview, Pollen singled out Victoria MP David Groos, saying he thought Groos was "very personable, but I don't feel he's representing this area."

Pollen praised Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson, however, saying "the bright young man from Saanich tries to handle two constituencies."

CLASHED

The city and the federal government have clashed over the jurisdiction of control over what may be built on the Barnard estate on Victoria Harbor waterfront.

Pollen said that when "massive funds" are collected by Ottawa from the public and "dispensed with little national plan and little accountability, it becomes important to have a strong voice for the city in Ottawa."

Pollen said he would never propose that Ottawa give any land away. There are other options, among them public control of key lands through leasing.

"As I view the problems and solutions of modern urban planning, it's obvious that it becomes increasingly important that we have a very strong voice in the federal government." (See Page 17.)

Rahman Appeals to China To Recognize Bangladesh

DACCA (AP)—Sheikh Mujibur Rahman said today socialism is the only way to rescue the shattered economy of Bangladesh. He appealed to the world for aid while his government sets up the new system.

The Sheikh, sworn in as Bangladesh's prime minister Wednesday, asked for world support for his new nation's admission into the United Nations.

He asked China specifically to "recognize the heroic success of our national liberation struggle."

In a statement at his first news conference since returning Monday from 9½ months in Pakistani custody, he said:

"The economy is in a shattered state. The most urgent task is that of reconstructing and restructuring the economy."

Sheikh Mujib said resources from Bangladesh and abroad must be mobilized to help build a new society "from its very foundation."

"We urgently need assistance from abroad to supplement our own resources for this purpose," he added. "I appeal to all states, to the freedom-loving people of the world and to the international humitarian organizations, generously to come to our assistance in all spheres. . . .

"The savages of the Pakistani forces have left our country totally devastated. Systematic genocide has exterminated almost three million lives. Entire villages have been wiped out."

Considering the destruction and the poverty among Bangladesh's 75 million people, Sheikh Mujib said, "it will only be possible to fulfil the aspirations of the people by establishing a socialist economy."

To do this, he said, a staff of the "most competent professionals is undertaking the task of preparing a comprehensive blueprint for a new economy. Such a blueprint will involve institutional changes in the fields of agriculture, industries and finance."

Denmark's King Dies

COPENHAGEN (AP) — King Frederik IX of Denmark, a tattooed, music-loving sailor who reigned for nearly 25 tranquil years with gruff heartiness and much informality, died today after an illness of more than two weeks, the royal palace announced.

He was 72.

The eldest of his three daughters, Princess Margrethe, 31, succeeded to the throne.

U.S. VIEW OF BENNETT: HE'S ANTI-AMERICAN

Times Staff

OLYMPIA — A Washington state legislator from Bellingham said Thursday he was surprised to learn Premier Bennett is not anti-American.

State Senator Frank Atwood said he always believed Bennett disliked Americans because the premier rarely visits his state.

Atwood added he feels psychologically closer to Vancouver than Seattle as do many of his constituents.

Reading the Canadian press, he said, has given him the distinct impression Canadians are strongly anti-American.

When Atwood was assured Bennett not only likes Americans but also seeks new U.S. investment capital and vacations in California he said:

"If he likes us so much, how come he never comes down here to visit us?"

"His comments came during an official dinner for B.C.'s New Democratic Party caucus during its three-day visit to Olympia which ends today.

The visit was arranged by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett who wanted discussions with Washington legislators on regional pollution and economic issues.

Today's agenda was to have included a conference with Washington Governor Dan Evans and further talks with state senators. Thursday Barrett addressed both houses of the Washington legislature, the first time a B.C. politician has done so.

Pact No Barrier To Flood Protest

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

OLYMPIA — The B.C. government could still express opposition to flooding the Skagit Valley despite the fact it signed an agreement in 1967 permitting the flooding.

This view was expressed here Thursday by John Biggs, director of the Washington state department of ecology. His comments came during a legislative hearing on regional pollution problems shared by British Columbia and Washington.

Biggs said he could not comment directly on the decision by B.C. to permit the flooding, which would be caused by raising the level of Ross Dam in Washington. But he added it was his impression the province was "reluctant to abrogate its participation in the agreement" dating back to the 1940s under which provincial consent would be required for raising the dam.

Most of Thursday's hearing related to the Skagit Valley controversy, which must finally be resolved by the United States Federal Power Commission.

STUDY DUE

Wayne Bishop, representing Seattle City Light and Power Company, which wants to raise the dam level, told legislators his company has not made its recommendation arbitrarily.

"We took the precaution of signing an agreement with the government of British Columbia some years ago," Bishop said.

An environmental impact study costing Seattle City Light "several hundreds of thousands of dollars" will be released within the next few weeks to clarify the company's view on the proposed flooding's consequences.

Bishop indicated the study will go before the Federal Power Commission before becoming available to the public.

New Democratic Party MLAs participated in the hearing at the request of House of Representatives speaker Thomas Swazey.

'BREAKTHROUGH'

Swayzey said this was done in the full spirit of a house resolution authorizing invitation of provincial representation before the legislative council to discuss pollution.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett promised to sponsor a similar resolution during the forthcoming legislative session in B.C. He termed the hearing an "outstanding breakthrough in terms of informal and somewhat formal relations between the two assemblies."

William Hartley, MLA for Yale-Lilooet, the riding in which lies the Skagit Valley, told the Washington legislators flooding the valley will destroy trout spawning and sport fishing in the Skagit River.

After Hartley made an emotional pitch for preservation of the valley, Washington Lands Commissioner and Natural Resources Department director Bert Cole said his views were "stacked."

"If Canada would let us have more gas for energy, maybe we wouldn't be so concerned about hydro-electric power sources," he said.

THE OTHER SIDE

This is the other side of Hartley's argument, said Cole. But he added he did not necessarily accept that view.

Ernie Hall, MLA for Surrey, said the Skagit must be viewed in terms of "social cost accounting."

"We have to ask ourselves how much is a valley worth," said Hall. He added the controversy is the first time this question has been asked and will be answered in British Columbia.

Swayzey said he hoped the council might someday be able to hold pollution hearings in British Columbia, because its terms of reference are not restricted to Washington.

The initial impetus for the hearing came from representative Paul Connor of Port Angeles, who said he got the idea listening to a Victoria radio station broadcast.

Connor said he heard on the radio a discussion on the merits of extended sewerage outfalls into Juan de Fuca Strait.

"I wondered whether the sewage would come to Port Angeles from Victoria," Connor said.

This led him to speculate whether Washington and B.C. ought to create a regional body to take care of mutual air and water pollution problems. Swayzey indicated such a body is not likely to be created in the near future.

The State of Washington is officially opposed to flooding the Skagit Valley. The opposition, expressed in a position statement by Biggs, says the project "would have a substantial detrimental environmental impact" in the Ross Lake area.

'NO PROGRAM'

The state also opposes the scheme because it says Seattle City Light "has no planned environmental program" and places environmental issues on a lower priority than the need for power.

Barrett reaffirmed the NDP opposition to the flooding.

On other subjects, the hearing was told by Biggs B.C. does not cause air pollution in the state of Washington.

Cole also said the ecological problems of nuclear power generation can be solved and many American states are on the threshold of capping the geo-thermal power sources under the earth's surface.

These include natural steam or hot rock conditions, Cole said. He noted the province participated in the vast International Geo-Thermal Energy Conference in Washington last year.

CLOSER TIES SOUGHT

Times Staff

OLYMPIA — Washington State Governor Dan Evans today called for closer and more formal co-operation with British Columbia on mutual pollution, economic and tourist issues.

The governor met for an hour with members of B.C.'s New Democratic Party caucus who are winding up a three-day visit to Olympia. Evans said Washington and B.C. have gone too long without some system of getting together on a regular basis.

"It's been too long, and I think that the two legislatures and the two governments really should have more closer relationships. This is something that ought to happen on a more regular basis, and I hope when your House opens up next week you can give us a formal invitation for a return visit," Evans said.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett promised he would seek legislative consent for the invitation as soon as the session begins.

Evans told the group Washington has more reason for formal contact with British Columbia than it does with border states Idaho and Oregon. He said common pollution dangers threatened from oil tanker shipments through mutual coast waters and fisheries activities are virtually identical.

Evans suggested Washington and B.C. might consider joint pollution control standards because of their obvious geographical and economic similarities.

SEA VICTIM IDENTIFIED

SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. coast guard said Wednesday the body of a woman found on the beach near Cape Flattery Saturday has been identified as one of the three persons aboard a missing 65-foot fishing vessel.

The coast guard said the woman, Nicola Talbott, about 26, along with her husband, Brant, and her father-in-law, Lee Talbott, left Seattle Jan. 1 on a trip to San Pedro, Calif.

Air and surface rescue units are continuing an extensive search for the vessel, the Zenith.

A SUMMER JOB FOR LASZLO?

Victoria Symphony conductor Laszlo Gati will probably conduct a B.C. International Festival Orchestra in a series of concerts next summer.

The announcement was made today from Vancouver by J. J. Johannesen on behalf of the second B.C. International Festival and Shawnigan Lake Summer School of the Arts.

Johannesen, executive director, of the organization, said serious consideration is being given to the use of such an orchestra, using several professional musicians in this area.

Inaugurated in the summer of 1971 under provincial government sponsorship through the B.C. Centennial Cultural Fund, the school and accompanying festival in which internationally famous artists appeared, were outstanding successes, artistically and financially.

The school was attended by students from many parts of North America.

Twenty-seven concerts were given at the McPherson Playhouse, Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Playhouse and Shawnigan Lake Boys' School where the classes and workshops were conducted over a three-week August period.

This year the event will occupy a full month, July 22 through Aug. 21.

Artists who are returning for the second year include the American violinist Ruggiero Ricci, cellis Janos Starker, the Spanish virtuoso pianist Edurado del Pueyo and British composer Malcolm Arnold.

There will also be several outstanding new personalities, among them guitarists, chamber ensemble specialists and probably renowed double bassist, Gary Karr.

The Shawnigan Lake School will again be the key location.

Islanders Choose Future Options

Planning options for the Gulf Islands are going into the mail this weekend for local residents to indicate what they want in the future.

The options and other details are in tabloid newspaper form and include questions for people to answer and return. Nine thousand copies will be sent to property owners and residents in the Gulf Islands and 3,000 will be available for other interested persons.

The Capital Regional District board agreed to the idea ast November, to generate public debate and get the public's views.

Options presented are:

1. A roads and bridges connection between the Saanich Peninsula and the lower mainland via the Gulf Islands;

2. Continuation of present trends in settlement, including lifting the 10-acre subdivision minimum in selected areas, no bridges and no great expansion of ferry service;

3. Purchase of 38 square miles of parks at roughly $15 million, which would involve a financial commitment by senior governments because the regional district alone couldn't afford it.

4. A "do it yourself kit" with a plain map of the islands for people to draw their own concepts of the future.

Oak Bay Grits To Nominate On Wednesday

The Oak Bay Liberal nominating convention will be held next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Oak Bay municipal hall.

Mel Couvelier, president of the British Columbia Liberal Association, had announced earlier he will seek the party's nomination in Oak Bay as candidate in the next provincial election.

The nominating meeting, first in the province for the Liberals, will be held in conjunction with the association's annual general meeting.

SAANICH TAX HIKES RAISE FEW CRIES

Extensive reassessment of properties has been carried out in Saanich, but so far fewer taxpayers have appealed their assessment notices.

Municipal assessor William Craven said Thursday 55 notices of appeal have been received against the 1972 assessment notices. This is a drop of almost 50 per cent on the 109 appeals last year.

Craven said 46 of the complaints are from property-owners in Greater Victoria school district and nine from Saanich school district.

The deadline for notices of appeal, which will be heard by the court of revision in February, is 5 p.m. Monday.

Methadone Death

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The first reported death caused by an oral overdose of methadone, a synthetic substitute used to treat heroin addicts, was revealed today by a city judge who ruled the death of a University of Texas student a homicide.

The case could undermine the nation-wide use of the controversial drug as a heroin substitute.

Austin municipal Judge Ronald D. Earle, acting as Travis County coroner, said the death of James Andrew Knox, 18, a student from Houston should alert users and doctors prescribing methadone of it's lethal nature.

Methadone is administered, usually under government supervision, as a maintenance drug for heroin addicts. Its use and abuse has provoked a controversy in medical and legal circles.

. . . AIR STRIKE

ference he will meet the board at 8 p.m. today.

Earlier this week, both sides in the dispute accepted a request from the public service staff relations board to submit lists of acceptable mediators. Georges Gauthier, vice-chairman of the staff relations board, has indicated a mediator may be named later today.

At the news conference, Campbell said the union is ready to co-operate in all efforts to reach a settlement before the strike deadline.

But, he made clear, it will not feel bound by the recommendations of its representative on the conciliation board. The minority report of the union representative called for the 22 per cent wage increase in a 27-month contract.

Campbell said the union is reverting to its initial bargaining demand for an increase in maximum salaries to $24,000 a year, a 60 per cent increase, in a 24-month contract.

He said the strike would affect not only flights in Canada but also traffic on routes over Gander, Nfld., between New York and London. This traffic would have to travel by way of the Azores and Spain.

Also affected would be some midwestern U.S. flights which now pass over London, Ont., en route from Chicago to New York and Boston. These flights would have to be shifted farther south.

Campbell said the government has asked U.S. aviation officials if their areas of air traffic control could be extended in the event of a strike. He said the Professional Air Traffic Control Organization, the U.S. counterpart of CATCA, had refused to take over additional areas.

Some designated controllers would remain available for emergency services at major Canadian airports, Mr. Campbell said.

Transport department officials said a strike will prevent all air operations by instrument flight rules but some visual flight operations by smaller aircraft may remain possible.

Without authorization by the department, no operations would be permitted by turbojets, turbo-prop craft over 12,500 pounds and all other planes of more than 30,000 pounds.

Mild moist Pacific air over the outer coast will continue to move eastward and will produce snow over inland districts. Rain or drizzle along the exposed coast will reach western sections of the southern mainland today.

Bohemian Waxwings, reported at Nanaimo last week, may signal an invasion of northern birds

A Dozen Infrequent Visitors Evade the Annual Bird Count

WILDLIFE
harold hosford

Sometimes it isn't the birds that make the Christmas Bird Count that stir up the most interest, but those that don't make it.

For example, this year's Victoria count, with its 119 species recorded New Year's Day, could have gone as high as 130 if a dozen or so species seen around the city in the days before the count had chosen to allow themselves to be recorded.

Birds being what they are, highly mobile and elusive creatures, they aren't always where they're supposed to be at any given time. In the days leading up to the count many of our local bird watchers were lining up unusual species, spotting them so to speak, in the hope that they'd co-operate and be conspicuously obvious on the great day.

The dozen that didn't this year would have made some interesting additions to the list. The goshawk for one, a bonus bird on any count, put in an appearance along Blenkinsop Road a few days before the count and Jeremy Tatum, Dave Stirling and Keith Taylor duly noted it for attention New Year's Day. Once again, though, the goshawk lived up to its rather unpredictable reputation and didn't show.

The Bonaparte's Gull that Keith Taylor saw at Clover Point before the count was a bit out of its expected range at this time of year. Winter usually finds them well south of here gracing the beaches of southern California and Mexico.

Back in 1968, 8 of them made it for the Christmas Count. But since then the few that have been seen here in winter have eluded the enumerators.

Of all the bird families with representatives on southern Vancouver Island in winter, the owls seem to stir up the most interest. Being wary, retiring, and in some cases nocturnal, has helped to build up an aura of mystery around owls and make them a frequent topic when birds are being discussed by bird-watchers.

On the count day the great-horned, barn and screech owl were duly recorded. A saw whet owl reported from Royal Roads was subsequently struck from the list because of doubts among those who heard the noise originally attributed to this species.

Fortunately, Gordon Hooper saved the day for our little saw-whet. While it didn't make the count officially, the one Gordon saw resting rather disconsolatly on a side-walk in the wee small hours of one morning at the UVic Campus, proved they were in the area.

A short-eared owl—another of Keith Taylor's observations — expanded the parade of owls for this winter to five species. Normally considered uncommon herabouts, 1 or 2 of these diurnal owls are reported in Victoria most winters.

The owl list may yet go to seven if a few more details come out about the hawk owl and spotted owl Ralph Fryer saw in Saanich and Gordon Head a couple of days before the Christmas Count.

The Hawk Owl — another day hunter — is a rare visitor from the far northern forests. The spotted owl, on the other hand, is a southerner. It's range extends into southeastern British Columbia but spotted owls have been seen as far west as Hope. Ralph's would be the first for Vancouver Island.

Four other species close out our list of the birds seen in the area around Christmas but which chose not to stand up and be counted on New Year's Day.

A Hutton's Vireo seen near Lockside Drive and Royal Oak represents a species which is a permanent resident here. In winter it is seldom seen.

As for the mourning dove, water pipit and cowbird, these are all species which are close to the northern limit of their winter ranges here and any winter sighting is noteworthy.

The 45,000 birds tallied on this year's count was 19,000 below last year and nearly 10,000 below the average for the last 10 years. This drop may be a measure of the severe winter weather we've been subjected to thus far in 1971-1972; weather which may have driven many birds farther south.

On the other hand, one might expect more of the so-called northern wanderers such as evening grosbeaks, pine siskins and pine grosbeaks to have been pushed down by the weather. But so far they haven't appeared.

That they still might is borne out by a report of Bohemian Waxwings at Nanaimo last week. These northerners have only been seen 3 times on Vancouver Island and their appearance this year may herald a horde of northern invaders.

Victorians should keep a sharp watch among our familiar wintering Cedar Waxwings. There just could be a couple of the large, grayer northerners mixed in with the crowd.

Strikers Seek Power Shutdown

LONDON (Reuter) — New moves by Britain's 280,000 striking coal miners today threatened fuel supplies to about 30 major power stations generating electricity to millions of homes in London and southeast England.

Picket lines are being set up around these power stations in an attempt to block all new coal deliveries and persuade workers there to cease feeding the furnaces.

Other pickets are to be drafted to coal depots in the area, particularly to prevent movement of coal along the Thames to power stations serving London.

These stations and depots have been selected as the first targets under a plan approved by the executive of the National Union of Mineworkers Thursday to exert maximum pressure in support of their 47 per cent pay claim.

NO STRIKE PAY

The miners are not receiving strike pay because of the union's concern to preserve their funds in case of a prolonged stoppage. The strike started last Sunday.

Mine union president Joe Gormley has claimed that more than one million tons of coal destined for power stations has been blocked at a depot in Kent, southeast England, and 1,500,000 tons in Scotland.

He rejected an earlier plea for arbitration of the pay dispute made by Derek Ezra, chairman of the National Coal Board which runs the nationalized mines. "The day for arbitration is gone," Gormley said. "It is money we want."

SCHOOLS CLOSED

The union executive have approved proposals to make supplies of coal available to schools as a third priority after hospitals and old people. A number of schools have been closed this week because of insufficient coal for heating.

The coal board has up to now refused to improve on their last offer of a 7.9 per cent increase which would give the miners up to $5 a week more. The men now receive a basic wage of around $50 but earnings are usually boosted by overtime and other payments.

'Weather' On Display

An exhibition of modern and antique weather instruments is on display in the main foyer of the provincial Museum.

Some of the instruments are nearly 100 years old.

Alan McQuarrie, chief meteorologist of the Victoria weather office, said the exhibits will be on display until the end of February.

The instruments, some of which are operating, show how the elements that make up the weather are measured and reported.

The exhibition prepared by the Atmospheric Environment Service, Pacific Region, travelled across Canada last year to mark the 100th birthday of the Canadian Meteorological Service.

Get Ready for It

It has been revealed by Washington state legislators that they consider it inevitable that the Alaska pipeline will be built, and that giant tankers will carry Alaska oil down the Pacific Coast to the new refinery at Cherry Point, a few miles south of the Canadian border. In other words, continuing efforts by Canadian and United States ecologists and their supporters to safeguard the coast from oil spills by forbidding the traffic are doomed to failure — in fact the battle is already lost.

That is deplorable news, if true, in that it sets up a vast and catastrophic destruction of life along the British Columbia coast as an almost inescapable future event, when storm, poor judgment or other mishap may send millions of gallons of oil floating in to shore from a wrecked tanker.

But the news can hardly cause astonishment, for the $100 million refinery at Cherry Point has long been under construction, with its promise of 400 permanent jobs, as a distribution point for the north Pacific states. Since the refinery, designed to process 100,000 barrels of Alaska crude oil a day, can be fully useful only by reason of the Alaska traffic, the huge investment would hardly have been begun if it were not virtually certain that the tankers would eventually ply the route. Three supertankers are, in fact, already on order.

The situation has a parallel in the Canadian experience at Rupert Inlet, at the northern end of Vancouver Island, where millions of dollars were spent in construction of copper-mining facilities before the right to mine had been officially authorized — even before the hearings had been held.

The Cherry Point refinery is said to be spending $18 millions on control of air and water pollution, but a permit has already been issued allowing a certain amount of waste-dumping into the Strait of Georgia. That, plus possible spills in loading, will constitute a permanent threat to the area, although on a much smaller scale than the possibility of a disastrous accident at sea. In the latter case, it could be British Columbia's coast that would suffer most.

It cannot be overlooked, of course, that the alternative delivery route — by pipeline up the Mackenzie Valley and through Alberta to the U.S. border — would also pose hazards to the environment through leakage or breakage. Such dangers are inevitable in handling oil. The increasingly urgent reports on the state of the oceans of the world bear this out. The only hope is that, if the sea traffic proves to be unavoidable, extensive safeguards will be made a part of the delivery system — including very high standards of ship construction, stringent regulations governing operation, and constant supervision of the tankers and their use.

Responsibility for spills should be clearly defined in advance by international treaty, with appropriate recompense for damage to the sea and land and wild life. This could involve the posting of financial bonds adequate to cover any eventuality. A mishap could have such tragic and long-lasting effects that nothing should be taken for granted.

Now what?

Back to Gas

Who would have thought that the airship had much of a future after the Hindenburg disaster in the 1930s? Yet this lighter-than-air craft, the first means of carrying freight and humans through the air, is having a renaissance in Europe. Jane's Freight Containers, the standard work on the subject, includes a special section on airships in its latest edition.

New versions of the old craft have turned away from the highly inflammable hydrogen to non-toxic, light, nonflammable, odorless helium. Britain, Holland, France, both Germanys and the Soviet Union are proceeding with commercial plans.

One report says that airships will be able to carry cargo one-third more cheaply than heavier-than-air craft. In addition, airships would contribute very little air and noise pollution.

If quantities of the rare helium gas can be assured, the airships, propelled by nuclear power, diesel, natural gas or gasoline, will probably make a comeback in earnest. If Jules Verne could return to earth, he would be delighted at our renewed pursuit of gas-borne transportation.

Communications Gap

If, as The Canadian Press reports, it is news to Air Canada that the Canadian government has all but scrapped the idea of allowing supersonic flights over Canada, then a very serious gap seems to exist between the information services of the government and the air line.

In the present case, the gap may cause only embarrassment. Air Canada is obviously having second thoughts about purchasing the Anglo-French Concorde, with supersonic capabilities, for economic reasons. But apart from questions of cost and upkeep, the airline should know how the government feels, and if that feeling precludes anything but subsonic flights over the land. A decision by Ottawa on that point could render the Concorde, or any similarly fast transport, a uselessly expensive aircraft for transit between Pat Bay and Gander, or over Canadian territory on polar flights.

Since Air Canada must conform to what the nation wants, in terms expressed by Ottawa, it should be kept advised.

Alberta's Fiscal Welcome Mat

CALGARY — Have you ever wondered what millionaires think about? If they live anywhere in Canada except Alberta, and they happen to think about dying, they will start thinking about the succession duties. At least that is what Alberta hopes after Manitoba at year end made it unanimous that all other provincial governments will move into the succession duty field vacated by Mr. Benson.

Alberta, under the Conservatives, has dived right into the tax haven field into which it first waded under the Socreds of Hon. E. C. Manning. It is now completely free of both inheritance and gift taxes. The hope is, naturally, that the rich and super-rich Canadians from the other provinces will bring their wealth to Alberta so that their estates can be passed in toto to their heirs.

Inducement to Capital

Since 1967, Alberta has been rebating 75 per cent of its share of the inheritance and gift taxes which the Federal Government collected for it. This has meant that Alberta has given up between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 a year in tax revenue. It is convinced that the province has profited many times over this amount from the inflow of capital which tax exemption has produced.

Under the Thatcher Government, Saskatchewan also announced that it would get out of succession duties, also with the idea of attracting capital. The New Democrats, however, will move into the inheritance tax field as Ottawa moves out.

In both Calgary and Edmonton there has been an immense amount of commercial construction undertaken in recent years by eastern capital. Much of this is attributed to Alberta's favorable succession duties. The Bronfman interests of Montreal, for example, are reported to have invested over $25,000,000 in downtown Calgary commercial properties.

The result of such investments will be, of course, to reduce the amount of succession duties Quebec will collect, and to increase the inheritance of the heirs. In addition, super-gifts can now be made in Alberta free of tax.

There has been one disappointment for Alberta, however. Few if any of the millionaires and their families have transferred their homes to Alberta. That conceivably could happen as a result of the Manitoba decision to make its tax retroactive. It was caught with its tax bars down when the federal tax changes went through before the end of 1971.

I. H. ASPER
. . . summed it up

To collect its own succession duties, Manitoba will require special legislation and its legislature will not go into session until March. The decision to make it retroactive has all the opposition spokesmen hollering foul.

I. H. Asper, the Liberal leader, called the proposal an act to promote the prosperity and security of lawyers and accountants. As a lawyer with a corporation practice Mr. Asper probably knows what he is talking about. Certainly the first reaction in Winnipeg was that the legislation would be attacked in the courts on the constitutionality of the retroactive aspects.

There is little doubt that Alberta has been somewhat disappointed in the reaction to date of the rest of Canada to its succession duty concessions. It had expected, for example, that there would be a noticeable movement of corporation head offices into the province. That has not happened.

Hired Help Decide

Head office locations are usually determined by the hired help rather than by the owners, who in most cases are widely scattered shareholders. Despite their impressive salaries and fringe benefits, company presidents tend not to be all that wealthy. So while their estates may look large compared with those of most Canadians, they are not in the brackets where succession duties are a major concern.

Even in Manitoba an estate which goes to preferred beneficiaries — close blood relatives — can have up to $150,000 in exemptions. So the estates of all the executive decision-makers of Manitoba companies would have rather substantially to exceed that figure before they would move to Alberta. And anyway, those are not the size of estates Alberta wants. It has its eye on the big rich. And if one thing doesn't attract them it may try something else.

At the moment, it is preparing to pay special attention to the way Ottawa's capital gains tax works. If it turns out that Alberta can rebate its share of that tax without too seriously impairing its income, that will probably be done. In Alberta, unlike Manitoba, the theory is that it will gain more on the swings of tax concessions than it will lose on the roundabouts of tax collection.

Soft Voice From Peking

PARIS — The only two captials with significant diplomatic leverage on Hanoi's policy are Moscow and Peking. For a long time U.S. diplomacy sought to prevail upon Russia to bring its influence to bear in order to produce what Washington would term an acceptable Indochina settlement. Having failed, American hopes now turn to China.

This appears to be one important aspect of the new U.S. Asia policy. In 1967-68 the Johnson Administration hoped Soviet pressure would help produce a negotiated compromise and Moscow played a role in bringing Hanoi and the Vietcong to the Paris peace talks.

But Washington has felt disappointed since then. Russian aid to North Vietnam, above all by sea, has increased substantially. Moreover, the Kremlin indicates a desire to form a ring of pro-Soviet states in Southeast Asia, replacing U.S. influence there in order to squeeze China.

Soviet authority in Hanoi mounted, at China's expense, as North Vietnam came to rely on the U.S.S.R. for 80 per cent of its arms. The trend accelerated after Ho Chi Minh's death. It was helped by traditional suspicion of all Chinese regimes by all Vietnamese regimes.

Shared Objective

Slowly and for wholly differing reasons, U.S. policy and Chinese policy assumed one parallel characteristic — a desire to prevent Southeast Asia from becoming a Soviet sphere of influence. China and America could disagree on virtually everything else but they agreed on this fundamental.

While Washington and Peking were in secret contact prior to Presidential aide Henry S. Kissinger's first China visit, a struggle for the succession to old Mao Tse-tung was under way. At least one faction involved favored friendship with Moscow. When this faction was defeated and the group led by Chou En-lai took over beside the fading Mao, a new opportunity was presented to Washington.

President Nixon began exploring avenues to China in 1969 while the U.S. was still hoping Moscow might spur Hanoi to negotiate. But as time went on — and especially as Chou's star rose — a new approach developed for, in a sense, both Nixon and Chou are in the same boat. Their joint policies seeking an Asian power balance for the 1970's rely upon each other.

This reality may embarrass both of them but it is inescapable. Washington once sought to attract India into an Indochina role at least as far east as Cambodia, where there had been historic Indian cultural contacts. But even then, when our relations were warmer than today, India showed no interest. And Moscow's subsequent concern with peace in the area proved limited — from an American viewpoint.

CHOU EN LAI
. . . his group won

Nixon caught a lot of flak from American and foreign critics for his awkwardly expressed pro-Pakistan bias during the recent Indian war. Official rhetoric was lamentable but Washington was coldly aware that India couldn't help us in Indochina and Russia wouldn't.

Moreover, for reasons explained in a previous column, Soviet weight was already massive in New Delhi. One can only deduce that all these factors together persuaded the president to take a short-range beating on Pakistan in order to further his long-range goal of seeking a compromise Indochina peace, thus refurbishing his position at home and abroad.

Emphasis on China as a potential friend required several shifts in U.S. policy. The old tie to Taiwan has become considerably frayed. SEATO is gone — with France out. East Pakistan (Pakistan's link to Southeast Asia) independent and Australia contemplating a new look.

Rice Bowl Anxiety

Obviously Peking isn't going to ostracize Hanoi just because Nixon is coming. Nevertheless, while North Vietnam depends primarily on Russia for weapons, it relies on China for food. North Vietnam is short of rice and this condition has worsened since last year's disastrous floods. If there is delay in Chinese grain shipments, Hanoi's military operations could be affected. The rice paddies of South Vietnam's delta were cut off following campaigns there and in Cambodia.

No outsider can judge how much these factors were weighed in making the decision to bomb North Vietnam temporarily again or to stall resumption of Paris peace talks until Hanoi settles down to business instead of propaganda. Washington has deceived itself before but the novel feature is that Peking limited itself to mild protests according to its own scale of obloquy. How much significance should be attributed to this?

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

No Money Tree

Political promises are just so much baloney when candidates fail to spell out who ultimately foots the bill — as if government has a flourishing "money tree" planted in its backyard. It doesn't. Tired old Tommy Taxpayer foots the bill as he "progresses" all the way into the poorhouse.

Don't get me wrong. I'm all for the kind of progress I want and can afford to pay for. I just don't want a caviar "cultural" environment at the expense of the bread on my table. I want no "sports" place, civic centre or museum at the expense of a decent roof over my head. I can do without a super-duper rapid transit system that is going to take the shirt off my back!

I'm fed up with political "one-upmanship" that uses my tax dollars as a bribe for those voters who pay no taxes or who are too dumb to realize that they themselves pay for every last "free" government service, survey, commission or handout. I resent politicians who promote social "progress" I don't want, didn't ask for and can't afford!

In short, the sooner we learn to cut our suit according to our cloth, the sooner we will begin to progress as adults instead of as children waiting for Grandpa Government to give us a lollipop paid for out of our own piggy bank! This means getting government back from the social "do-gooders" who have taken on centralized dictatorial powers using the taxpayer as the goose that lays golden eggs! — Patricia Young, 1030 Nanton Ave., Vancouver, B.C.

Interference

An article in your issue of January 5, headed "New Stone Agers Found," makes me sick. Why can't these primitive people be left alone to live and die without the white data man observing, recording and destroying their way of life?

"Little can be done to help these people as long as they continue to live in their present inaccessible position," says Robin Barclay, "finder" of the tribe.

These people don't need white man's help; their lives are simpler and happier than ours will ever be. Let them be, let them be. — Diana Leeming and Trudy Jones, 40 Government Street.

We Who Have Lived Before

We sit and wait — we who have lived before. Wait for a smiling face — the touch of a helping hand. We who are old live in a world that has long since forgotten our existence. For some of us, forgotten by those whom we loved so dearly, our children.

We dare not pull back the veil of time and see with misty eyes the days that used to be. The days when we lived only for you, to love you, to cherish you, to care for you when things went wrong. To see your sparkling eyes on Christmas morn — the serenity of your smile when you found Easter eggs, the excitement of Hallowe'en, and the happiness and joy of a birthday party.

We remember, my children, for it is these memories that fill our hearts and our empty hours with warm and tender thoughts. They were the wonderful days of our lives — days of happiness, of sunshine — evenings of complete fulfilment for we had you, my children.

Those days have long since fallen into the abyss of time, gone like a falling leaf picked up by a lilting wind and wafted into the Great Beyond. So, we wait for a son or a daughter who never comes. If and when all others forsake you, we will be here and in our hearts hope flickers from a dying ember that some day you will remember us.

Our love for you will never die, my children, all we can leave you when we cross over the Bar is a legacy of love — cherish it always, for we shall not pass this way again. — Mrs. Cecelia Leckie, 160 Beechwood Ave.

From the Times of Jan. 14, 1912:

LONDON — The Home Rule excitement is growing in Ireland, particularly in Unionist Ulster, where a vigorous campaign is in progress in the hope of creating sentiment in England against the promised bill of the Asquith ministry. It is expected that the bill will be introduced in the Commons in March, but the plans of the Unionists contemplate keeping the agitation far into the spring.

The Vietnam War Is a Bob Hope Joke

By RICHARD WEST
New Statesman

SAIGON — The Bob Hope show at Long Binh started at 1:30 on Christmas Day. It had been due to start at 1 p.m. but most GIs had taken their seats as early as 10 o'clock. After an hour or two of waiting under a shattering, dry-season sun, the mood of the crowd was restless, even angry.

The GIs, sitting in bleachers on three sides of the stadium, could not help observing the comfortable fold-up chairs in front of the stage, for the use of officers and their distinguished guests. As the gentlemen and their ladies arrived they were greeted with booing and hissing.

Any army on Christmas Day is treated with indulgence; but this is not any army. Drugged, dissident and depressed, most of the 160,000 troops in Vietnam have reached a state in which even military policemen smoke pot and sign petitions against the war.

The black troops form an army within an army, possessing its own esoteric uniform, speech and style of salute. Recent grievances include the complaint that the authorities have perverted military law to punish political radicals.

The many left-wing troops were further annoyed by the refusal of visas to Jane Fonda's Anti-Vietnam War Group, which had wanted to entertain the men with a radical play.

By contrast, the South Vietnamese and American governments dote on Bob Hope, who has been entertaining troops at Christmas since 1941, who is conservative in his politics, who is one of the richest men in the world and a friend of Nixon and Agnew. Because of these things, the Long Binh show became a political demonstration.

Some of the radical troops set up a picket outside the stadium with signs like 'PEACE NOT HOPE' and 'WHERE IS JANE FONDA?' Inside the stadium, various groups were making the same kind of protest. The Bob Hope Christmas tours are sponsored by NBC, which makes a TV show out of the total 10-hour film, with special emphasis on the reaction of the audiences.

Each Christmas, for years, the troops have taken the opportunity to wave to their families and their friends and to hold up signs with the names of their home towns.

This year there were bigger banners held for a different purpose in front of the TV cameras: "MERRY CHRISTMAS, NIXON, WISH YOU WERE HERE' and 'WE'RE FONDA, HOPE', with ingenious emphasis on the comma.

Whenever a TV camera turned to the crowd it fetched a salute of two-finger signs, black clenched fists and arms flung high for peace. After three and a half hours of waiting under a sun that threatened to boil the brains in one's skull, there were bursts of booing, slow hand-claps and jeering.

An idiot officer started to make an announcement: 'In the event of a mortar or rocket attack, the personnel on the right . . .' The rest was lost in a thunderclap of laughter. Every man in the tightly-packed crowd knew that 'in the event of a mortar or rocket attack', he would just have to pray that the Cong aim was bad.

The Bob Hope entourage includes a line of chorus girls, a singer, a pair of roller skaters, the actress Martha Ray and, in normal years, the reigning Miss World, whose war campaigns already include demonstrations by Women's Lib at the London ceremony. However, this year's Miss World, a Brazilian, quarrelled with Mecca, the London promoters, and had to be replaced by Brucene Smith, Miss World USA, a smalltown Texas girl, with acting talent to match.

The jokes and the display of girls are meant to remind the soldiers that they are red-blooded, virile, heterosexual, 100-per-cent Americans whose only desire is to get back home and bed down a fine big-busted American girl. But don't they know that already? This audience did not want or need assurances of its virility.

There was a frozen, even embarrassed silence at two Hope jokes against homosexuals. This does not mean, of course, that the U.S. army is turning queer but that young GIs, like the rest of their generation, sympathise with the dissidents in society. They did not laugh at the jokes against Women's Lib.

There was something almost prurient and embarrassing in Hope's leering ribaldry. There came to my mind the words spoken by Prince Hal to Falstaff: 'How ill grey hairs become a fool and jester.'

Yet it is not his age that separates Hope from his audience. In the United States, so I have read in Stars and Stripes, the favorite comedian of the radical young is the long-dead W. C. Fields. It is not Hope's age nor his comic style that alienates his audiences; it is his attitude to politics and above all to this war.

One joke inflamed the crowd: "You're off the front page back home. The Vietnam war is now tucked away between Lil Abner and Chuckle a Day." From this point on, Hope was frequently heckled with 'Where's Jane Fonda?

Behind me, the GIs were not shouting their protests but their conversation was bitter. Black militants came up front to wave their fists into the camera, and a group of military policemen (of all people) got on stage to unfurl a banner 'Pigs for Peace.'

By his tactless joke, Hope had confirmed the worst suspicion of soldiers here: that while the war is further than ever from being won, it is being played down in publicity to help Nixon in his election campaign.

Towards the end of the show, when a general came on stage to thank Hope and make him a gift of a 'Ho Chi Minh bicycle,' scores of GIs got up and left the stadium. Clearly rattled, Hope shouted back at the hecklers: 'In my heart, you're the guys that are against war because you're the guys that are helping to end it. You've all listened to that garbage of the other cats . . . What have they ever done for the world? They talk a lot about the My Lai massacre . . . but that's a load of nothing because they forget the good that we've done helping little kids and building orphanages.'

As Hope talked to the press after the show I thought of the old saying reproduced on a banner at Long Binh: 'The Vietnam War is a Bob Hope Joke.'

The leering jokes were embarrassing.

When Will He Admit Defeat?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

The various euphemisms still glom dimly in the official statements out of Washington and Saigon. "Vietnamization", is the policy to stand South Vietnam on its own feet, secure and independent.

The happy consequence for the people of the United States is "troop withdrawals", eventually down to zero level, as the end of the nightmare in Southeast Asia.

Thus the recent ferocious renewal of U.S. bombing raids on North Vietnam becomes, in the gentle jargon, "reinforced protective reaction." Perhaps the time has come to set all these terms aside and use the one they all really mean: defeat.

* * *

At present there is no slight hope that the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu could survive for long in South Vietnam without strong U.S. support, military as well as diplomatic and economic. "Vietnamization" of the war therefore means defeat, though this seems less ignoble than continuing defence of the Thieu gang.

A more immediate concern of U.S. war policy, increasingly emphasized, is to secure the release of prisoners now held by North Vietnam. Their welfare is given as a major reason for maintaining forces in the South.

In this most recent statement, President Richard Nixon claimed that the North Vietnamese had "totally rejected" a proposal that the prisoners be released in return for a firm deadline for total U.S. military withdrawal from Vietnam. In this he was immediately called a liar by Senator George McGovern, on the basis of his own discussions with North Vietnamese representatives.

Although partisan politics is obviously involved in this dispute, it would on the face of it seem strange if the prisoners were not readily to be released in return for complete U.S. disengagement from the war. This is not in itself a valid condition for peace.

But to set it aside, and leave South Vietnam the only issue, would mean avowedly accepting the final bankruptcy of the war policy, and the defeat of American arms. President Nixon needs to face the U.S. electorate next November as the leader who ended the debacle in Vietnam; at the same time he cannot yield the historical myth of U.S. invincibility. That is part of his dilemma.

The other part (of which President Thieu is most happily aware) is that U.S. power is the sole foundation of the South Vietnamese Government. Then there would be nothing left of U.S. war aims.

So the bombing must go on. It does not matter so much that there is still greater destruction of an already ravaged country, as that the casualty lists are much smaller with this kind of offensive.

* * *

It does not even matter that throughout the war in Vietnam, air power has never succeeded in doing more than delaying Communist gains; the preservation of the U.S. position for a few months longer is what matters.

Yet to all the world this war has become an utter tragedy. We can sympathize with the United States for the long chain of consequential events that got it into an impossible position. We know that all governments often act on wrong advice, and there is no special blame for this, no moral superiority for the outside observer.

Still the world is entitled to ask how much longer will the error be compounded, how much more blood and ruin will there be, before the United States will admit the inevitable?

Drugs, Seers and Flight Into Illusion of Freedom

By ROBERT KIRSCH
The Washington Post

Visions and prophecies are rarely the subject of scientific study. In recent times, some researchers have assumed that hallucinogenic experiences achieved by drug-taking "are comparable or even identical with those of the seers of ancient religious history."

Dr. Violet Macdermot, an English neurologist with a background in archeology and Egyptology, a student of Coptic literature, has questioned this assumption in a massive study of the lives, the ascetic practices and the "visions" of a group of seers of the early Christian period from the 3rd to the 7th centuries, A.D.

The resulting book, "The Cult of the Seer in the Ancient Middle East: A Contribution to Current Research on Hallucinations Drawn from Coptic and Other Texts" is informative and fascinating on several scores.

Examines Cultures

First, it brings together the fruits of inter-disciplinary scholarship; psychology, religion, language and medical history. Second, it provides an anthology of the literature of the spiritual experience (more than 500 pages in length, arranged under theme and topic). Third, it examines comparatively the cultures of ancient and modern times in the light of the function of the visionary experience.

There are superficial similarities between the feelings of "oneness" and "timelessness" which have been reported in experiences under hallucinogenic drugs and the visions recorded in ancient times. Researchers in the field of sensory deprivation have observed that hallucinations can occur in normal subjects when sensory stimulation is reduced to a minimum and the individual is isolated from all social contact.

Primitive Return

However, and this is the thrust of the study, the differences in aim and attitude, the distinguishing characteristics of the social settings, are so substantial that, as Dr. Macdermot says, "the question for serious consideration is whether drug-taking and similar techniques may not represent both an atavistic return to the cults of primitive societies and an irresponsible reawakening of primitive faculties — and whether they may not be liable in modern life to be destructive both to society and to the individual.

One clue is to be found in the meaning of the terms: vision can mean an appearance, often of a religious or prophetic character, which is seen otherwise than by ordinary sight and which presents itself during an abnormal state of mind. Hallucination is defined as the apparent perception of the external object when no such object is present.

The intellectual and cultural setting becomes of prime importance. In the ancient world, the vision is regarded as a revelation both of the natural and supernatural worlds, a complete experience, involving sight, hearing and knowledge while the natural and supernatural elements were inseparable.

Much of the implication of the experiences recorded here goes closer to what we would deem the artistic process. In comparison, the mystical tendencies of the psychedelic subculture of today seem fragmentary and intensely subjective.

For the early church, competing with other, older religions, the cult of seership was encouraged as a reinforcement of the authority of its faith and revelation. Ironically, though the church opposed paganism and sought to show partly through its seers its superiority to the dream cults, the mystery religions and the demonic powers of the external world, the visions of the ascetics were often "Christianized" versions of traditions derived from Egyptian, Greek and Judaic sources.

There were other difficulties as well. The old dilemma between reason and faith, between the human world and the divine. Plato and his followers, the neo-Platonists, strongly influenced both Jewish and early Christian thought.

Plato wrote in 'Phaedo': "When the soul makes use of the body for any inquiry, either through seeing or hearing or any of the other senses — for inquiry through the body means inquiry through the senses — then it is dragged by the body to things which never remain the same, and it wanders about and is confused . . .

"But when the soul inquires alone by itself, it departs into the realm of the pure, the everlasting, the immortal and the changeless, and being akin to these it dwells always with them whenever it is by itself and is not hindered, and it has rest from its wanderings and remains always the same and unchanging with the changeless, since it is communion therewith. And this state of the soul is called wisdom."

The technique of the seers — withdrawal from the environment of the senses, the ascetic way of life, fatigue and sleep deprivation, fasting, the establishment of a non-material world, the use of ritual produced visions. In a strong setting of religious and social consciousness, these utterances tended to give a pious and acceptable content to visions.

Modern drug-taking misses vision of old

Source of Divine

The gathered experiences of the cult, says Dr. Macdermot, can be re-evaluated from this distance in time:

"Those who left their communities, who were conscious that the source of the divine was in themselves, who created a non-material dimension which they called paradise . . . do not appear to have been 'seers' in the accepted sense then — or even now. Seership, in the ancient world, precluded individual development. It is perhaps as pioneers, in this new 'sphere' of achievement, that the saints and martyrs should be remembered.

"In spite of the obscurity of their biographies, it may be legitimate to deduce that the divine, for the ascetics, was not a 'vision' of the universe. It was an experience, imaginatively conceived, of human life and human relationships."

But, Dr. Macdermot concludes, we cannot turn the clock back. Hallucinogenic drugs do not replicate the actual experience of these visionaries. "The problem of the modern individual is the sterility of his imagination. He can mass-produce all the images available to him from his own or other cultures. For him, they provide no experience either divine or demonic.

Self-destructive

"Modern 'culture' has exorcised both angels and devils from the world without asking whether it was not possible that man's imagination put them there in the first place . . . the human psyche, uncontrolled by relationship with others or by self-consciousness is self destructive.

"In the vicious circle produced by dependence on drug-taking or on ritual techniques, not only may the individual be unable to escape, but may also lose his sense of individuality altogether. The techniques which were appropriate to ancient cultures are anachronistic today."

The use of these drugs can, ironically, defeat the very ends which men claim for them. The flight into the illusion of freedom is a tacit acknowledgement of that dependence which robs man of his sense of individuality.

"Today only by conscious use of the imagination can mankind decide on its own future; this future depends on mankind's 'vision' of itself. Only the individual can exercise his imagination consciously and only the individual can 'see' his own significance and that of others. Finally, it is suggested, only a social order imaginatively conceived by individuals can fulfill the world's potentialities and realize the visions of the ancient seers."

A Bit of Jolly Old Spain?

By JOHN NICHOL

One of the tragedies of Canadian history is that the Spaniards failed to establish a solid foothold on the west coast.

They were there early enough. Although Captain Cook stopped by in 1778 he only stayed long enough to walk his dog. The Spaniards came right behind him and seemed about to settle down. But when Captain Vancouver appeared they left and never came back. Thus it was not until 1791 that the British took charge and the crumpet officially replaced the tortilla on the tea trolleys of what is now Vancouver Island.

* * *

The Spanish brought wonderful names with them. The Georgia Strait — the now famous Canadian waterway endangered by the super tanker route from Valdez, Alaska to Cherry Point, Washington, has not always had such a stodgy British name. Even the most heartless old oil baron would think twice before risking pollution of "El Gran Canal De Nuesstro Senora Del Rosiario Del Marinera," as the Spanish used to call it. Yes, a good deal was lost when the Spaniards went on their way.

We all know the troubles Canada has had with our two official languages. Think what fun we could have had with three.

We could have had a Royal Commission on trilingualism and triculturism, the chairmen of which would have been Laurendeau, Dunton and Gonzales.

Parliament, of course, with three official languages would have bogged down completely. Each Canadian will have his own ideas as to whether this would be a curse or a blessing.

The western MP would have found that "bonjour", "bonsoir" and "merci" would not have constituted an adequate vocabulary. As a minimum he would have had to add "hasta la vista" and "tequilla and 7 up" to get by.

The CBC, which appears to be 90 per cent unmanageable now with two networks, would have been utterly so with three, and would long ago have completed its self-appointed job of dividing the nation into its component parts as quickly as possible.

* * *

The bull fight would have replaced the Grey Cup, and anyone who paid $12 a seat to see this year's game between Calgary and Toronto would have picked a bull fight any day, even without the bull.

It's true that some aspects of our cultural heritage would have been quite different. "Tea time at the Empress Hotel in Victoria" is a case in point. It is an integral part of the gentle Victoria image that has fleeced more tourists than the Banff Park and the Canadian National Exhibition combined.

* * *

But what if Victoria had been a bit of jolly old Spain? Would we today see the famous Empress Dowagers drinking Spanish brandy each afternoon from 4 to 6, potted as the palms?

Anyway, this all might have been. We are stuck now with what we are. And again this week we are being asked by full page newspaper ads to "understand together". There's not much fire in that slogan. Don Jose Maria Narvaéz (who first visited the site of Vancouver) would have choked on his tacos if he had ever heard it. So, for that matter, would Captain Vancouver or Jacques Cartier.

But fortunately for them they are all long gone and are thus spared this tacky hucksterism.

It really is too bad the Spaniards didn't stick around. They would have "enriched our cultural heritage." We could have had even more "unite in diversity", and all that.

Red Light Run Led to Death

A coroner's jury ruled Thursday that the traffic death Nov. 24 of Mrs. Gail Wickens, 30, of Saanich resulted when a 56-year-old Sidney man drove through a red light.

"We, the jury, agreed by a majority that Mrs. Wickens met her death as a result of Mr. (Carl) Turner going through a red light, thereby being in collision with Mrs. Wickens' car," the verdict stated.

Mrs. Wickens was pronounced dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital at 9:20 a.m. the day of the accident, after her car was in collision with the car of Turner, 10018 Siddall in Sidney, shortly before 9 a.m.

There were five small children in the Wickens car, and three of them are still in hospital.

THIRD CAR INVOLVED

The accident occurred at the intersection of Sayward Rd. and Patricia Bay Highway and also involved a third car, in which the assistant provincial commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Gordon Cunningham of Vancouver, was riding.

The deceased, formerly of 420 Brookleigh, died as a result of extensive internal injuries, according to medical testimony.

The marathon inquest, which began Nov. 29 and went on for an unprecedented five sittings, heard 19 witnesses.

"It's the longest inquest I've had as a coroner since 1964, except for one when I sat for four days," said Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

WITNESSES HEARD

Seven members of the bar were involved during the five sittings.

Two witnesses were heard during Thursday night's sitting.

John Persona, 3141 Yew St., Victoria, was recalled to testify through an interpreter because his testimony at an earlier sitting indicated he could not understand the questions.

Persona, through a Polish interpreter, said he was not a witness to the actual collision but saw the result of the crash while the victims were still in their cars.

The second witness, Richard Charles Jancowski of 639 Battery, was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Persona and testified only briefly, confirming Persona's testimony.

St. Jorre, in his charge to the jury, stressed that jurors were not sitting in a criminal trial or a civil litigation, but were restricted to determining the identity of the dead person, the cause of death and the circumstances surrounding that death.

Kennedy Not a Delegate To Democrat Convention

BOSTON — Senator Edward Kennedy today said he will not attend the Democratic national convention in Miami this summer as a delegate. He has filed an affidavit with the Massachusetts secretary of state saying he will not be a candidate for the presidency. The disclaimer is necessary to remove his name from the state's presidential ballot.

PARIS — Showman Maurice Chevalier left the bulk of his estate to former actress Odette Meller, it was reported today by the newspaper France Soir. The amount of the inheritance was not disclosed, but it was reported after his death that Chevalier left an estate of $20 million.

LONDON — A research team trying to find a birth-control pill to be used by men appealed to British parsons today to come forward if they have bats in their belfries.

"The bat's reproductive system is very interesting," said Paul Racey, a member of the team from the reproductive biology unit at Liverpool University, "but to carry out large-scale experiments we need hundreds of them. We are appealing to vicars all over the country to get in touch with us if they have bats in the belfry."

MADRAS — A wooden crate containing a bear cub en route from the airport of this southern Indian city to New York proved to be rather more than a lair for a bear. Customs officials also found 192 slabs of hashish weighing 44 pounds concealed in the roof and base.

The bear's owners, listed as Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blachere, are in police custody and the six-month-old cub is at the Madras zoo.

ALBANY — Walter C. (Tiny) Swift, a prisoner at Attica Correctional Facility who served as an unofficial doctor during the violence at the prison last September, has been granted parole.

LONDON — Scotland Yard's top detective, a leading hardliner in the fight against crime, is quitting. His departure widened a rift that has been growing in recent months over the best methods of law enforcement. Peter Brodie, 57-year-old assistant commissioner of London's police and head of Scotland Yard's Criminal Investigation Department, said he has asked the government to retire him March 31, more than two years before reaching normal retiring age.

Forest Land Management 'Behind Times'

Environmental groups are protesting logging practices because the industry's management of forest lands is behind the times, Rick Careless, chairman of the Sierra Club of Victoria said Thursday.

He was replying to charges made by Jack Sexton, president of the B.C. Truck Loggers Association in Vancouver Wednesday that environmentalists are troublemakers.

"We protest because we're just trying to get some show of responsibility," he said. "People should have protested years ago. We don't want a landscape which is totally derelict."

As examples, he noted that hundreds of lakes have been spoilt by logging, their shores completely denuded of trees and wrecked by roads built around them.

Salmon spawning trees have been damaged, he added. Erosion has taken place on steep slopes where trees have been removed and should not have been cut because trees will probably never grow there again.

Sexton, who was speaking to the Association's convention, also criticised anti-pollution regulations.

"This is surprising," said Careless, "as B.C. Forest Products and MacMillan Bloedel have recognized the importance of environmental problems."

At the same convention, forestry consultant Ian Mahood had condemned conservationists for opposing the practice of clear cutting in which all trees in an area are cleared rather than selectivly logged.

Resources Minister Ray Williston had also said it was the only practice which made economic and managerial sense in B.C.

"This follows two days after President Nixon suggested that clear-cutting be abandoned in the U.S. national forests," said Careless. "It just shows how far behind the times they are."

Chamber Backs Charter Bus Boost

Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce is supporting Wayne MacArthur, owner of the peninsula bus line, Pacific Commuter Ltd., in his effort to increase charter business.

Retiring chamber president Len Siver told members at the annual meeting Thursday that MacArthur's application to obtain an interstate licence for charter purposes is being blocked by B.C. Hydro.

Charter runs are a necessary part of MacArthur's operation, said Siver, and added that the bus service is not only a local business but could affect 20,000 people on the peninsula.

The chamber will write letters of support to the necessary authorities.

In the annual election Bob Whyte, a Sidney marina operator, was elected president to succeed Len Siver.

Others on the executive to be installed Feb. 5 are Brian Lewis, vice president, and directors Dennis Bowcott, Andy McGoldrick, Lionel Wardele, Derek Bradley, Karl Drost, John Graeme, John Elliott, and Mrs. Doris Rostas.

Judges are Barbara Watt for sporting dogs and terriers, Mrs. Leslie Belfit for working dogs and Irene Copus for hounds, toys and non-sporting. Miss Copus will judge best-in-show.

Court Ruling Asked

Victoria developer Abtar Bains conformed today that his lawyer will seek a Supreme Court ruling on the stop-work action taken by North Saanich municipality on tree clearing activities at Land's End Road.

The order was posted Jan. 4 on a 25-acre parcel being purchased by Bains Development Company Ltd. to halt what council described as a logging operation.

President of Cowie Tree Service Ltd., Ron Smith, who is under contract to Bains, complied with the legal order immediately. This week, however, Smith began similar tree clearing activities on adjacent property owned by Harold Lineham, 1150 Richardson.

Although a stop-work order on the Lineham land was given verbally to Smith, no written order was posted and on Thursday Smith recommenced tree clearing on the Lineham parcel.

WHITE HOUSE CURES 'SPOTTY ATTENDANCE'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief judge of the U.S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, who was reported to have sat on the bench only 17 days in nearly three years, said Thursday he didn't know he was retiring until the White House announced it.

Eugene Worley, 63, a member of the court for 20 years and former Texas congressman, blamed illness for his spotty attendance record on the five-judge court where his annual pay was $42,500.

"Doctors told me three years ago to quit," Worley said.

FOUR PULP MILL log chippers made for the New Zealand forest industry represent a substantial part of 1971 production of the Victoria plant of Nicholson Murdie Machines Ltd. Chipper at left goes to one mill, the other three, including one with a king-size 144-inch cutting disc, go to a second mill.

Pace to Slow At Machine Plant

An exceptionally good year in 1971 has eased to a slower pace as the company enters 1972, reports Nicholson Murdie Machines Ltd., of Harbor Road.

Managing director Ed Brown said today he expects 1972 productivity to be about equal to the 1970 level, although the first half may remain slow for a time.

The company manufacturers heavy machinery for forest industry mills in both domestic and export markets.

Orders shipped in 1971 to New Zealand, Malaysia and other overseas markets represented about half of total sales.

Work in hand at present includes smaller orders for the domestic forest industry, including log barkers and pulp mill machinery.

Its range of machinery for log handling, wood-processing, sawmill, plywood and pulp mill operations has established Nicholson Murdie world-wide, Brown said.

Industrial Production Declines

OTAWA (CP) — Industrial production declined in November, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

The seasonally adjusted index of industrial production fell to 181.1 from the October mark of 181.7. All the decline came from manufacturing.

The index is adjusted to remove normal seasonal variations and based on 1961 production equalling 100.

Production in mining was up to 186.3 from 183.2, while electric power, gas and water rose to 212.3 from 208.1.

But the manufacturing index dropped to 176.5 from 178.4. Non-durable manufacturing— foods, textiles, paper and chemical products—remained the same at 158.5.

The manufacturing decline came in durable products, whose index fell to 199.4 from 203.5. Among the largest declines in durable production were drops in manufacturing of primary metal, transportation equipment and electrical products.

Some durable goods bucked the trend by recording seasonally-adjusted rises in their prodution indexes, notably furniture and fixtures and machinery industries.

Exports To U.S. Up Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Exports rose to 1.55 billion in December from $1.39 billion a year earlier, bringing the 1971 grand total to $17.85 billion, up 5.5 per cent from 1970's $16.91 billion, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

The figures are preliminary, subject to change later when more complete export data is available.

There was a 10.4-per-cent increase in exports to the United States, with the total rising to $12.15 billion from $11.01 billion in 1970.

Exports to all other principal markets were down for the year, including reductions of 8.3 and 8.6 per cent in sales to the United Kingdom and European Common Market.

The export figures included an 88.5-per-cent increase in sales of wheat, rising to $95.2 million for 1971 from $50.5 million in 1970. Exports of nickel ores, concentrate and scrap more than doubled, at $48.6 million from $21.9 million.

The biggest category of exports—passenger cars and chassis—rose by 11.1 per cent to $175.5 million from $158 million.

CRTC 'Obstacles' May Hurt Marconi

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Marconi Ltd. faces having to sell its Montreal broadcasting holdings for a third time with a number of obstacles looming ahead.

The most important roadblocks can only be cleared away by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, say Toronto and Ottawa investment dealers.

They say another sale could depend on the CRTC recommending an extension of the British-owned company's licences which expire June 30. The government cannot extend the licences without a commission recommendation.

They also say prospective buyers probably will want commission assurance that the CRTC will not come up with a decision like the CHUM Ltd. ruling handed down in late December.

In that decision, the CRTC approved CHUM's $13.3 million proposal to buy an 80 per cent interest in Canadian Marconi's television and radio stations in Montreal. But the commission ordered CHUM to sell the radio stations involved in the deal and CKVR-TV Barrie, Ont.

BASED ON APPROVAL

Allan Waters, CHUM president, Tuesday said he could not go through with the purchase because his financing was based on approval of the complete package. He had sought permission to buy CFCF-TV Montreal and Montreal radio stations CFCF, CFQR-FM and CFCX shortwave.

It was the second time in one year an agreement to buy the stations foundered on late-blooming CRTC decisions.

Ernest Bushnell, chairman of Bushnell Communications Ltd. of Ottawa, has said his deal with Canadian Marconi sank last February largely because the CRTC did not approve his bid to acquire 17 cable television systems.

He said the cable purchases would have provided a stable base for financing the Marconi acquisition.

Bushnell Communications forfeited $4 million and CHUM may also be forced to give up a $1 million deposit with Canadian Marconi. Mr. Waters says he thinks the deposit will be returned because the CRTC approved only part of his proposal.

MARKET 'THIN'

A Toronto investment dealer said in a telephone interview Thursday:

"I would say that the market for the Montreal stations is becoming very thin."

He said that buyers are aware that Canadian Marconi must sell by June 30 to meet government requirements on foreign ownership.

The government has ordered foreign-owned companies to reduce their holdings in Canadian broadcasting operations to 20 per cent.

Canadian Marconi was granted an extension from Jan. 1 to June 30 to complete the deal with CHUM Ltd.

The investment dealer said potential buyers probably will try to buy the Montreal stations for less than they are worth unless the government gives Canadian Marconi more time.

SIZE IS CONCERN

The CRTC decision on the CHUM bid was based on concern over the growing size and power of the Toronto company.

The company owns radio stations in Toronto, Ottawa and Peterborough and television stations in Barrie, Halifax and Sydney, N.S.

The financial community has approved the Chum decision to scrap the Canadian Marconi deal because of the CRTC ruling.

CHUM stock rose on the stock market after Mr. Water's announcement Tuesday after languishing for some weeks because brokers were mystified by the CRTC ruling and uncertain about CHUM.

School Janitor Layoffs 'Intimidating'—Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — Len Stair, a spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Thursday accused the Vancouver school board of trying to intimidate union members by laying off 20 men, employed as maintenance workers.

Stair said the men laid off are members of CUPE Local 407 and the layoff came at a time when CUPE Local 392, janitors and sweepers, were preparing to strike in support of contract demands.

He said the layoff will affect men with up to 20 years' service and is intended to split and divide the union ranks.

Stair said members of Local 407 would not be intimidated. The layoff came the day before a scheduled meeting today between school board and union representatives in a last-ditch effort to head off a janitors' strike affecting 111 Vancouver schools and more than 74,000 students.

Crimes Drop

VANCOUVER (CP) — Serious crimes — including murder, holdups and strongarmings — dropped slightly in the city in 1971, according to figures released Thursday by Chief Constable John Fisk.

The city had nine slayings in 1971, half of the 1970 figure, and there were 306 holdups, compared with 327 in 1970. There were 565 strongarmings reported in 1971, compared to 762 in 1970.

There was a rise in the number of illegal entries and indecent assaults.

McNeely Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charles J. McNeely, the founding chairman of the Health Centre for Children, died Wednesday at the age of 85. McNeely was active in child welfare work throughout his life and was instrumental in founding a tuberculosis hospital for children and in reorganizing the Children's Aid Society and forming the Family-Welfare Federation.

Mothers Alarmed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of mothers in a Vancouver housing project Thursday said they will approach city council for help in stopping the sale of nail polish remover, vanilla extract and bay rum to children.

Mrs. Bea Delorme, speaking for the 50 mothers, says her son is addicted to nail polish remover and has resorted to stealing to obtain money to purchase the liquid.

"We're at out wits' end to know what to do with our kids," she said. "We've tried everything. Even the police can't do anything because there's no law against selling the remover to children or against sniffing."

Funny Money

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP here warned businessmen Thursday to watch for counterfeit United States $10 bills. A spokesman said 15 of the counterfiet bills were passed in one afternoon at a local shopping centre.

Man Acquitted On Sooke Stabbing Count

A 66-year-old city man was acquitted Wednesday in Sooke provincial court of assault with intent to wound.

Judge Eugene Murphy cleared Johnson James, 614 Seaforth, who was charged after Henry Richard Williams, 25, was stabbed in the stomach during an argument at his home on Cooper Road early Oct. 28.

Murphy said there was reasonable doubt in the case when evidence showed that Williams had severely punched and kicked the accused before the stabbing.

Williams spent 10 days in hospital and James has been in custody since Nov. 8, unable to raise $5,000 bail.

Haircuts Ordered

TSAWWASSEN (CP) — Two butchers in the Vancouver suburb of Tsawwassen cut their shoulder-length hair Thursday — by order of the public health inspector.

The inspector, J. H. Hostler, said he visited the store where the two men worked after a complaint and ordered Gary Morris, 35, and Bill White, 22, to either cut their hair or close the store.

Both chopped their hair, but claimed it was "discrimination against males."

"We have girls here wrapping meat and nobody bothers about their hair," said Morris.

The Symbol of Curling: Or Pick Four From 32!

DUNCAN — It may be overwriting it a bit, but then there is no way of avoiding that, and remaining honest. After all, it is strictly a matter of record that Duncan curlers demand respect. Especially at home.

This is the first round of the B.C. Consols playoffs, four rinks to emerge from 32 for the Island final at Nanaimo two weeks hence; and it simply isn't possible, really, to come up with the suggestion that not one of the Duncan rinks will be around when the weekend competition is completed.

However, just to be certain, Glen Harper was asked the simple question: "How are you curling?" Glen is Duncan's most honored curling citizen. He has twice been to the Brier. In 1960 he won three games; in 1963, he had an 8-2 mark and finished second at Brandon. His opinion has to be respected.

"I think I'm curling as well as I ever have," he said. "And I've been better on the broom this year than last." An honest reply, then the cruncher: "But I was curling well — at least I thought so — in the mixed playdowns; and we lost."

If his rink is solid, Vern Kaspick at third, Bert Oud at second, and Doug Belton at lead, is there any problem? Belton is the new man, Harper confided, and "he's not too bad a curler — if he holds himself down."

Duncan's Duncan Could Be 'Rough'

Glen was being frank, especially so, when he added: "Freddie (Duncan) has a strong rink, and has been curling very well. He could be rough." Duncan's crew has Ralph Fulford at third, Bert Wright at second and John Pylpiuk at lead. Duncan last year was a zone finalist from the Island, along with Victoria's Gary Leibel, and narrowly missed defeating Vancouver's Lyall Dagg in the first round.

The third Duncan power, potentially, is Garry Merrett, who with Duncan once was a member of a Harper championship rink. And Merrett's rink of Gwynn Hughes, Allan MacGregor and Hugh Williams must measure up as a strong contender too.

Both Harper and Merrett suggested that visiting rinks may find the Duncan ice "tricky." "It has been tough to read, especially on weight," said Merrett. Harper agreed: "It is tricky, and has some runs, but that should make it interesting," he said of what might be a deciding factor in the playdowns.

Most highly respected among the visitors are Leibel, Moe Hill and Keith Dagg.

Leibel did the best of any Island rinks last season before losing to Glen Pierce in a game he should have won, but has come a cropper this year with the loss of his regular second, Bud Taylor, who has come up with a hand injury. Besides, he also has a new lead, Wayne Statton, and it's not certain how the new group will jell. Lloyd Larson is third and with Leibel "they make a strong pair." Bob Murray will play second.

Moe Hill, Dagg, and Two 'Brooms'

Hill is recalled here as having been an Island rep in the B.C. Consols playdowns of 1970, and it is felt that this is the type of ice on which he curls best. The question mark, as one observer said, "is how well they play together; if they start to click with the new third man, Wayne Dew, then look out!"

Besides, the rink is fresh from this week's triumph in the Canadian Police zone playoffs.

Keith Dagg, a brother of Lyall, is playing well this year, and already has qualified for the Island mixed playdowns. Like Hill, he is primarily a draw man, and should take to the Duncan ice.

Besides, he has what could be a competent crew in Jack Trueman at third, John Balloch at second, and the veteran Ken Sturrock at lead. Sturrock is the big broom on the rink, and Dagg often needs it. It's that simple in analyzing his chances.

This does not necessarily mean that all other rinks are hereby eliminated. Never! Harvey Hodge, for instance, has been curling extremely well out of Cowichan Lake, but the over-all strength of his rink is suspect. Harvey Thomson of Esquimalt was great in the Masters this year, but needs his very best. Pat Thompson is always a threat, and has been to the final before; Lyle Garraway has the experience, but may be handicapped by a green rink; Dick Samson looms as an outsider with a chance — at least he has the best Scottish broom user on the Island in Tom Machan — "and I often need him."

So there it is: Beat Duncan for two of the four places. Anything more must rank as a bonus.

For after all, curling is the symbol here; and more important, so is the playoff.

BUFFALO may not have won Thursday night's NHL game with New York Rangers, but Chris Evans of the Sabres did manage to get in the best left hand of the game. The recipient is Bill Fairburn.

Marotte's Play Has Royal Spark

By The Canadian Press

It may be only coincidence, but defenceman Gilles Marotte's return to the Los Angeles lineup has shot the King's fortunes upwards in the National Hockey League — if back-to-back ties can be considered a barometer.

Thursday night the lowly Kings played Boston Bruins to a 1-1 stalemate. The tie came 24 hours after their 1-1 game with the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Marotte, after missing several games with a leg injury, rejoined the club in Toronto and his appearance appeared to give the Los Angeles players new life after their goaltenders had allowed 24 goals in the three previous starts.

In other league action: Montreal Canadiens shelled Pittsburgh goalie Jim Rutherford with 50 shots en route to a 7-1 win over the Penguins and New York Rangers reserves came to the forefront in a 5-2 victory over Buffalo Sabres.

WAS IN BIG TRADE

Marotte, involved in the infamous 1967 trade that sent Phil Esposito, Ken Hodge and Fred Stanfield from Chicago Black Hawks to Boston in exchange for Marotte, goalie Jack Norris and centre Pit Martin, has developed into one of the league's fine rushing defencemen.

Built along the lines of a fire hydrant, Marotte's crushing checks were appreciated in Chicago. But the quality of his play left some doubt in management's mind and he was shipped off to Los Angeles.

His worth to the Kings' youthful blueline corps was probably never more evident than during his recent period of recuperation. While he didn't figure in the scoring at Boston or Toronto, presence of the 25-year-old Marotte was obvious elsewhere.

He picked up two of the five minors in the Boston game. In Toronto, Leaf forwards appeared reluctant to park themselves anywhere near him, thus enabling him to escape a trip to the penalty box.

However, it took Ross Lonsberry's unassisted goal in the final six minutes, after the Kings winger grabbed the loose puck when Boston's Wayne Cashman tripped at the Bruins blueline, for the equalizer.

It marked the third straight game the high-powered Bruins have failed to win against expansion teams. Included in the string was a 2-2 tie the previous night with Pittsburgh and 5-2 loss to St. Louis on the weekend.

ESPOSITO POINTLESS

It was a frustrating night for Boston centre Phil Esposito, No. 2 in the NHL scoring race behind Rangers' Jeany Ratelle. Esposito was held pointless for the second straight game, matching the total number of games the rangy centre has been held off the tally sheet in Boston's previous 39 starts.

But the results were just as negative for the scoring leader, Jean Ratelle, and his equally productive linemates at Buffalo where Rangers were led by Walt Tkaczuk's trio.

Tkaczuk scored twice, as did right winger Bill Fairbairn. Left winger Gene Carr added the other New York goal.

TKACZUK IS HOT

Tkaczuk, one of the "other centres" on the Rangers, has gone on a scoring binge in the Rangers last four games. He also picked up a pair of assists Thursday night, giving him 12 points in the last four games including seven goals.

Before New York left Buffalo, Francis announced that winger Jim Lorentz would be remaining behind with the Sabres. It marked the second time this year the former Bruin has been traded. He started the season with St. Louis Blues.

Centre Pete Mahovlich and winger Yvan Cournoyer scored two apiece to help the Canadiens stretch their unbeaten string at home this season to 19 games, including three ties.

Frank Mahovlich marked his return to the lineup after a five-day bout with the flu with two assists. And the Canadiens got other good news in the return to practice of goaltender Ken Dryden.

The Canadiens have been having their troubles since Dryden suffered a back injury just before Christmas. The young goaltender had to be placed in traction last week but said Thursday night doctors have given him the green light to resume skating Monday.

Torrid Bruins Inherit Fourth

New Westminster Bruins slipped into third place in the Western Division Thursday night with their 10th straight victory in the Western Canada Hockey League.

The Bruins tripped Swift Current Broncos 4-1 to move a single point ahead of the idle Medicine Hat Tigers. The Bruins, with 44 points, are still 10 behind the second-place Edmonton Oil Kings but have two games in hand.

The Broncos, on a three-game B.C. swing, tangle with the Vancouver Nats tonight in Vancouver before moving to Victoria Saturday night to meet the Cougars.

Meanwhile, Brandon Wheat Kings tightened up the race for first place in the eastern division with a 4-3 win over Winnipeg Jets.

The Wheat Kings are third in the east, one point behind Saskatoon Blades and two behind Regina Pats. Winnipeg is fifth and Swift Current last.

Alex Kogler, a former Swift Current player, scored his sixth goal in four games to help the Bruins to their home-ice victory. Lorne Henning got two New Westminster goals and Ron Kennedy the other. Brian Black's goal in the third period gave the Broncos a short-lived 1-1 tie.

Ron Chipperfield's 34th goal of the season — and his second of the game — with less than two minutes left to play gave the Wheat Kings the decision before 805 fans in Brandon.

It's Regals, Adams; Not Royals, Irvine

Victoria Regals, the local entry in the new Premier Soccer League, Thursday evening named former referee Jack Adams as president and chairman of the board of directors for the 1972 season.

The decision ended speculation, who would head Victoria's maiden entry in the newly-formed semi-professional league which begins league play April 15 running through Sept. 15.

Adams announced popular Brian Hughes, who led the Royals to the Western Canada League championship last year and a former Welsh international player, has signed a one-year contract as player-manager.

"It will be the best soccer seen in Victoria, without a doubt, the last two summer seasons were excellent but there was not enough competition. "We've got a competitive six-team league and we'll be just as good if not better than last year's team," speculates Adams.

OWNERSHIP CHANGE

Adams, who is retiring from a 25-year career as a referee, says the team bears no connection with the WCSL Royals, and will be owned by three current directors, replacing Jim Irvine of Ladysmith, who owned the Royals.

"It will carry itself after a while," said Adams.

Adams is hopeful most of Royals' former players will join the team along with a few recruits from abroad and the most promising younger players from Victoria.

He said all six teams are recruiting experienced coaches and players from Europe and elsewhere to give high-calibre soccer.

Regals will play most home games Saturday evenings with occasional games Tuesday or Friday nights at Royal Athletic Park.

30-GAME SCHEDULE

The 30-game schedule — divided evenly home and away — will be contested against Vancouver Spartans of the WCSL, Columbus, Croatia and Eintracht, three drop-outs from the Pacific Coast League, and Richmond Ramparts, a new entry.

He said the league is negotiating for an English team to come here for about three weeks in May to play all the league teams in games which would count in league standings.

Other officials named were Ken Hibbert as vice-president, the same post he held with the Royals; Keith Bickmore, public relations, and Derrick Sewell, Ted Todd, Bert Storar, Martin Adams, Rick Doyle, Harold Holroyd and Peter Bishop rounding out the board.

Favored Karen Enjoys Big Lead

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Karen Magnussen of North Vancouver, defending Canadian senior women's skating champion, lays it on the line as to her aspirations.

"I would like to get an Olympic gold medal very, very much," she said Thursday.

The 19-year-old skater took a giant stride Thursday towards capturing her third consecutive senior women's title when she built up a solid lead after four of the six senior women's compulsory figures in the Canadian figure-skating championships.

In unofficial results, Miss Magnussen amassed a total of 498.4 points for the four figures. Back in second was Ruth Hutchinson of Vancouver with 417.8 points while Janice Maikawa of Hamilton was third with 418.0 points.

In the only other unofficial results released Mary McCaffrey of North Vancouver with 402.7 points, Daria Prychun of Toronto with 386.9 points and Cathy Lee Irwin of Toronto with 392.6 points, finished fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively.

In other Thursday events, Linda Watts and Don Fraser of Toronto won the junior pairs title edging out Daria Pdvchun and Roger Uuemae, also of Toronto. Marie Ellen Souche and Bernard Souche of Toronto were third.

Kevin Robertson of Toronto captured the novice men's crown beating out Barry Fraser of Edmonton and Rob Houstoun of Toronto.

No Betting Line On Frazier Bout

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier will enter many United States homes Saturday night via television. Most fight followers feel the visit will be a short one.

Talk about Frazier's scheduled 15-round title fight with Terry Daniels Saturday night concerns not who will win, but how quickly will Frazier win.

The champion is such an overwhelming favorite that Las Vegas bookmakers did not establish a betting line.

LOST 3 IN 1971

As for Frazier, the only prediction he will make is that Dallas Cowboys will beat Miami Dolphins in Sunday's Super Bowl football game.

"I'm not taking him any lighter than any other fighter," Frazier said of Daniels.

"I'm just not a guy that's coming here to make a buck," said Daniels who lost three of 10 fights in 1971, one of them a four-round knockout by Jack O'Halloran. Doug Lord, Daniels' manager, said Daniels fought O'Halloran with injured ribs.

"The way Frazier comes in sooner or later he's going to get hit by a hard punch, unless I don't fight at all," said the 25-year-old Daniels.

Both fighters rested today for the bout which is scheduled to start at 10 p.m. EST at the 9,000-seat Rivergate Auditorium and which will be shown on a 205-station television hookup put together by Century Telesports Network. New Orleans will be blacked out.

The fight will not be carried by Canadian TV stations.

This will be the first heavyweight championship fight on home television since Muhammad Ali knocked out Zora Folley March 22, 1967.

Farmer, in Hall

MONTREAL (CP) — Ken Farmer of Montreal, a past president of the Canadian Olympic Association and associated with athletics most of his life, has been elected to the National amateur sports Hall of Fame.

Maplettes Looking For Upset Over UBC

If ever the Victoria Maplettes need a perfect weekend in the Inter-city Senior "A" Women's basketball League, this one coming up has to be it.

Maplettes clash with undefeated UBC Thunderettes, who they trail by four points in the fight for first place, Saturday night (8:30) and Sunday afternoon (2:15) at Central Junior High.

The Victorians, who eliminated UBC in a bitterly-contested series en route to winning the Canadian championship last season, must win both games if they hope to oust the mainland team from first place. Maplettes have four games left.

It won't be any easy task for the Maplettes against the powerful, well-balanced UBC club. However, coach Moe Turner has been preparing his club for this weekend for a long time and hopes the rivalry between the two clubs will bring out the best in his players.

Success will hinge on the girls' play on the boards and accurate shooting by captain Barb Tribe, currently playing the finest in her career, and veterans Angie Radonovich, Danne Broozuk and Laurie Sawden, who are working well with newcomers Julie Demilt and Annie Van Schaik.

Turner expects the girls to upset UBC if they play as well as they did last weekend, when they split a pair of games in Seattle.

Game time Saturday is 8:30 p.m., to be proceeded by a junior women's game between First United Saints and Cordova Bay at 7 p.m. Sunday game time is 2:15.

New Hunters Must Take Course

First-year hunters will be compelled to take a hunter-training program this year, it was announced Thursday.

Geoff Warden of Kamloops, executive director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, said after a meeting with Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan that a training program is now being worked out.

The government had decided earlier to make new hunters take a written examination, but without a compulsory course.

"Kiernan agreed with us that merely passing a written examination would not establish whether a hunter knew how to handle firearms properly, or had any real knowledge of what hunting is all about," Warden said. "As a result of our representations, the minister has instructed the Fish and Wildlife Branch to work out a training program covering the essentials of hunter training."

Warden said hunters taking out their first licence would be required to take both a written and oral examination.

The regulation change by Kiernan apparently came at the insistence of the Wildlife Federation. Said Kiernan: "Proper use of firearms, conservation and hunting ethics can only come through personal instruction."

Winter Winds Biting But So Are Salmon

Salmon fishermen willing to brave the wind, cold and sleet are picking up some surprisingly good catches of blues, jack springs and winter springs in southern Vancouver Island waters.

Chesterfield Rock and The Narrows in the Goldstream end of Saanich Inlet have proved productive while Indian Bay and the stretch of water between Willis Point and The Boulder have been favored locations farther north.

Mainly the equation has read: few fishermen but many limits.

Early-morning fishermen are advised to use little weight while fishing for blues or jacks. But later on in the day, four to eight ounces of weight should be used to sink those flashtails, bucktails or small spoons.

★ ★ ★

Best spots off Oak Bay have been Fiddle Reef, Discovery Light, the Chain Islands and Trial Island, where the average catch the past week has been "two or three fish per boat." These winter springs may range anywhere from five to 17 pounds and have been landed most frequently in mid-morning or early afternoon.

Other anglers using one to one and a half pounds of weight and 75 to 100 feet of line off the kelp bed in Pedder Bay have been boating winter springs up to 10½ pounds.

Farther up-Island, only two bright spots stand out from an otherwise bleak picture.

Winter springs and a few blues are coming in from Bold Bluff and other spots up through Sansum Narrows — but plan to work deep with either a planer or large weight.

And Courtenay fishermen are coming back with stories and proof of good winter spring returns off Comox and Royston. These fish are tipping the scales between six and 12 pounds.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, steelhead anglers continue to hope for a warm spell to melt some of the snow in higher elevations and boost water levels in Island streams.

Despite the low, glass-clear water conditions, a few of these sea-run rainbows are still being beached.

Locally, the best spots have been the Sooke River and Harris Creek. The Cowichan River has produced some good catches in the Riverbottom and Skutz Falls areas — so a few steelhead must be getting through the Indians' fish nets which are reported to be strung "from bank to bank" in a number of spots in the lower reaches.

Ditto the Koksilah.

Near Port Alberni, a few hardy anglers are picking up good catches of steelies near Black Rock in the Stamp River.

Other streams producing during the past week have been the Puntledge, Oyster (lower reaches), Campbell and Gold. But angfers are having to exert a little effort for their returns.

NIBBLES: Chinook Club members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association are reminded of the monthly Frostbite Derby this Sunday . . . hours are from dawn to 12 noon.

Further announcements regarding the new size limits of clams are expected "any day now" . . . under the present setup there is no size limit on razor or butter clams but the minimum size of little neck clams that may be kept is still 1½ inches . . . the former limit was 3½ inches for razor clams and two inches for butter clams . . . but the new regulations are under review by the federal fisheries department.

Members of the Victoria Four-Wheel-Drive Club will take off on a jaunt with the Cowichan Valley Roamers this Sunday . . . jumping-off time is 10 a.m. from the Safeway parking lot in Duncan . . . anyone owning a four-wheel-drive vehicle is welcome and the next VFWDC meeting is Feb. 12 at 8 p.m. in the home of president Gordie Stewart, 3054 Glenmanor . . . further information on the club is available by calling Gordie at 478-3155.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Returning to victory circle for third straight year in Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition is Barb Berthiaume, who has topped women's tenpin division in 12th week of ninth annual contest. Barb earned weekly award by rolling 187-226-210—623 series in Ladies Classic League at Mayfair Lanes.

Nicklaus Sets Pace

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — "Well, we'll just see if we can make it five out of six, and then six out of seven."

Jack Nicklaus, winner of four of his last five starts, had just fired a brilliant six-under-par 66 for a three-stroke lead in the first round of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament Thursday and was looking ahead to the weekend.

"Sure, I'd like to keep it going, but it's not going to happen," the powerful Golden Bear said, then grinned.

Nicklaus, making his first start of the season, had seven birdies, missed six other times from 12 feet or less and was threatening to run off and hide from the rest of the field until he suffered his only lapse on the 18th hole.

A six-iron second shot hit the branch of a tree and the ball dropped straight down. He chipped poorly and two-putted for his only one-over-par hole.

LEADS BY THREE

That reduced his four-stroke lead to three over the 1971 PGA player of the year, Lee Trevino, Paul Moran and Larry Mowry, tied for second at 69.

The group of seven at 70 included England's Tony Jacklin, rookie Lanny Wadkins, Al Geiberger, Dale Douglass, Bill Johnston, Tom Weiskopf and Mike Morley.

George Knudson of Toronto, who skipped last week's PGA season-opener, the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, was the top Canadian but at 75 was well behind the leaders.

Garry Bowerman, also of Toronto, was among the tail-enders, with an 83, as was Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer, at 84.

George Archer, a playoff winner Monday in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, took a 76.

Burnaby Bowlers Win Canadian Pin Crown

TORONTO (CP) — The South Burnaby team, captained by Karna Shea, led British Columbia to victory in a three-way playoff for the Canadian women's fivepin bowling championship.

Other members on the winning team were Bev Kettlewell, Pat Doucette, Deanna Drayton and Dianne Phillips.

The B.C. representattive rolled 1,130 to defeat the Judy Duval team from Prince Albert, Sask., by three points.

The team representing eastern Ontario finished a distant third in the playoff with a score of 1,009.

Regina Plans Taylor Field Improvements

REGINA (CP) — The City of Regina wants to add 2,000 seats to Taylor Field, home of Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference.

With this in mind, the city has asked for a $118,950 federal winter works grant.

Taylor Field now seats 22,138. Renovations would bring the total to about 24,000 and all seats would be between the goal lines. Existing end-zone seats would be eliminated.

Construction and installation of the extra seats would cost about $109,000, a spokesman said. The rest of the money would be used to improve lighting and other facilities.

Hill Unbeaten On Title Road

NANAIMO — Moe Hill has taken his first step in defence of the Canadian Police curling championship.

Hill, who has two members left from last year's championship lineup, won the Vancouver Island Zone playoff Thursday by defeating Don McIvor, 8-5, in the final of "B" event.

The Esquimalt-RCMP combination, which has Wayne Dew replacing Bill Erickson as vice skip and Dave Wilson and Neil Dickson still on the front end, went through the 16-rink bonspiel-playoff unbeaten.

It defeated Ed Manchuk of the Colwood RCMP in the "A" final before knocking off McIvor's rink.

McIvor and Ed Kathol, Victoria RCMP, were the defeated semi-finalists in the "A" event while Don Blair of Chemainus and Stan Nestibo of Campbell River lost out in the "B" semis.

The "C" event was won by Ray Bailey's Saanich rink, which defeated Lawson Eyman of Port Alberni in the final.

Hill now goes to Kamloops for the eight-rink provincial final on Feb. 14 and 15. The Canadian final is in Hamilton in March.

YOUNG AUSSIE SNAPS RECORD

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Brad Cooper, 17-year-old Australian swimming in a steady rain, set a world record for the 800-metre freestyle of eight minutes, 23.8 seconds at the New South Wales state swimming championships.

Cooper, who clipped 4.8 seconds off the record held by Graham Windeatt, was in a head-to-head battle for 600 metres with the former record-holder.

West Germany Faces England in Cup Event

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — England and West Germany, World cup soccer quarter-finalists in 1970, will meet again in the quarter-finals of the European Nations Cup.

The draw was made Wednesday under the auspices of the Union of European Football Associations.

In the World Cup two years ago, West Germany edged England, 3-2. In 1966, the teams met in the final with England winning 4-2 to capture the World Cup.

The semi-final draw made certain that the Nations Cup game will be between an East and a West European team.

In London, England team manager Sir Alf Ramsey said: "It is a great draw from all aspects. West Germany has a great team and the two games, home and away, should be fine contests."

UVic Teams Face Weekend Crunch

University of Victoria men's and women's varsity basketball games hope to climb the standings ladder in the Far West Division of the Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association this weekend.

They hope to do it at the expense of the University of Lethbridge.

Both teams are still in contention with the University of Alberta and UBC, currently one-two in both men's and women's leagues, in the fight for first place. However, both teams are advised to sweep series in the Alberta city if they plan to be serious challengers.

On the local front, the UVic Jayees, decimated by the loss of three regulars travelling with Gary Taylor's varsity team, play Vancouver City College in a pair of junior varsity exhibition basketball games tonight and Saturday at the UVic gym at 8 p.m.

Doug Walton and Harry Hunter, two first-year players, and second-year man John Campbell got the call from Taylor to join the Vikings in Lethbridge.

Hotel Cracks Hoop Record

Tom Hatcher dropped 30 points and five of his clubmates — the only ones around — also hit double figures Thursday night to pace Hotel Douglas to a record-breaking 136-98 triumph over Restoration Services in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Cedar Hill Junior High.

The 136 points marked a new high in local senior "B" competition, breaking the old mark set by last season's Douglas team when they routed Robertson's 124-63 in November.

The mark was set by a Douglas team which dressed just six players.

All six players triggered the onslaught, which saw the league-leaders hoop 72 points in the first half and 64 in the second.

Hatcher got hot in the second half, dropping in 18 of his points then, while Mike Taaffe and John Lauvaas hit for 24 points apiece. Corky Jossul popped in 21 and Bruce Vallor had 13.

The result was never in doubt as Douglas jumped into an early 20-5 lead and were up 107-65 at one point during the final quarter.

Services' Jim Cunningham replied with a 28-point performance and Wayne Allen contributed 20 points.

McCormick plans to follow the international tennis circuit all the way to Wimbledon, England, this year.

Marlies Are for Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, says the Toronto Marlboros hockey team is for sale and he has had "feelers" from two parties interested in buying the junior A club.

He "certainly would sell" the franchise providing the buyer agreed to two conditions: the team would continue to play its games at the Gardens and "if pro sponsorship of amateur teams ever returned, we'd have the right to buy back the team."

"I'm interested in having Marlies as an attraction in the building, but we have enough things to do around here without the expense and bother of operating the team ourselves."

Marlies' manager Tom Smythe said:

"I guess Harold is trying to get rid of me. I just don't understand why he would want to sell the team now. The Marlie operation will make money this year, the Gardens get a good thing out of concessions and the future looks bright."

Smythe is the son of former Gardens president Stafford Smythe, who died in October.

The Marlboros have been in the Ontario Hockey Association finals the last two years and currently are in second place in the 10-team series.

Stamps 'Broke,' Collapse

By Canadian Press

President Paul Bozak of Moose Jaw Thursday called an emergency meeting of Prairie Hockey League officials after Calgary Stampeders announced they are pulling out of the five-team senior circuit.

The meeting will be held in Saskatoon Monday.

"I will ask the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to suspend those responsible for the team's withdrawal if Calgary cannot arrange to meet the league schedule for the remainder of the season," Bozak said in an interview.

Neil Cuthbertson, president of Edmonton Monarchs, said Thursday his team has no intention of pulling out of the league.

"The only reason he would have for pulling out would be if it folded, and Bozak told me the Saskatchewan teams intend to continue."

John Gattens, Monarchs' manager, said earlier Edmonton "will be hard-pressed to continue in the league for the remainder of this season with Calgary out of the picture."

Cuthbertson said Bozak told him there was a good chance Calgary would remain in the league with help from a number of sports-minded fans.

$14,000 IN DEBT

"I understand the team wants to continue, and with help Calgary could go back into action."

Announcing Calgary's decision, Stampeder president Danny McDonald said, "We're through. There's no other way out of it.

"We simply have no place to play. The Corral has stipulated we pay them the $2,700 owing them plus a personal guarantee for the rest of the season."

He said the team is already $14,000 in debt. The coach, players and staff began the season without pay believing that funds from the CAHA for its European trip would help them survive.

Tom Hall, assistant general manager of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Board, said:

"We've gone along up until now, but the rent must be paid. It can't go on like this. We're not willing to carry them."

Stocker Rally Trips Vikings

University of Victoria Vikings had the lead Thursday night then blew it as they dropped a 5-3 exhibition hockey game to Stockers North Americans, leaders of the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League, at George Pearkes Arena.

Americans connected for three third period goals, including the clincher by Jim Houseman into the empty net. Gary Hales and Roger Eckland added the other final-period tallies while Norm Ellemo and Ron Winkler scored earlier for Americans.

Vikings, members of the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association, got a two-goal performance from Dave Stapleford and a single marker from Don Gemmel.

Job Expands For Ralston

DENVER (AP) — John Ralston, named head coach of Denver Broncos last Wednesday, has become general manager as well, it was announced by owner Gerald H. Phipps.

Ralston, who came to the National Football League team after coaching Stanford to an upset Rose Bowl victory over Michigan on New Year's Day, had been given the option of being both head coach and general manager.

Melnyk Traded For Two Tigers

BRANDON (CP) — Brandon Wheat Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League have traded right winger Neil Melnyk to Medicine Hat Tigers of the WCHL.

In exchange, Wheat Kings get two players on the Tigers' list, defenceman Leo Parker, 17, and 15-year-old centre Don Murdoch.

Trollers Join Ferries

Fishermen's Wharf has become so congested with wintering boats that they're now tying up wherever they can in the Inner Harbor.

These fishing boats are docking at CPR piers following an agreement between the Victoria Fishermen's Wharfage and Harbor Committee and the CPR for their use until spring.

The reason for the overflow of boats has been attributed to fishing marinas being closed down in Vancouver.

One harbor committee spokesman says Victoria could use space for 500 boats. The CPR docks can handle 40.

Where Never Is Heard An 'Open Line' Word

We might possibly title this report The Curious Case of The Man on the Lam from The Talking Women, but I'll let you be the judge of that. It concerns Mr. Jack Webster, the Superstar of the hot-line radio performers, a brilliant reporter with a gift of the gab who is, far and away, the most influential and listened-to personality west of the Rockies.

Our current interest in Webster is the result of spending a weekend as his guest at Glen Fails Divide, the 100-acre farm he maintains in a spectacular valley known as The Cranberry on Salt Spring Island.

People who have known Webster since he arrived in these climes as a poor, but loud, immigrant boy from the Glasgow slums are at a loss to explain his passion for this remote and rugged real estate.

Why does a city boy, born and bred, hurry each Friday night to willingly tend an assortment of singularly messy cattle, sheep, chickens and ducks? Why does a notoriously gregarious man flee from humanity, each and every weekend, to hack and burn through massive stands of alder, far from the plasma of affection and admiration that sustain him mid-week?

We pondered these questions in those brief moments during our 48-hour visit when Webster did not have us animal-tending, alder-hacking and burning at his side. We pondered them again when, back home, bedded with terminal exhaustion and a particularly nasty virus, we listened to the three hours of open-line dialogue over which he presides so vigorously each and every morning, Monday to Friday.

It soon became apparent that The Talking Woman might provide some clues to the enigma of Jack's private and public lives since at least seven out of 10 callers, it would appear, are female and the cumulative effect might easily overwhelm any man not made of iron.

The casual male listener, eavesdropping on this no-man's-land of morning radio, sampling not merely Webster's show but the variety of others locally and from across the gulf, will be instantly struck by the fact that women communicate in a manner far different than men. Oh, we've known this all along, mind you, but it was never before so open to analysing.

There is a kind of free-flowing pipeline directly from the female brain to the female larynx. Where the average man has great difficulty in moving his thoughts fluidly from their originating source to the barrel-head of vocal expression, the average woman may effortlessly spill her thoughts in the manner of a reflex action.

The moderators of these open-line programs very often find themselves, metaphorically speaking, alternately drawing out the reticent male and clapping a rude hand over the mouths of the unreticent ladies who come on the line. One, in fact, is often moved to bellow in an almost matrimonial way, "Madam! Doll! Will you please listen!"

These moderators (though they'd be better described as advocates) are, themselves, chosen for their unmasculine ability to maintain speech precociously without necessarily having anything to say. Even so, they're no match in verbosity for the average female caller and, indeed, may subconsciously resent them as unfair competition.

None of the stations has as yet tried a girl-type interlocutor, possibly for the reason that the callers might never get on the air.

This gift of women is seen in its most spectacular form in a typical conversation involving two of their species, especially on the telephone. The words fly back and forth in battledore and shuttlecock rhythm, volleys of talk with never a halt for serve or fault. It is, to put it another way, as if conversation was employed to fill that well-known vacuum that nature is said to abhor. While men seldom communicate for any other reason than to transmit information or messages, women, on the other hand, very often communicate purely for the pleasure or comfort they derive from an exercise in sound.

Many types of birds seem to have this same motivation, as the ornithologists often point out. One can listen to the glaucous-winged gulls "talking" for hours from one rock to the other, a dialogue that's clearly meant only as something to occupy the time or for mutual reassurance and not for the end result of arriving at conclusions.

The listener to Webster's daily marathon will note a striking similarity to gull-talk in many of the calls from women who reach for the phone because of a compulsion to establish a verbalizing bond. Talk, in other words, becomes a glue between two bodies.

While they are occasionally nervous it hardly ever seems to cause a blockage in speech and, on the contrary, sometimes becomes self-perpetuating. It is rather like "freeway hypnosis" in which the driver becomes so obsessed with the mileage he's making that he cannot bear to brake at his destination.

Perhaps, just to pursue it an inch further, it is because women rarely consider talk a waste of time and may find satisfaction in the most casual inconsequentials, often with long, irrelevant detours, while the male, being more single-minded, strives to make his point economically.

In limited amounts, perhaps, this kind of thing may be amusing or even entrancing, a bright babble of sound, often as musical as a mountain brook. But when it is administered in a massive, inescapable, daily dosage, up to 15 hours a week, when the ill-tempered man who monitors it has a mind trained and precision-geared to exclude chatter and establish hard facts, it might well lead to madness.

Is this, then, the motivation for Webster's weekend vanishing act into the fastness of The Cranberry where only the sough of the breeze in the alders and the plaintive bleating of the animals intrudes upon his thoughts? Is it simply a healing process before returning to the onslaught of The Talking Woman? Well, we wouldn't be at all surprised.

Potato, Butter, Anyone?

All right, so the consumer price index took a big upward jump last month.

Statistics Canada said it was the biggest November-to-December gain in 10 years, and food prices apparently accounted for a hefty part of that increase.

But what does that mean in terms of the Victoria housewife's grocery budget?

Four companies were approached by the Times. In only one case, that of Kelly Douglas Ltd., which operates the Super-Valu stores, did a spokesman give price details on certain staple items chosen at random by the Times:

A cross-rib roast which on Nov. 5 cost $1.15 per pound had risen to $1.25 by Dec. 19 and to $1.33 by Dec. 29.

For prime-rib, on the same dates, the progression was from $1.29 to $1.35 and $1.39.

From November to December tomatoes rose from 59 cents per pound to 69 cents.

One of the biggest increases of all, 30 per cent, has been on sugar. A 10-pound bag which cost $1.13 Nov. 9 now costs $1.48.

But there's some consolation for those attempting the impossible stretching trick with their budgets: potatoes and butter didn't increase at all.

LICENCE OFFICE AT SHOP CENTRE

Motor vehicle licence renewals will be available through a special office in the Hillside Shopping Centre during February, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

Peterson said he hopes the additional licence office will help reduce lineups at the main motor vehicle office and expressed satisfaction at the co-operation of the shopping centre in providing space.

Three Vancouver area centres will also have licence offices during February.

Operation Overload

St. Joseph's Hospital has had to reduce the number of beds available for elective surgery cases because of the mounting number of urgent cases, executive director Embert Van Tilburg said today.

Dr. Van Tilburg forewarned of the move last month when he said if the steady climb in numbers of urgent cases for operations continued the day is coming when there would be room for nothing else.

There are nine operating rooms at the hospital but only six or seven are in full use weekdays because of a shortage of beds for patients before and after surgery.

There have been no new beds added to St. Joseph's for about 20 years. The hospital has 428 beds.

While Van Tilburg had no figures immediately available to measure how much elective (desirable but not urgent) surgery has been reduced, he said last month it might have to be cut by about a third.

Operating room time at the hospital last month was divided about equally between urgent and emergency cases and elective surgery.

Grits Protest Goyer 'Spies'

The Victoria Liberal Association Thursday protested to Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer that his new security department is "a slur on the integrity of all Canadians."

In a letter to Goyer, the association calls for a constitutional bill of rights to guard against his creation of "a new security force."

"It is a further erosion of privacy, a privacy that has no constitutional safeguard," the letter said.

Goyer, in announcing its creation last September, called the department security planning and research. Consisting of sociologists, criminologists, psychologists, lawyers, police and military officers, its duties were to be solely "research, analysis and planning," Goyer said.

"Who will be the judge as to whether someone or some group is subversive or not, who has checked out the judges? Who will vouch for the checkers?" the Liberal Association asked.

"As the new force has no history of integrity and is not a police force in the ordinary sense of the word, what is to prevent a future administration from using it for political purposes — besides bland assertions that it won't be?"

The association argues that the RCMP, working with city and provincial police, are sufficient enough for security work.

"If radicals (your term) do not resort to or urge others to violence, then, as Canadians, they have every right to express their views."

The letter asks if the names of the members of the new force will be made public and will identify themselves as such while on an investigation. "Or will they be as anonymous and secretive as their files and purposes?"

Goyer was unavailable for comment today on this protest and on an advertisement his department recently placed in British Columbia newspapers seeking a "a regional analyst" to investigate subversive activites in B.C.

The Victoria Labor Council had protested the job advertisement as part of "a spy system."

According to the advertisement, the analyst will "conduct research and studies on a continuous basis on subversive doctrines, violence in society, revolutionary activities and information techniques."

Hopes Look Dim For Bay Village

The fortunes of the proposed Bay Village high-rise development appear dimmed following a silent brush-off Thursday by Victoria council.

Plans for the 29-storey apartment, commerical development were on the council table since Dec. 16, awaiting the 1972 council.

At Thursday's meeting, however, the plans no sooner came off the table than they went back on to it, with no definite date for reconsideration. There was no comment from members of council.

The Bay Village development is planned for the corner of Menzies and Simcoe.

It incorporates more than 70,000 square feet of office and commercial space, plus a 269-foot apartment tower, potentially the tallest in the city.

The development has the blessing of the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission, which last March judged it to be "attractive" and "in keeping with the requirements for the area."

Council also gave basic approval to the plans, but still holds power to grant final approval by signing a special land-use contract necessary for further progress.

Asked following the council meeting why the development was not discussed, Mayor Peter Pollen and planning chairman Mike Young said only that it needs further consideration.

However, they gave no details, nor set a time for further study. The item remains on the council agenda under the heading "unfinished business.

NO TAKERS IN CLEAN AIR OFFER

There have been no claims for the $250,000 prize the provincial government offered 22 months ago for a solution to air pollution for B.C. kraft pulp mills.

Under the terms of the competition, announced by Resources Minister Ray Williston in March of 1970, any individual or company has until Jan. 1, 1973, to get a suitable system into operation.

Also under the terms, Williston was to have appointed an award committee by Jan. 15, 1972 — Saturday — but a spokesman for the Pollution Control Branch said today he had decided to postpone naming the committee as there are no claims to consider.

While no party has claimed the prize, a considerable file of correspondence has accumulated, indicating a number of people are interested, said James McCrossan, information officer for the branch.

Specifications for a winning air pollution abatement system include a lengthy list setting out maximum concentrations of chemicals and particulate matter permitted from all mill stacks.

Conditions also eliminate from the competition all employees of the provincial government and its agencies and require that any abatement system be suitable for both large and small pulp mills.

City Delays Barnard Rezoning Pending Crown Sale

City council decided Thursday to postpone rezoning the federally-owned Barnard waterfront estate until the Crown has sold the land.

The decision came after lawyer George Carruthers of the federal justice department told council "it has no legal authority whatsoever to rezone Crown land."

Carruthers said the British North America Act prevented such a move.

Council responded by tabling its rezoning bylaw, apparently content to let Ottawa take the next step. This could be completion of the sale of the Barnard land for $253,205 to Diamond Developments Ltd., which hopes to build apartments on the site.

Carruthers spoke at a public hearing in council chamber held to air complaints on the city's attempt to rezone the 3.77-acre property from garden apartment to single family use.

PARK PLAY

The city's attempt to rezone the land has been based on a plan to turn the property into a park. The Barnard estate is the last piece of natural waterfront green space remaining in the Victoria West area.

Rezoning would prevent apartment construction and could drive down the selling price well below the $253,205 offered by Diamond Developments.

However, in conducting the public hearing Mayor Peter Pollen was careful to avoid the inference that the city wanted to rezone in order to buy the land at a lower price.

Pollen said the only formal intention of council in rezoning the property was to control the density of any development on it.

CONTROL DENSITY

Pollen was told by a solicitor for Diamond Developments that council cannot rezone the property while in the course of trying to purchase it.

Lawyer J. M. Hutchison said that any attempt to rezone the property in order to force the price down would be struck down by the courts because the action would be "discriminatory and colorable."

Both lawyers provoked strong statements from some members of council, who indicated they are unlikely to bend to arguments that council cannot rezone the property.

Ald. Harold Olafson and Ald. Tom Christie both complained that the federal government's policy of trying to get the highest possible price for its land was inconsistently followed.

A large piece of land referred to as the "Kitsilano" property had been sold to Vancouver city for only $1, they said, but Ottawa would not accept the city's offer of $150,000 for the smaller Barnard property.

SUPPORT

Council received written or verbal support for the rezoning attempt from the New Democratic Party and the Communist Party, as well as from several individuals.

Opposing the attempt, Carruthers said that sections 91 and 91A of the BNA Act spell out the condition that property owned by the Crown cannot be legislated on by another jurisdiction.

"It is submitted that because the title resides in the Crown, the city has no right to rezone the property," he said.

Answering questions, Carruthers said this probably also means that the existing zoning is invalid.

Olafson said the federal government acquired the property in 1960 for $52,000, and today wanted $250,000 for it. He said it is "scandalous" that the federal government "speculates" in land while the other levels of government may not.

Hutchison said the city could always expropriate the land from Diamond Developments once the sale was complete, but the price would be the same as that paid by the developer.

CONFLICT

Taxi driver James Gorst, who said he represented the NDP, said the policy of Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, which is handling the sale for Ottawa, is in conflict with statements by Robert Andras, federal urban affairs minister.

Gorst said he wasn't happy with the "conduct of the negotiations" and added he was going to look further into the matter it says.

Lawyer Hutchison said he would like to see the property developed for the "people concerned and their relationships to one another." He didn't elaborate on his comment.

Council went into a half-hour in-camera meeting before producing its resolution to table the rezoning bylaw.

The resolution said council tabled the matter "having regard to the constitutional problems involved. . . ."

The resolution goes on to say that while the Crown owns the land, it is "not the intention of council to proceed with the matter of rezoning until the Crown has disposed of its interest . . ."

Council will then review the matter it says.

Marriage 2000: Parents' Roles to Be Reversed

● What will marriage be like in the year 2000? Sociologists are now looking into the question and have already predicted changes including the two-tier marriage, trial marriage, and renewable marriage contracts. Following is the last of three articles that look at married life in the future.

By STELLA BRUCE
Special to the Times

NEW YORK (WNS) — Mr. and Mrs. 2000 will finish breakfast, send the children upstairs to wash their faces and get themselves ready for school.

But what's this? It's the husband who receives a peck on the cheek as he waves the family off from the front doorstep and returns to the kitchen to wash up and start the day's chores!

It's the wife who, briefcase in hand, hurries off to catch the bus or commuter train for a day's work in the city.

Is this really what marriage 2000 will be all about? Will the basic roles of husband and wife be completely reversed in only 30 year's time?

According to what are known as "projected studies" using today's facts to forecast tomorrow's trends — it looks as though in many households this is exactly what will happen.

Professor Nicholas Pyzer, in charge of environmental studies at San Francisco University, is only one expert who is quite reconciled to the fact that basic alterations in the accepted pattern of marriage will have become quite commonplace by the year 2000.

Earn More

In other words, if mom is brighter than dad, and can earn more money, it will be quite in order for her to do so. And dad will be stuck with the diapers and dirty dishes, whether he likes the idea or not.

According to the results of a recent survey, 85 per cent of husbands claimed to hold the view that they should do some work in the home — but of course that is very different from doing it all the time.

And when 2,000 girls in the 18 to 25 age-group were asked whether they would be prepared to go out to work leaving their husbands at home, 45 per cent said they would, so long as the money was more than the husband could earn.

Certainly it would seem that Mrs. 2000 is going to be a far more independent-minded woman than today's housewife.

There's even a possibility that although she is married and wears a wedding ring, if she continues a career she will prefer to be known by her maiden name.

The present system, according to dozens of wives questioned by Britain's National Union of Townswomen's Guilds, is out of date, confusing, and can hit the career of a successful businesswoman.

Said one wife: "The single woman who has built up a reputation for herself in a career can find the change of name detrimental." Said another: "It harks back to the days of serfdom!"

Reach Peak

The day of the husband as the undisputed boss of the household will be over, too — if it isn't now. Sociologists note there is a strong trend toward equality which should reach its peak around the year 2000.

Significantly, young people questioned in surveys are already all for a husband-wife equal partnership: 82 per cent opted for this arrangement in one recent study.

But what will happen when both husband and wife want to continue with their careers?

According to Professor Pyzer, it's extremely likely that children won't start formal education until the age of seven, and will continue their studies until their early twenties.

"This is because of increased longevity of the work force," he explains. "Until they start school, children of working mothers will go to play areas, where they will be looked after by 'worker mother'."

Where there is some doubt about which member of the marriage partnership should go out to work, Professor Pyzer envisions a simple examination.

"The person with the most potential," he says, "will become the breadwinner. The other will stay at home!"

How will men feel about an arrangement like this? Naturally it will take some getting used to.

A recent British nationwide survey among young unmarried men revealed that 45 per cent didn't like the idea particularly, but would like to have more time to think it over. Twenty-three percent thought it had a good chance of working. The rest were dead against it.

What most men objected to was not so much staying at home with the kids, but losing the companionship and social life of work.

Enjoy Work

Traditionally men claim to dislike their work, but recent industrial studies have shown that over 70 per cent actually enjoy their working day and would miss it if they were suddenly forced to stay at home.

Says a leading sociologist, Dr. Eunice Mayell: "As leisure increases perhaps by 30 per cent in the next three decades people will have to get used to regarding their homes, not their jobs as the focal point of their lives."

Of course, there's no reason why husbands shouldn't do the household chores. In fact, many of them are more suited to a male physique than a female one.

Expend Calories

Tests have shown that ironing, scrubbing and polishing expend more calories than a day's bricklaying or 200 miles at the wheel of a heavy truck.

Nor is there any apparent reason why they shouldn't cope with children just as well as we do. Dr. Mayell has noted that small children often respond better to a father's calming influence than a mother's.

"Centuries of responsibility in business and industry have given men an authority that is often lacking in a woman's make-up. There's no reason why a man's business training should not be a positive asset to him when organizing a home."

Women's Lot

Already some men have realised that a woman's lot is not half as bad as many of us would have people believe.

A psychologist at a recent New York conference on business stress quoted the case of a steel company president who could hardly wait to get into the kitchen among the dirty dishes the moment he climbed out of his limousine.

Explained the doctor: "He told me it was the only part of his day when he wasn't having to order people around."

For worried businessmen everywhere, the year 2000 could hold the answer to their problems. That's assuming they can last that long . . . .

A Thousand 'Good Days'

elizabeth forbes

Down in the basement of the Douglas Building there's a group of department of public works employees responsible for keeping communications flowing smoothly throughout the Parliament Buildings.

They are the switchboard operators in the telephone exchange.

You never see them. But you do hear them. It's their cheery "good afternoon (or good morning) . . . Parliament Buildings," that is your introduction to any phone call you make there.

These women work in a brightly lighted room, seated on high chair-style stools, at a 12-position private automatic exchange board that services 1,140 locals.

Right now, the daily average on that board is 12,518 calls. Which means that each operator is responsible for more than a thousand of those bright "good mornings" and "good afternoons" in a day.

It's a multiple listings board. If necessary any operator can pick up a call to another operator without difficulty. Lights flash, the soft murmur of voices goes on and hands move in educated precision to "plug-in" on the right lines.

Local Numbers

Behind each operator is a revolving directory to which they can refer, if necessary, for departments or persons serviced by telephone, and with their local numbers, right from the premier down to the commissionaires.

In charge is Mrs. Marjorie Jones. She started with the exchange in days when the B.C. Telephone Company ran a two-position board in the main Parliament Buildings, and sent its own operators to service that board on a two-week rotation system.

In 1950, when the provincial government took over and decided to run its own show, she became one of its first permanent operators.

She helped compile the new directories, to allot the local numbers and in 1951, when a four-position board was installed, to train the operators. One of whom, Mrs. Eileen Greenwood, is still with her today.

As departments of government expanded and new ones were added, the telephone exchange kept pace.

When the first B.C. Tel board was installed in 1909 there were only 80 lines and the operator "did the ringing herself." In 1951, when government took over, there were 700 lines and a plug-in ring system was installed.

1,140 Locals

Today, as well as the 1,140 locals there is a Tel-Pak service that gives direct access to 13 cities and towns in the province.

Right now, the operators are preparing to handle the increased work of the coming legislative session.

The switchboard will be open by 8:30 a.m. and it will be fully manned each day "as long as the House sits, even if it is into the early hours of the morning."

THAWING TEMPERATURES turned frozen turf into shoe-stealing mush in Boston's Public Garden this week to the chagrin of Jane Galvin, who was trying to take a shortcut between walkways. Temperatures in the city soared to 54 degrees, only one degree off the record high for that date.

Universal Symbols Communicate

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hobo spots the figure of a cat carved on the side of a barn. He whistles a happy tune and taps on the nearby farmhouse door, confident that he'll get a meal.

Instead of a cat, he had seen on the siding a "T" tiled to the right or two circles overlapping, he would have beat it — but fast.

The cat, "T" and circles are part of the symbol code tramps use to communicate. Cat means a kind lady will answer the door." The tiled "T" means a beating awaits you. And the overlapping circles? They say "Police here frown on hobos."

Just as the hobos rely on symbols, you do, too. People do the world over. There are more than 20,000 in use, read faster than the written word and "a kind of shorthand to the brain," says Henry Drefuss.

The name of the industrial designer, considered the world's authority on symbols by virtue of his new book, Symbol Sourcebook (McGraw Hill), may not ring a bell with you. But chances are more than one thing in your home was designed by him. The telephone? Yes. Also sewing machines, refrigerators, thermostats, safes.

The hobo signs and other symbols from the Dreyfuss book are featured in a new exhibit at the Hallmark Gallery in New York. Dreyfuss said though symbols are understood practically everywhere, they are not a universal language.

Speak Symbols

"You can't speak symbols the way you can a language," he said in an interview.

But some classes of symbols have a universal quality about them. Take music. It's written and read the same the world over. The same for symbols used by choreographers in charting dance routines, particularly ballet.

Symbols used on farm machinery, trucks and automobiles are necessary to their operation by persons who can't read the operator's books, according to Dreyfuss. They usually are on the various knobs for ignition, lights, brake, horn.

"As the world shrinks and as complicated products from one nation are sold to the people of other nations, the need for symbols increases," he said.

Symbols in the exhibit include everything from the hobo markings, religious symbols and international road signs to symbols used in music, agriculture, ecology, safety-warning, astronomy, meteorology, engineering, medicine, business and computer-ciphers.

The symbols range from the poignant "lost child" (silhouette with hands covering eyes) and "food processing" (figure with chef's hat) to symbols for a nanny and billy goat and a "keep frozen" sign showing a penguin with bow tie.

Good Place

The hobo symbols are most fascinating, of course. There are 60. An X inside a circle means good place for a handout. A plus sign indicates "religious talk gets free meal."

And that best known symbol, the skull and crossbones? Drefuss said when this was shown to a group of youngsters, they all yelled "pirates." But when the same symbol was shown on a medicine bottle, the boys and girls yelled "poison!"

For the technically minded there was a computer symbol meaning "functional unit ready." It looked like a round face with two staring eyes and a square mouth.

The universal peace symbol, introduced by the pacifist Lord Bertrand Russell at Aldermaston, England, in 1958, is composed of the semaphore code letters N and D (for nuclear disarmament) with a circle around it. The circle signifies "total."

The American dollar sign, contrary to some beliefs, was not created by superimposing the letters U and S with the bottom cut off the U. It was adapted from the Spanish peso symbol, with an extra stroke added through the S.

And what about status symbols? There were none in the exhibit, but Dreyfuss said they are very real.

"They include a blonde in a mink coat, a Rolls Royce and all such things," he said.

Runaway Problem 'Enormous'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A pretty, 17-year-old blonde described to a U.S. Senate subcommittee Thursday her experiences as a runaway from a troubled home, ranging from jail to rape to incarceration in a mental hospital.

The testimony came from Becky Loveless of Arlington, Va., one of a group of youngsters who testified before the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee which is looking into the problems of runaway youth.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Birch Bayh, (Dem.-Ind.), is considering $30 million legislation to establish a nationwide network of halfway houses to help runaway teenagers. Bayh termed the runaway problem "enormous," involving an estimated million children every year.

Becky, who several times utilized the services of a runaway house in Washington, described her experiences as a runaway from an affluent Washington suburb to the city streets.

She said she was raped, arrested and jailed on a trip to Miami, Fla. and locked up in the psychiatric ward of a Washington hospital for a brief period.

"I had some hard times," she said.

An administration spokesman opposed the bill, saying the government already has statutory authority to establish homes for runaways. The witness, Phillip Rutledge of the Department of Health, education and Welfare, also complained that the Bayn bill would not give the government control over operation of the houses.

ADAMS . . . slams Senate Report

'Real' Poverty Report Bleak Picture

By BRYAN McGILL
Times Staff

Canada's newest anti-poverty crusader, Ian Adams, breezed into the newsroom Thursday afternoon, right after this $10,000-a-year journalist had heard from the bank.

The cheque the newspaperman had tendered, to cover repairs in excess of $125 for a Japanese auto that constantly self-destructs, had bounced.

It was just one more manifestation of my continuing economic strangulation — and it had to be dealt with before payday.

All this, and Adams wants to talk about poverty? We jumped into a cab and headed for the airport — it was to be the only time he had to discuss his favorite subject, poverty in Canada.

Adams, of Montreal-Toronto, was in a rush to catch a plane after a day's visit to Victoria in his tour to promote The Real Poverty Report, a book he wrote with three others after all left the Senate Committee on Poverty last April.

Not Surprised

He managed to toss off a few comments that had the cabbie, a $6,000-a-year bachelor, listening with all ears and this writer, a $10,000-a year bachelor, not at all surprised.

For instance, more than 7,000,000 Canadians are living near, on or below the poverty line in an economic system that not only perpetuates but creates poverty.

Adams arrives at this total through what he calls the relative poverty line, which is half the average living standard of Canadians which, in 1971, was $10,200.

To put it another way: "People are living in poverty if their income gives them a standard of living that is 50 per cent lower than the average standard of living of society as a whole."

Adjusted to family size, poverty for a single person would be $2,200, for a couple, $3,600, for a family of four, $5,100, and for a family of 10, $9,400.

Adams, author of The Poverty Wall, was hired by the Senate committee to write the official poverty report. He quit because the chairman, Liberal Senator David Croll, was "afraid to tell the people why they are poor."

Quitting with him to write a dissident report were fellow writer William Cameron and two economists, Brian Hill and Peter Penz.

The Senate report "treats only the symptoms" and, in fact, "guarantees the continuance of poverty," Adams said.

(Incidentally, at the time Adams quit the committee, about six months before it issued its report, it had run up a $1 million bill for studying poverty.)

A key recommendation of the Senate report, establishment of a guaranteed annual income, will create the same dependency as the welfare system does now, and, with its 70 per cent negative income rate, will actually be "a disincentive program" in getting people to work.

"Who wants to work to make 30 cents out of every dollar they earn? What is going to happen is guaranteed annual income will make bums out of people."

Adams said most of Canada's unemployed are between the ages of 16 and 24.

Those who are working for average pay are "getting gouged for all they're worth." As an example, a $5,000-a-year wage earner has 60 per cent of his earnings directly or indirectly taxed, while someone who makes between $15,000 and $18,000 is taxed between 30 and 35 per cent.

Asked why Canadians, with so many of them poor, keep voting in parties and politicians who maintain such an unequal system, Adams said Canadians possess "the lowest kind of political awareness in the whole western world."

He blames this on media which are being "hopelessly compromised" by their connections with political, bureaucratic and business elites. "The media are so effective in obscuring social realities that most Canadians still have no political comprehension of their objective best interest."

Offer Solutions

The four poverty dissidents offer solutions, in detail, in their book, with the aim of almost-equal incomes for workers. These include centralized collective bargaining, creation of new and better jobs through Manpower, and well-planned, expansive investment.

Adams, 34, who was brought up in near-slum conditions and considers himself basically a worker with "the middle-class skills of journalism," said his book, written in everyday language, is intended for "the working guy."

He said in his travels and talks he has noted an awareness is beginning to dawn on many workers that should bring key political changes.

The cabbie didn't need any convincing: "It's going to happen within 10 years . . . The time is over for politicians who run politics," he chimed in from the front seat.

Prairie Women Pilots Seek an Exclusive Club

SASKATOON (CP) — Just when many women's organizations are admitting men, five women met recently to set up a new chapter of an all-women international organization.

The five are aircraft pilots and they've made application for a Saskatchewan chapter in The Ninety-Nines, Inc., an international organization of licensed women pilots.

Blanche Moxley of Rosetown, Sask., who was named chairman of the group, said she knows of no organization for pilots that excludes women, but she feels there still is a definite need for The Ninety-Nines.

Its purpose is to provide a close relationship among women pilots and to unite them in any movement that may be for their benefit or for aviation in general.

"It is also to keep them interested in flying and there is a safety factor," said Mrs. Moxley.

"Flying is a skill and women pilots need upgrading, to be familiar with air regulations and procedures . . . and to do some flying on their own where they are completely responsible for the aircraft."

She said too many women are satisfied to be co-pilots.

The Ninety-Nines encourages women to go out on their own, check weather, file flight plans and handle aircraft by themselves.

Three other women have indicated they would like to be charter members of the Saskatchewan chapter, Mrs. Moxley said. They were unable to fly in for the discussion however.

About 50 women pilots in Saskatchewan would be eligible for membership.

The chapter would be the fourth in Western Canada. Others are Alberta, Greater Winnipeg and western Manitoba.

The name is derived from the number of charter members of the organization, formed to further the role of women in aviation. The organization was launched Nov. 2, 1929, at a meeting at Curtiss Field, Long Island, N.Y., and elected Amelia Earhart the first president.

Mrs. Moxley said the group has a convention each year and in 1972 it will be held in Toronto.

Any woman who holds a current pilot's licence is eligible, Mrs. Moxley said.

Cross-country flight experience is encouraged through sponsorship of air races. The best-known internationally is the Powder Puff Derby, an annual all-woman transcontinental handicapped speed race of 2,300 to 3,000 miles.

Incidentally, husbands of Ninety-Nines are called 49½-ers and, according to information from the international office, they are strong supporters of all the Ninety-Nine activities.

Campus Gets Help

HALIFAX (CP) — The lanky man dressed casually in sweater and slacks sat in his comfortable third-floor office overlooking the Dalhousie University campus where 7,200 students meandered from class to class.

The man, modish with long grey hair, is there to help his fellow student, his professor, the administrative staff. Anyone who wants to have his complaint acted upon.

Ian Gordon Chambers of neighboring Dartmouth, a third-year law student at Dalhousie and a Rhodes Scholar, is also the university's first ombudsman.

Likes Job

He likes his job, the people he meets, the challenges he encounters, despite the average of 20 hours a week he must put in at little pay and still maintain his grades in law school. The office of ombudsman was established last fall by the university senate at the request of the student council.

Meets Demands

Ian says it was set up on a one-year experimental basis to meet the demands of students as the university grows and the structures become more complex. He feels the office is accessible and provides an outlet for campus problems.

It seems to take on a new dimension each day, he says. For example, the clerical staff at the university is not organized.

"Where do they go for advice?" asks Ian. "The local labor federation? No. They come here and the situation is being looked into."

He and his assistant, first-year law student Jack Aronson of Halifax, have dealt with a multitude of problems including cheating on exams, student loan problems, drug referral cases, staff employment problems and personal difficulties.

What about student unrest, political activism and anti-establishment thinking?

Dalhousie has a good record in that regard and "I have to attribute that to the administration," says Ian, noting that the administration has always made it a policy to provide outlets, a sounding board, before major problems arise.

Not Coming

"Sure there are problems and we realize many students with difficulties aren't coming to the office," he admits.

The students who come to the office really need help or advice and this office can speed up the administrative process, says Ian. Some might charge the office is just a token position created by the university but "I haven't heard that charge."

Death 'Long, Happy Trip'

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Now I know that I have truly seen everything! My husband and I have owned and operated a small florist shop for the last 15 years, and I have encountered some unusual situations. But the one I had yesterday beats them all.

Two middle-aged women came into the shop together and asked what I had to offer in the way of a "Bon Voyage" wreath, so I showed them what I had in my catalogue. I asked if a man or a woman was going abroad, and one of the women replied, angrily: "It is for my sister's funeral!"

I must have shown them my amazement because she then added: "If you were a true Christian you would consider death as the beginning of a long, happy trip."

Abby, I do consider myself a Christian, and I refused to sell that woman a "Bon Voyage" wreath for her sister's funeral.

When my husband came in, I told him what had happened and he laughed and said: "You should have sold it to her."

I was very much upset by my husband's response as I have always considered death to be a very solemn occasion. Maybe you or some of your readers could tell me what they would have done. — Shocked.

DEAR SHOCKED: I vote with your husband. How one views death is a highly personal matter. If the woman wanted to wish her deceased sister a happy trip, I'd have sold her a "Bon Voyage" wreath.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been friends with another couple for a number of years. We are in each other's homes frequently. Lately the woman has been doing something that I find very annoying. After we arrive at her home, by invitation, she picks up her latest knitting or needlepoint project and starts working away, stopping occasionally to count stitches, consult the instructions, and to admire her handiwork.

She does join in the conversation, but rather half-heartedly, as though she feels obligated to make a token comment now and then.

I think she is being somewhat rude. Am I right or wrong? — Bugged.

DEAR BUGGED: Right. She is making a statement: "The company isn't sufficiently fascinating to warrant my total attention."

Don't let the annoyance build up. Tell her. But don't you use a needle.

DEAR ABBY: My wife just had a hysterectomy. Does that mean it is the end of her sex life? She is only 34. — Wondering.

DEAR WONDERING: Absolutely not! In fact, it could very well be the beginning of a better sex life because she no longer has to worry about becoming pregnant.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

OBSERVES BAN

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Anne said it was "a beautiful beast." The Shah of Iran said, "It's yours." The ministry of agriculture said no.

It all started when Queen Elizabeth's daughter attended the Shah's celebration feast commemorating the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian Empire. In Iran she spotted a $26,000, two-year-old colt in the Shah's private stables.

Wednesday the ministry of agriculture ruled the horse could not enter the country because of a ban on all horses originating in the Middle East.

A ministry spokesman said African horse sickness, the reason behind the ban, was prevalent in Iran.

"There would simply be no possibility of an exception," the spokesman said, even for a princess.

Women 'No Joke'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A woman vice-president in 1972 and a woman president in 1976?

Yes, says Betty Friedan, leading figure in the women's liberation movement.

"It's not a joke and we're not a joke," she said in a recent interview.

"We're 53 per cent of the population of the country. We are sick of white middle-aged, middle-class male businessmen and lawyers trying to speak for everyone."

Bunny Girls Gang Up On Women's Lib

LONDON (FWF) — The bunny girls at London's Playboy Club are up in arms. This is no industrial dispute. The cute young women who staff the elegant gambling edifice in posh Park Lane are quite content to be part of Hugh Hefner's girlie empire.

It's the women's liberation movement that has caused all the fuss. The movement has been using bunny girls as a butt for their propaganda. Female adherents to the women's lib cause have frequently referred to the girls as "sexual objects" being exploited for the pleasure of men. Now the bunnies feel it's high time they fired a few defensive salvos.

"The trouble with the women's lib crowd is that they know they couldn't do our job, so they feel they must attack it," claims 22-year-old Teresa Tunstall.

Teresa has been a bunny now for the past three years. She believes that most girls would love to be in her shoes.

"I've got a super job here, and it is different from any other job. I like working at night. It can be exciting. I love getting all dressed up in my bunny costume, and meeting all sorts of interesting people.

"Who do these Women's lib females think they are, calling us sexual objects all the time? I am doing this job because I want to do it. Are they happy in their work, or do they just 'knock' others because they are so discontented themselves?"

Teresa obviously has strong feelings on the subject. She has aired her views on television before a formidable audience of women's lib enthusiasts. Teresa emerges unscathed.

"Let's face it," she adds, "women are just as liberated as they want to be. Women's lib is fighting a losing battle because we are liberated."

Teresa is just one of the decorative task force of 150 girls who flit through the Playboy Club dressed as croupiers or cocktail waitresses. All the girls wear the daffy little bunny tail on their posteriors and the bunny ears as headgear.

The bunny girls are well protected. They have a bunny mother on the premises to see that all is above board. She is also there to give them advice on make-up, hair-do and general demeanour.

'MS.' EDITOR JOINS GROUP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Women's Action Alliance (WAA), a clearing house of information for women's rights groups, was launched this week.

Gloria Steinem, writer and editor of "MS." magazine, a member of WAA's board of directors, said the tax-free organization would help women in their work on local action projects that attack the special problems of women such as social dependence, sex discrimination, and lack of advancement opportunity.

The alliance will provide consultants who will give advice on individual problems, Miss Steinem said. For example, she said, an expert on women's studies for high school, college, or in adult education will be available to help set up courses.

WAA also will compile a directory of organizations that offer help to women in areas like job discrimination, child care, and health and welfare needs.

"It will also compile a list of sympathetic women in the professions, like lawyers, doctors, and psychiatrists, who are ready to serve women in their areas," Miss Steinem said.

Women Win Dispute

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — Faced with court action, town council has voted five to two to delete a clause in a labor agreement which permits the town to fire civic female employees once they marry.

The attorney-general's department was to have brought the case to Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench Jan. 17 under a section of the Human Rights Act which bars discrimination by sex in hiring practices.

Beth Aitken, an employee of the western Manitoba town, last fall requested that council allow her to continue employment following her marriage, scheduled for April this year.

Council for the town of 9,000 refused at that time to discontinue its 25-year-old practice.

After the Dauphin local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees complained to the Manitoba Human Rights Commission that town council had refused to delete the clause permitting the practice, the commission requested the attorney-general's department to initiate court action.

Council deleted the clause this week after Solicitor E. W. Hawkins said the town would be required to file a statement of defence.

He said the provincial government could amend the Human Rights Act so it would take precedence over any town agreement.

GUIDING BIG JOB

NEW YORK (UPI) — High school guidance counsellors should do more than "match talents to tasks," says Harold L. Munson, professor of education at the University of Rochester. In his book, "Foundations of Developmental Guidance" (Allyn and Bacon), the nationally known authority on counselling urges counsellors "to balance three functions — counselling the student, consulting with parents and teachers, and co-ordinating job and college placement services."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Saturday, Jan. 15, 1972
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't go too fast. If you rush, you only have to bear expense of retracing steps. Act accordingly. Review contractural obligations. Bring ambitions, desires in line with reality. Improve public relations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be slightly ahead of your time. Opposition comes from those of little faith. Hold fast to beliefs, principles. You may have to be in touch with one at a distance. Do so. Spread message.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You find that holding in displeasure is destructive. Share feelings. You might be pleasantly surprised at response. Emphasis is on learning, teaching. Money conflict is but temporary.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Impatience could defeat your purpose. There are legal and emotional considerations. Domestic and professional conflict could erupt. Key is to measure values, time moves. Let mate, partner take initiative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Obtain valid hint from Taurus message. Progress may seem agonizingly slow. But maintaining steady pace will eventually get you where you're going. Know this — proceed accordingly. Check diet.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Path is smoothed by one who seemed to lack interest. However, this should not be used as excuse to be careless with money, possessions. Conditions change rapidly. Strive to maintain balance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What has been taken for granted now is apt to be explosive. There are sudden changes — there also is likelihood of personal publicity. Buy yourself a present. Be happy and, thus, create a more harmonious home atmosphere.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may, at times, feel as though you were walking on eggs. In actuality, you may have difficulty separating facts from wishful thinking. Key now is to turn mystery to your own advantage. Be discreet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Personal magnetism flows; money situation is brighter. You get chance to prove assertions. Professional superiors back your position. Strike while iron is hot. True, this is cliche. But now it does apply.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cycle is such that reason will emerge from apparent confusion. Finish what you start. Aries is involved. You tend now to be Martian, aggressive. That's okay, but be sure you pick your spots.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New deal is upcoming. You may not believe it — even while in progress. A bright light could come into your life. Leo could figure prominently. Keep a secret. You are tested. Private matter should remain confidential.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spend for quality. Those who offer substitutes do not have your best interests at heart. Follow through on hunch. One who taught you in past is apt to make reappearance. Express gratitude without being maudlin.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual, compelling voice; you are in cycle which, if single, leads to marriage. If married, there could be addition to family. Married or single, you get more responsibility and chance for greater rewards.

Moores Says People Won't Get 'Overnight Miracles' From Him

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Although he isn't predicting "miracles overnight," Progressive Conservative Frank Moores is finally getting set to take over the leadership of Newfoundland — more than two months after defeating Premier Joseph Smallwood at the polls.

Mr. Smallwood announced Thursday his Liberal government reign of nearly 23 years will end Monday or Tuesday when he hands over his resignation to Lieutenant-Governor E. John A. Harnum.

Mr. Moores, whose party won 21 of the 42 legislature seats in the Oct. 28 provincial election, plans to appoint a 12 or 14-member cabinet in the next few days. The Liberals won 20 seats and Tom Burgess, leader of the New Labrador Party was returned in Labrador West.

Mr. Smallwood, 71, said he will spend much of his remaining time as premier cleaning out his office of almost 400,000 letters and other personal papers collected since he led Newfoundland into Confederation in 1949.

The premier's announced resignation came as no surprise following a ruling Tuesday by two Newfoundland Supreme Court judges.

The judges turned down a Liberal petition asking that St. Barbe South, won by a PC candidate in the election, be declared vacant on grounds that a recount could not be completed because 105 ballots were accidentally burned.

They ruled the Conservative candidate was the winner.

Mr. Smallwood had said at the time his government had the right to retain power until the St. Barbe South dispute was settled.

He told a news conference Thursday the government would have resigned immediately after the ruling but two elected non-Liberals had approached him to express their dissatisfaction with the Conservative party.

"I considered that in the circumstances it was right and proper for me to take a few hours to consider the matter."

But if the two made offers to switch sides it made no difference to Mr. Smallwood's decision to resign.

He refused to identify the two and declined to say whether one was Mr. Burgess, rumored Wednesday to be considering a deal with the Liberals.

Mr. Burgess said Nov. 10 he would support the PCs while remaining a member of the New Labrador Party.

He arrived in St. John's Thursday night, disappointed by a statement by Mr. Moores that he was unlikely to be offered a cabinet post.

Mr. Burgess said in an interview he believed he still held a balance of power and could precipitate an election at any time.

YELOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Northwest Territories council is all for improving communication links in the north.

Money Films in Short Supply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stars' names are on the marquees: W. C. Fields. Mae West. Charlie Chaplin in Modern Times.

Think it's all from 30 to 40 years ago? Not on your five-cent popcorn.

These are today — 1970s — new billings for current performances, "revivals" that underscore a recurring problem within the movie industry — a shortage of product.

The problem is not a new one, nor a numerical one — there were about 50 more films released in the United States in 1971 than the previous year — but a complex one involving booking dates and box-office returns.

"I don't think there's any shortage of pictures, but there is a shortage of pictures that make money," Samuel Z. Arkoff, head of American International Pictures, recently told a convention of theatre owners.

Figures show 454 films released during the first 11 months of 1971. This is 60 more than a similar period the previous year.

The rise in number is primarily attributable to the growth of the independents.

But, says Eugene Picker, president of the National Association of Theatre Owners, the pictures from the independents, for the most part, "are not quality, not those that develop themselves into box-office pictures."

JOB FUNDS APPROVED

Two more Greater Victoria projects, totalling $33,000, have been approved under the federal government's local initiatives program for creating winter jobs.

Central Saanich Mayor Archie Galbraith said Thursday the municipality has received $18,000 for construction of walking trails, while Reg Clarkson, director of the Victoria Self-Help Society, announced the group is to get $15,000 for maintenance work and improvements at Gonzales beach and Mount Douglas Park.

The Central Saanich project calls for the development and brushing out six miles of footpaths, plus clearing the underbrush in Centennial Park on Wallace Drive and erecting guard rails over culverts and creeks.

The Victoria Self-Help Society's project, Clarkson said, will be carried out under the direction of the city parks department and will employ seven persons over a five-month period starting Feb. 1.

METRIC SYSTEM PLANNERS NAMED BY OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP) — Twelve appointments to the preparatory commission for metric conversion were announced today by the department of industry, trade and commerce.

The commission was established last June after publication of the government's white paper on metric conversion in January, 1971. Three appointments are yet to be announced.

The white paper urged conversion to the increasingly used metric system from the systems of measurement most commonly in use in Canada today.

Converson to the metric system would mean that metric measurements based on metres, cubic metres and grams would replace such measurements as feet, gallons and pounds.

A metre is 3.2808 feet and a gram is about 1-28 of an ounce.

The commission, chaired by S. M. Gossage, former vice-president of Canadian Pacific Railway will first meet in Ottawa Wednesday, Jan. 19.

TASK OUTLINED

Its task is to prepare a program for metric conversion and to ensure that conversion programs in different parts of the economy are phased and co-ordinated.

The new commissioners are: Maurice Archer, Montreal, vice-president of research and development, Canadian National Railways; L. H. Chater, Hamilton, general engineering manager, The Steel Co. of Canada Ltd.; A. J. Groleau, Montreal, executive vice-president of operations, Bell Canada;

D. D. Morris, Vancouver, former vice-president of operation, Cominco Ltd.; Mrs. Betty Robinson, Saskatoon, former national vice-president, Consumers Association of Canada; T. A. Somerville, Montreal, president and director, E. G. M. Cape and Co.; G. G. E. Steele, Ottawa, president of Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada;

A. S. Tirrell, Toronto, United Steelworkers of America; J. W. E. Thomas, Brockville, Ont., director and vice-president, Phillips Cables; A. D. Cohen, Winnipeg, president, General Distributors of Canada Ltd.; Pierre Demers, Montreal, president, Demers, Gordon, Baby Ltd.; and Rejean Parent, Montreal, director of industrial engineering service, Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Manitoba Minister Urges Media 'Be Fair'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Howard Pawley, minister in charge of the Manitoba government's compulsory auto insurance plan, called a special news conference Thursday to appeal to the news media to show greater fairness in reporting about the insurance scheme.

"All I am requesting is that the reporting be fair and that they give both sides of a point of view," Pawley told the news conference.

He was accompanied by Automotive Trades Association president Keith Ross, Manitoba Public Insurance Corp. general manager, J. O. Dutton, and representatives of auto body shops in the province.

Pawley said he was particularly concerned with recent newspaper reports which left the impression auto body shops in the province were going bankrupt because of slow payments from the insurance corporation.

He said the government welcomed criticism providing it was fair and factual.

In the matter of the auto body shops, Ross said there had been no increase under the government plan, which went into operation Nov. 1, in the number of complaints to the association concerning slow paymept.

Firm Fined

EDMONTON (CP) — Pipeline News Ltd. was fined $15,000 Thursday by provincial judge C. H. Rolf on six charges of possesison of obscene material for the purposes of distribution.

The fine was levied by Judge Rolf after guilty pleas were entered by the company in an unusual sitting of the court at a warehouse in the west end of the city where the material had been stored. The court moved to the warehouse because of the volume of material that was to have been introduced as evidence. About 29,000 paperback books, magazines and tabloids were involved.

Controls Shunned

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta hog producers don't want any type of government control or quotas, Bruce Jeffery, manager of the Alberta Hog Producers Marketing Board, said Thursday.

"A quota system," Dr. Jeffery said in an interview, "assumes a relatively fixed domestic market that shall be shared, not necessarily equitably, by a number of predetermined producers."

'All Should Share'

EDMONTON (CP) — Calgary Power Ltd. is vitally concerned with preservation of Lake Wabamun but the cost should be shared by all users of the lake 40 miles west of here, Don Sabey, the company's legal counsel, said Thursday.

Sabey told the Alberta Energy Resources Conservation Board that Calgary Power "recognizes the need to maintain water at the highest possible level" and is willing to take the lead in research to control water temperatures and, if necessary, to control heavy weed growth.

FRIGID RECORDS FOR PRAIRIES

By The Canadian Press

Record low temperatures were recorded overnight across the prairies for the third straight day.

Temperatures plunged to more than 40 degrees below in many centres and no immediate relief was forecast.

The temperatures were expected to moderate slightly on Saturday but would still range between 10 and 30 below in many regions.

A front building on the west coast was expected to bring warmer weather to many regions on Sunday, however, with temperatures climbing slightly above zero for the first time in days.

In Calgary, a Chinook pattern is expected to boost the temperature to 20 above Saturday and in the 30s Sunday.

One of the coldest places in the prairie provinces was Fort Chipewyan in Northeastern Alberta which reported 52 below overnight, breaking the Jan. 14 record of 51 below in 1971.

Edmonton International Airport reported a record 42 below, four degrees colder than the 1971 record of 37 below.

Peace River in Northwestern Alberta set a record of 45 below, compared with a previous low for the date of 39 below in 1969.

Medicine Hat hit a record 38 below, against 37 below in 1950.

Thompson was a cold spot in Manitoba at 39 below. The Pas dropped to 37 below while Dauphin and Winnipeg were 35 below. Brandon was a relatively balmy 34 below.

University Offers Legal Counselling

CALGARY (CP) — A legal counselling service is to begin at the University of Calgary next week.

Dan Jenkins, president of the university's pre-law society, said the counselling started because 60 per cent of the calls to the university crisis centre concerned legal problems.

"Many students have had bad first experiences with the law, so by implementing this service, we hope they will see the law and lawyers working for them in their best interest."

Seven local lawyers are donating their time to give advice only; the service does not involve such things as court appearances.

The students' union is paying $1,000 to provide the counselling and those who seek advice will be charged $1 to "weed out those who would abuse the service."

PREMIERS WANT MORE CONTROL OF TRAINING

REGINA (CP) — The Prairie Economic Council hopes to attain greater provincial control of manpower training programs and shift some of the financial responsibility for provincial corrections programs to the federal government.

Council members — the premiers of the three Prairie provinces — told a news conference following a day-long meeting Thursday that the federal government has assumed an "unduly dominant position in the decision-making process with respect to manpower requirements and programs."

Premiers Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, Peter Lougheed of Alberta and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, agreed on the need to improve the "relevance of manpower training programs within the provinces to meet individual needs."

Schreyer said the topic of a police training college on the Prairies was dropped from the agenda and substituted by the question of corrections policy.

"We discussed the advisability of approaching the government of Canada with respect to cost sharing of the whole field of corrections," he said.

"We have referred the matter to the attorneys-general and they will consider it in some depth . . . I contend the federal government does have a greater obligation in the field of corrections than it is exercising at the moment."

Sight, Sound Barriers Around Your Property

Hedges have never been as important with Canadian gardeners as in England where most of our gardening practices originated.

Here we have needed boundary markers, windbreakers, and snow fences. Now we talk of visual and sound barriers for our homes and properties.

This brings us back to plants suitable for hedges, but we are not "hedged" in our choice either literally or figuratively.

For one thing, we do not need a continuous barrier all around the property, but we do want living plant barriers at specific points.

Just as important in our smaller gardens today is our need for attractive plants to perform the duties of barriers. No longer can we afford either the air space or the ground space demanded by such traditional plants as laurel, yew and privet; nor are we willing to forego in our barrier shrubs the flowers, berries, and foliage interest we demand from the remainder of the garden.

This brings us back to selection of plant material.

Densely growing conifers are great sound barriers, and if planted ahead of the time of actual need, will fill out and grow sufficiently tall to give satisfaction.

★ ★ ★

In place of a continuous row of the same plant, visualize in groups of three some of the varietal forms of Chamaecyparis lawsoniana which you already know. Planted in triangular pattern with say, groups of Taxus (yew), with less strategic areas filled with groups of one kind of deciduous flowering shrubs, a boundary line will fulfill all needs as the years pass.

There will be dense spots where needed for sound and sight barriers, there will be interest through the 12 months, and there will still be a sense of spaciousness and airness within the garden which is lacking with a high continuous hedge.

All these attributes are necessary in today's gardens, where we are spending more of our new-found leisure.

Shrubs having thorns or spines have a place too, but remember that what is objectionable to intruders is likely to be a nuisance to you as a gardener.

Berberis is lovely in flower and for its berries; the leaves of some varieties are evergreen; but the spines make weeding at the base difficult to put it mildly.

Planting a few of these lovely shrubs in one group of a hedge gives youa definite change of plant pattern, but a complete row of them would bring difficulties.

Boundary hedges and barriers must have a maintainance strip allowed on each side to permit you to tend the plants on the far side while still on your own property.

A good thing to remember is that "your rights end where the other fellow's (or a municipal authority's) begins."

SOLUTION MONDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When film star Omar Sharif was asked recently, "Why do you spend so much time playing bridge when you could be making movies," he shook his head sadly and replied: "The real question is why I spend so much time making movies when I could be playing bridge."

It is perhaps quite difficult for the non-bridge player to understand how the man who was nominated for an Academy Award in 1965 for his performance in Dr. Zhivago could be so immersed in what could be considered an idle pastime. Yet, to Sharif, "bridge has been one of the most satisfying activities in my life." And when one can afford to think in terms of displacing his vocation with what he deems to be a stimulating and gratifying avocation, his rationale becomes understandable.

Here is an example of Sharif in action at the bridge table. The deal arose in a rubber-bridge game. He was in the South seat.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

After the king of clubs had won the opening lead, West continued with the club ace, East discarding a diamond. The deuce of clubs was then led, East ruffing. East exited with a diamond, Sharif's ace winning.

It was quite obvious that the success of South's contract depended on the avoidance of the loss of a heart trick. More specifically, the issue was: Who had the heart queen, East or West? Sharif had no problem in determining the location of that key card.

To tricks five, six and seven, the ace, king, and queen of trumps were cashed, gathering in the outstanding pieces. Then came a diamond to dummy's king, after which dummy's remaining diamond was ruffed by South. The time had now come for reconstruction.

When East had failed to follow suit to the second club lead (at trick two), West became revealed as the possesor of six clubs. West had also followed suit to both three spade and three diamond leads. Thus West had, at the most a singleton heart.

At trick 10, Sharif led a heart to the board's king, West following suit. All of West's original 13 cards were now accounted for. The deuce of hearts was led next, and when East played low Sharif finessed his jack, with the absolute assurance that the jack would win the trick.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"I ordered some cans," said Bert, handing his partner a sheet of paper. "Here's the bill, and of course they didn't add any tax."

Ben checked the amount. "Just the two prices," he commented. "But look at this. The dollars are the number you got at 49 cents each, and the cents are the number you got at 39 cents."

He was right, so what was the amount?

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Helping One Another to Keep Sane

Years ago, I became aware of an excellent organization called Recovery, Incorporated, founded in 1937 by my friend, the late Dr. Abraham A. Low, a fine psychiatrist in Chicago. Dr. Low had the good sense to realize that a psychiatrist simply does not have enough time in any one day to give his patients as much attention and help as they need. Dr. Low also realized that patients often can help one another greatly.

I was enthusiastic about Dr. Low's idea, because I have seen it happen so often in my practice. I remember a woman who came to me with a cancer of the rectum. When I told her she would have to have an operation in which a stoma (opening of her bowel) would be made into her abdominal wall, she said she could not face such an operation and would rather die. Fortunately, I knew that a woman who had recovered well from the same type of surgery was sitting in my waiting room. I called her in and had her talk to my patient.

The woman facing the operation was so grateful to be able to talk to the woman who had "been through it." Immediately she began asking questions about the operation; and what interested me much was that she no longer was interested in talking to me about the problem. She was so reassured that she agreed to go ahead with the operation. As a result, she lived happily for years.

Today there is an Ostomy Association, in which many persons who have had this type of surgery help and encourage one another.

Dr. Low's idea has turned out to be a good one. He first introduced the idea of self-help groups to psychiatrists at a meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in 1939. His first group members were psychiatric patients newly released from the Psychiatric Institute of the University of Illinois. Now, more than 30 years later, there are some 725 Recovery, Inc. groups in the United States and 15 in Canada. A total of approximately 12,000 persons attend the meetings.

Dr. Low stressed the importance of will power, muscle control, and learning to spot nervous symptoms. As the Recovery people point out, after being released from a mental hospital, a person can suffer greatly from fears of a relapse. And many worry greatly about any symptoms he may feel.

The Recovery group meets once a week, and "through association with one another, Recovery members discover that their suffering is not unique. Week by week, as they undergo training, they find that life consists mainly of trivialities, not dire emergencies. . . . They learn that what may seem unique to them really happens to most people."

Veteran members caution that the training requires effort and self-discipline. As Stanley R. Dean, MD, a psychiatrist in Stamford, Connecticut, writes, "Over 20 years, I have referred some 200 patients (to Recovery, Inc). Most of them continued simultaneously under my care. It is my impression, often corroborated by family members and social contacts, that this group, on the whole, showed better progress than non-participants."

I am encouraged to hear a psychiatrist say this, because I have referred a number of patients to Recovery, and they have found it very helpful. Dr. Dean admits that "to some psychiatrists this might seem naive and archaic, if not downright heretical.

Airports Face Strike Monday

Move Will Force Grounding of Jets

Times News Services

Air traffic controllers have set Monday, 4 a.m. for a nation-wide strike which will ground all commercial air traffic.

President J. R. Campbell of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association said members of his association this week voted 1,549 to 85 to strike.

The controllers also rejected a conciliation board report that recommended a 15.5-percent wage increase in a 27-month contract. Present base rate ranges between $7,000 and $14,600.

A strike means complete withdrawal of air traffic controllers across the country and parts of the North Atlantic. Virtually all commercial air traffic over a designated area covering Canada and about 800 miles out into the Atlantic will be grounded.

VISUAL FLIGHTS

Both Air Canada and CPA Air said the strike will cut off service but an Air Canada spokesman in Toronto said the company could "operate by visual flight rules in perfect safety." He did not say if Air Canada would adopt this policy.

CP Air spokesman in Vancouver said the company is trying to arrange use of American airports to salvage some overseas flights.

Earlier today, electronic technicians who sparked 24-hour walkouts at several airports, are returning to work. They have set a Tuesday strike after holding study sessions to protest settlement of a new contract by their union officials — International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

CONTRACT EXPIRED

The controllers contract expired Sept. 30. Negotiations for a new contract started with the treasury board in August.

The neutral public service staff relations board recommended that a mediator be called in to assist negotiations and both the treasury board and the union accepted this.

A union statement said the board made a "farce of the collective bargaining legislation."

A treasury board spokesman said he could not comment on the decision to strike until the government was officially notified.

He said the government offered to meet with the controllers when the conciliation board report was handed down last week. The controllers had replied they would be willing to meet with the government Jan. 18.

AWAIT ANSWER

The treasury board told the controllers it would like to sit down with the controllers earlier, if possible, but would settle for Jan. 18.

"We haven't received any further proposal on a meeting time," the treasury board spokesman said.

Campbell told his news con-

LAST-DITCH EFFORT TO KEEP PORTS OPEN

SAN FRANCISCO — Longshoremen's union leader Harry Bridges has flown to Washington in an apparent last ditch effort to head off a resumption of the West Coast dock strike that was suspended after 100 days.

If there is no agreement by midnight Sunday, the 15,000 members of the International Longshoremen's and warehousemen's Union are expected to resume their walkout at 24 West Coast ports.

Port officials in Vancouver warn that a serious situation will develop if the strike occurs. There are 72 ships in Vancouver and another 60 or 70 would be rerouted to the B.C port if the strike takes place.

BILINGUAL BUSINESS BOOMING

OTTAWA (CP) — The increased emphasis on bilingualism in the federal government means that the job of translating all official documents is becoming a big industry in itself.

This year, for instance, it will cost taxpayers nearly $12 million to have federal papers translated from English into French and from French into English. The business is growing by leaps and bounds.

The staff has been increased from a handful to almost 1,000 persons. A good translater makes $15,000 per year.

OLYMPIA — Nuclear power generation will be the main source of electricity in Washington State's future, Governor Dan Evans said today.

And state fisheries officials are hoping another massive fish kill will not occur next year on the Columbia and Snake Rivers because of water quality problems created by hydro-electric dams.

Evans linked the two subjects during a meeting with British Columbia's New Democratic Party MLAs in Olympia.

80 Per Cent of Salmon Died

Evans said the series of dams on the Columbia and Snake rivers led to unexpected nitrogen super-saturation in holding waters which killed off 80 per cent of the state's salmon run on those rivers last year.

"We are trying to correct the problem before next year's run but we won't be able to do it on time and all we can do is keep our fingers crossed and hope it does not happen again. We can't afford it," Evans told the group.

The subject arose under questioning from the MLAs who want to know what problems the hydro dams have created in Washington so they might better understand possible future problems in B.C.

Evans said no one suspected at the time the dams were built that they would have a cumulative effect in nitrogen build-ups in the water which killed the salmon when heavy melting snows created spillovers on the rivers.

The advantage of nuclear power, he said, is that it now appears to be almost pollution free. The state already has one nuclear reactor and another is being planned, he said.

Die Before Spawning

The fish kills first became evident four years ago when state fisheries staff noticed fewer salmon crossing over the spillways of successive dams up the Columbia and Snake Rivers.

They discovered the fish were dying before they reached their spawning grounds.

The problem became dramatically evident only last year. A state department of ecology spokesman said earlier this week there is no accurate way to measure the many millions of fish which have died.

The problems are of interest to British Columbia because of government policy favoring hydro-electric power generation and speculation that a dam in the Moran Canyon on the Fraser River may be built.

Dams Benefit Washington

The controversial proposal already has fallen into disrepute with the federal fisheries department. The provincial government has not committed itself to building the dam as far as can be determined.

Evans said Columbia River Treaty dams in B.C. have had the good effect of stabilizing water flows into Washington.

But he hoped a way could be found to meet future power needs without drastically altering and damming rivers in the state of Washington.

Aside from nuclear power, Evans said, geo-thermal energy sources may be the answer. These include natural steam and rock deposits underground.

State natural resources department director Bert Cole believes geo-thermal power is completely pollution free.

Career-Oriented Jobs For 4,000 Students

OTTAWA (CP) — About 175 students will be employed by the federal health department this summer in drug research projects under the supervision of scientists. Other students will be hired to welcome immigrants, pound parade squares, shuffle paper — the thousand and one occupations taxes create in government.

The public service commission has given university students until Jan. 31 to apply for 4,000 "career-oriented" jobs ranging from accounting to surveying.

Anticipating heavy competition, the commission says wise students should also apply through Canada Manpower Centres for one of the lesser jobs available.

These include positions at the bottom of a ditch, digging. Or sitting in an office, clerking. They may not be glamorous but they will pay — and the needy will be given preference.

TRAVEL GRANTS

The over-all summer program for students, announced Thursday, has a budget of $85 million, about $34 million for the Opportunities for Youth program and the rest for travel grants, regular jobs and educational activity.

The health department, besides hiring 175 students to test the effects of drug use, will provide grants of up to $2,000 for 800 athletes. The money is to be used during the summer to increase athletic ability.

Sports organizations will be consulted.

The defence department has budgeted $12.8 million for reserve and cadet training programs for 40,000 students during the summer. This is $2 million more than last year. A third-year course is being added for the militia. Naval and air reserve programs have yet to be worked out in detail.

CIVILIAN COURSES

About 2,300 students will be given a civilian training course in which community aid projects such as anti-litter and anti-pollution activity will be stressed.

The manpower department will set up 132 temporary student manpower centres staffed by about 500 students.

About 130 recent graduates will be hired in the next few weeks to work at regular manpower centres in areas where student centres will be set up. All regular centres will have staff to handle student applications.

The manpower department also will:

- Aim a national advertising campaign for student jobs at private employers and householders.
- Finance travel costs for 2,000 students to get a job away from home and help find such jobs.
- Use students as receptionists for arriving immigrants.
- Finance travel costs for 3,000 students to work in 11 European countries. Last year 1,000 students took part in the experiment. Wages are paid by the European country at its scale.

Meanwhile State Secretary Gerard Pelletier's department will spend $1.7 million to finance travel for 20,000 youths within Canada. About 5,000 aged 15 to 17 will travel under the Young Voyageurs program to another province or territory.

Grants for the other 15,000 will go mainly to "those who are geographically isolated, disadvantaged or belong to native communities."

Applications must be filed at least three months before a group plans to travel.

Pelletier's department will spend $1.2 million to staff some 96 youth hostels. Last year 80,000 young travellers slept at hostels, which will have larger staffs this summer. Applications from groups wishing to run hostels must be in by April 15.

HASH HAUL LARGEST IN HISTORY

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Customs agents seized what they called the largest hash hish haul in history Thursday, confiscating 1,330 pounds of the drug from a truck which was unloaded on a Portland dock after being shipped from Karachi, Pakistan.

Agents reported finding the hashish concealed in the bed and fenderwells of a Volkswagen pickup with attached camper. They estimated its wholesale value at nearly $2 million and street value at more than $7 million.

Pollen Slams Groos

The Barnard estate zoning problem may not have occurred if Victoria had better representation in Ottawa, Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

In an interview, Pollen singled out Victoria MP David Groos, saying he thought Groos was "very personable, but I don't feel he's representing this area."

Pollen praised Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson, however, saying "the bright young man from Saanich tries to handle two constituencies."

CLASHED

The city and the federal government have clashed over the jurisdiction of control over what may be built on the Barnard estate on Victoria Harbor waterfront.

Pollen said that when "massive funds" are collected by Ottawa from the public and "dispensed with little national plan and little accountability, it becomes important to have a strong voice for the city in Ottawa."

OTHER OPTIONS

Pollen said he would never propose that Ottawa give any land away. There are other options, among them public control of key lands through leasing.

"As I view the problems and solutions of modern urban planning, it's obvious that it becomes increasingly important that we have a very strong voice in the federal government." (See Page 17.)

NEWS BRIEFS

Launchers Moved

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam is moving mobile surface-to-air missile launchers to within a few miles of the demilitarized zone to harass U.S. planes.

Houses Blasted

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli troops crossed into southern Lebanon again today amid fog and freezing rain and blew up two more houses they said were bases for Arab guerrillas.

Gas Review Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board refused today to review its method of calculating Canadian natural gas requirements.

Such a review could have led to freeing for export trillions of cubic feet of natural gas now held in reserve to meet future Canadian needs.

Denmark's King Dies

COPENHAGEN (AP) — King Frederik IX of Denmark, a tattooed, music-loving sailor who reigned for nearly 25 tranquil years with gruff heartiness and much informality, died today after an illness of more than two weeks, the royal palace announced.

He was 72.

The eldest of his three daughters, Princess Margrethe, 31, succeeded to the throne.

Rahman Appeals to China To Recognize Bangladesh

DACCA (AP) — Sheik Mujibur Rahman said today socialism is the only way to rescue the shattered economy of Bangladesh. He appealed to the world for aid while his government sets up the new system.

The sheik, sworn in as Bangladesh's prime minister Wednesday, asked for world support for his new nation's admission into the United Nations.

He asked China specifically to "recognize the heroic success of our national liberation struggle."

In a statement at his first news conference since returning Monday from 9½ months in Pakistani custody, he said:

"The economy is in a shattered state. The most urgent task is that of reconstructing and restructuring the economy."

Sheik Mujib said resources from Bangladesh and abroad must be mobilized to help build a new society "from its very foundation."

"We urgently need assistance from abroad to supplement our own resources for this purpose," he added. "I appeal to all states, to the freedom-loving people of the world and to the international humitarian organizations, generously to come to our assistance in all spheres. . . ,

"The savages of the Pakistani forces have left our country totally devastated. Systematic genocide has exterminated almost three million lives. Entire villages have been wiped out."

Considering the destruction and the porverty among Bangladesh's 75 million people, Sheik Mujib said, "it will only be possible to fulfil the aspirations of the people by establishing a socialist economy."

To do this, he said, a staff of the "most competent professionals is undertaking the task of preparing a comprehensive bluespring for a new economy. Such a blueprint will involve institutional changes in the fields of agriculture, industries and finance."

U.S. VIEW OF BENNETT: HE'S ANTI-AMERICAN

OLYMPIA — A Washington state legislator from Bellingham said Thursday he was surprised to learn Premier Bennett is not anti-American.

State Senator Frank Atwood said he always believed Bennett disliked Americans because the premier rarely visits his state.

Atwood added he feels psychologically closer to Vancouver than Seattle as do many of his constituents.

Reading the Canadian press, he said, has given him the distinct impression Canadians are strongly anti-American.

When Atwood was assured Bennett not only likes Americans but also seeks new U.S. investment capital and vacations in California he said:

"If he likes us so much, how come he never comes down here to visit us."

"His comments came during an official dinner for B.C.'s New Democratic Party caucus during its three-day visit to Olympia which ends today.

The visit was arranged by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett who wanted discussions with Washington legislators on regional pollution and economic issues.

Today's agenda was to have included a conference with Washington Governor Dan Evans and further talks with state senators. Thursday Barrett addressed both houses of the Washington legislature, the first time a B.C. politician has done so.

Where Never Is Heard An 'Open Line' Word

We might possibly title this report The Curious Case of The Man on the Lam from The Talking Women, but I'll let you be the judge of that. It concerns Mr. Jack Webster, the Superstar of the hot-line radio performers, a brilliant reporter with a gift of the gab who is, far and away, the most influential and listened-to personality west of the Rockies.

Our current interest in Webster is the result of spending a weekend as his guest at Glen Falls Divide, the 100-acre farm he maintains in a spectacular valley known as The Cranberry on Salt Spring Island.

People who have known Webster since he arrived in these climes as a poor, but loud, immigrant boy from the Glasgow slums are at a loss to explain his passion for this remote and rugged real estate.

Why does a city boy, born and bred, hurry each Friday night to willingly tend an assortment of singularly messy cattle, sheep, chickens and ducks? Why does a notoriously gregarious man flee from humanity, each and every weekend, to hack and burn through massive stands of alder, far from the plasma of affection and admiration that sustain him mid-week?

We pondered these questions in those brief moments during our 48-hour visit when Webster did not have us animal-tending, alder-hacking and burning at his side. We pondered them again when, back home, bedded with terminal exhaustion and a particularly nasty virus, we listened to the three hours of open-line dialogue over which he presides so vigorously each and every morning, Monday to Friday.

★ ★ ★

It soon became apparent that The Talking Woman might provide some clues to the enigma of Jack's private and public lives since at least seven out of 10 callers, it would appear, are female and the cumulative effect might easily overwhelm any man not made of iron.

The casual male listener, eavesdropping on this no-man's-land of morning radio, sampling not merely Webster's show but the variety of others locally and from across the gulf, will be instantly struck by the fact that women communicate in a manner far different than men. Oh, we've known this all along, mind you, but it was never before so open to analysing.

There is a kind of free-flowing pipeline directly from the female brain to the female larynx. Where the average man has great difficulty in moving his thoughts fluidly from their originating source to the barrel-head of vocal expression, the average woman may effortlessly spill her thoughts in the manner of a reflex action.

The moderators of these open-line programs very often find themselves, metaphorically speaking, alternately drawing out the reticent male and clapping a rude hand over the mouths of the unreticent ladies who come on the line. One, in fact, is often moved to bellow in an almost matrimonial way, "Madam! Doll! Will you please listen!"

These moderators (though they'd be better described as advocates) are, themselves, chosen for their unmasculine ability to maintain speech precociously without necessarily having anything to say. Even so, they're no match in verbosity for the average female caller and, indeed, may subconsciously resent them as unfair competition.

None of the stations has as yet tried a girl-type interlocutor, possibly for the reason that the callers might never get on the air.

This gift of women is seen in its most spectacular form in a typical conversation involving two of their species, especially on the telephone. The words fly back and forth in battledore and shuttlecock rhythm, volleys of talk with never a halt for serve or fault. It is, to put it another way, as if conversation was employed to fill that well-known vacuum that nature is said to abhor. While men seldom communicate for any other reason than to transmit information or messages, women, on the other hand, very often communicate purely for the pleasure or comfort they derive from an exercise in sound.

Many types of birds seem to have this same motivation, as the ornithologists often point out. One can listen to the glaucous-winged gulls "talking" for hours from one rock to the other, a dialogue that's clearly meant only as something to occupy the time or for mutual reassurance and not for the end result of arriving at conclusions.

The listener to Webster's daily marathon will note a striking similarity to gull-talk in many of the calls from women who reach for the phone because of a compulsion to establish a verbalizing bond. Talk, in other words, becomes a glue between two bodies.

While they are occasionally nervous it hardly ever seems to cause a blockage in speech and, on the contrary, sometimes becomes self-perpetuating. It is rather like "freeway hypnosis" in which the driver becomes so obsessed with the mileage he's making that he cannot bear to brake at his destination.

Perhaps, just to pursue it an inch further, it is because women rarely consider talk a waste of time and may find satisfaction in the most casual inconsequentials, often with long, irrelevant detours, while the male, being more single-minded, strives to make his point economically.

In limited amounts, perhaps, this kind of thing may be amusing or even entrancing, a bright babble of sound, often as musical as a mountain brook. But when it is administered in a massive, inescapable, daily dosage, up to 15 hours a week, when the ill-tempered man who monitors it has a mind trained and precision-geared to exclude chatter and establish hard facts, it might well lead to madness.

Is this, then, the motivation for Webster's weekend vanishing act into the fastness of The Cranberry where only the sough of the breeze in the alders and the plaintive bleating of the animals intrudes upon his thoughts? Is it simply a healing process before returning to the onslaught of The Talking Woman? Well, we wouldn't be at all surprised.

Trollers Join Ferries

Fishermen's Wharf has become so congested with wintering boats that they're now tying up wherever they can in the Inner Harbor.

These fishing boats are docking at CPR piers following an agreement between the Victoria Fishermen's Wharfage and Harbor Committee and the CPR for their use until spring.

The reason for the overflow of boats has been attributed to fishing marinas being closed down in Vancouver.

One harbor committee spokesman says Victoria could use space for 500 boats. The CPR docks can handle 40.

Potato, Butter, Anyone?

All right, so the consumer price index took a big upward jump last month.

Statistics Canada said it was the biggest November-to-December gain in 10 years, and food prices apparently accounted for a hefty part of that increase.

But what does that mean in terms of the Victoria housewife's grocery budget?

Four companies were approached by the Times, in only one case, that of Kelly Douglas Ltd., which operates the Super-Valu stores, did a spokesman give price details on certain staple items chosen at random by the Times:

A cross-rib roast which on Nov. 5 cost $1.15 per pound had risen to $1.25 by Dec. 19 and to $1.33 by Dec. 29.

For prime-rib, on the same dates, the progression was from $1.29 to $1.35 and $1.39.

From November to December tomatoes rose from 59 cents per pound to 69 cents.

One of the biggest increases of all, 30 per cent, has been on sugar. A 10-pound bag which cost $1.13 Nov. 5 now costs $1.48.

But there's some consolation for those attempting the impossible stretching trick with their budgets: potatoes and butter didn't increase at all.

LICENCE OFFICE AT SHOP CENTRE

Motor vehicle licence renewals will be available through a special office in the Hillside Shopping Centre during February, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

Peterson said he hopes the additional licence office will help reduce lineups at the main motor vehicle office and expressed satisfaction at the co-operation of the shopping centre in providing space.

Three Vancouver area centres will also have licence offices during February.

Operation Overload

St. Joseph's Hospital has had to reduce the number of beds available for elective surgery cases because of the mounting number of urgent cases, executive director Embert Van Tilburg said today.

Dr. Van Tilburg forewarned of the move last month when he said if the steady climb in numbers of urgent cases for operations continued the day is coming when there would be room for nothing else.

There are nine operating rooms at the hospital but only six or seven are in full use weekdays because of a shortage of beds for patients before and after surgery.

There have been no new beds added to St. Joseph's for about 20 years. The hospital has 428 beds.

While Van Tilburg had no figures immediately available to measure how much elective (desirable but not urgent) surgery has been reduced, he said last month it might have to be cut by about a third.

Operating room time at the hospital last month was divided about equally between urgent and emergency cases and elective surgery.

Grits Protest Goyer 'Spies'

The Victoria Liberal Association Thursday protested to Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer that his new security department is "a slur on the integrity of all Canadians."

In a letter to Goyer, the association calls for a constitutional bill of rights to guard against his creation of "a new security force."

"It is a further erosion of privacy, a privacy that has no constitutional safeguard," the letter said.

Goyer, in announcing its creation last September, called the department security planning and research. Consisting of sociologists, criminologists, psychologists, lawyers, police and military officers, its duties were to be solely "research, analysis and planning," Goyer said.

"Who will be the judge as to whether someone or some group is subversive or not, who has checked out the judges? Who will vouch for the checkers?" the Liberal Association asked.

"As the new force has no history of integrity and is not a police force in the ordinary sense of the word, what is to prevent a future administration from using it for political purposes — besides bland assertions that it won't be?"

The association argues that the RCMP, working with city and provincial police, are sufficient enough for security work.

"If radicals (your term) do not resort to or urge others to violence, then, as Canadians, they have every right to express their views."

The letter asks if the names of the members of the new force will be made public and will identify themselves as such while on an investigation. "Or will they be as anonymous and secretive as their files and purposes?"

Goyer was unavailable for comment today on this protest and on an advertisement his department recently placed in British Columbia newspapers seeking a "a regional analyst" to investigate subversive activites in B.C.

The Victoria Labor Council had protested the job advertisement as part of "a spy system."

According to the advertisement, the analyst will "conduct research and studies on a continuous basis on subversive doctrines, violence in society, revolutionary activities and information techniques."

Hopes Look Dim For Bay Village

The fortunes of the proposed Bay Village high-rise development appear dimmed following a silent brush-off Thursday by Victoria council.

Plans for the 29-storey apartment, commerical development were on the council table since Dec. 16, awaiting the 1972 council.

At Thursday's meeting, however, the plans no sooner came off the table than they went back on to it, with no definite date for reconsideration. There was no comment from members of council.

The Bay Village development is planned for the corner of Menzies and Simcoe.

It incorporates more than 70,000 square feet of office and commercial space, plus a 269-foot apartment tower, potentially the tallest in the city.

The development has the blessing of the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission, which last March judged it to be "attractive" and "in keeping with the requirements for the area."

Council also gave basic approval to the plans, but still holds power to grant final approval by signing a special land use contract necessary for further progress.

Asked following the council meeting why the development was not discussed, Mayor Peter Pollen and planning chairman Mike Young said only that it needs further consideration.

However, they gave no details, nor set a time for further study. The item remains on the council agenda under the heading, unfinished business.

NO TAKERS IN CLEAN AIR OFFER

There have been no claims for the $250,000 prize the provincial government offered 22 months ago for a solution to air pollution for B.C. kraft pulp mills.

Under the terms of the competition, announced by Resources Minister Ray Williston in March of 1970, any individual or company has until Jan. 1, 1973, to get a suitable system into operation.

Also under the terms, Williston was to have appointed an award committee by Jan. 15, 1972 — Saturday — but a spokesman for the Pollution Control Branch said today he had decided to postpone naming the committe as there are no claims to consider.

While no party has claimed the prize, a considerable file of correspondence has accumulated, indicating a number of people are interested, said James McCrossan, information officer for the branch.

Specification for a winning air pollution abatement system include a lengthy list setting out maximum concentrations of chemicals and particulate matter permitted from all mill stacks.

Condition also eliminate from the competition all employees of the provincial government and its agencies and require that any abatement system be suitable for both large and small pulp mills.

City Delays Barnard Rezoning Pending Crown Sale

City council decided Thursday to postpone rezoning the federally-owned Barnard waterfront estate until the Crown has sold the land.

The decision came after lawyer George Carruthers of the federal justice department told council "it has no legal authority whatsoever to rezone Crown land."

Carruthers said the British North America Act prevented such a move.

Council responded by tabling its rezoning bylaw, apparently content to let Ottawa take the next step. This could be completion of the sale of the Barnard land for $253,205 to Diamond Developments Ltd., which hopes to build apartments on the site.

Carruthers spoke at a public hearing in council chamber held to air complaints on the city's attempt to rezone the 3.77-acre property from garden apartment to single family use.

PARK PLAY

The city's attempt to rezone the land has been based on a plan to turn the property into a park. The Barnard estate is the last piece of natural waterfront green space remaining in the Victoria West area.

Rezoning would prevent apartment construction and could drive down the selling price well below the $253,205 offered by Diamond Developments.

However, in conducting the public hearing Mayor Peter Pollen was careful to avoid the inference that the city wanted to rezone in order to buy the land at a lower price.

Pollen said the only formal intention of council in rezoning the property was to control the density of any development on it.

CONTROL DENSITY

Pollen was told by a solicitor for Diamond Developments that council cannot rezone the property while in the course of trying to purchase it.

Lawyer J. M. Hutchison said that any attempt to rezone the property in order to force the price down would be struck down by the courts because the action would be "discriminatory and colorable."

Both lawyers provoked strong statements from some members of council, who indicated they are unlikely to bend to arguments that council cannot rezone the property.

Ald. Harold Olafson and Ald. Tom Christie both complained that the federal government's policy of trying to get the highest possible price for its land was inconsistently followed.

A large piece of land referred to as the "Kitsilano" property had been sold to Vancouver city for only $1, they said, but Ottawa would not accept the city's offer of $150,000 for the smaller Barnard property.

SUPPORT

Council received written or verbal support for the rezoning attempt from the New Democratic Party and the Communist Party, as well as from several individuals.

Opposing the attempt, Carruthers said that sections 91 and 91A of the BNA Act spell out the condition that property owned by the Crown cannot be legislated on by another jurisdiction.

"It is submitted that because the title resides in the Crown, the city has no right to rezone the property," he said.

Answering questions, Carruthers said this probably also means that the existing zoning is invalid.

Olafson said the federal government acquired the property in 1960 for $52,000, and today wanted $250,000 for it. He said it is "scandalous" that the federal government "speculates" in land while the other levels of government may not.

Hutchison said the city could always expropriate the land from Diamond Developments once the sale was complete, but the price would be the same as that paid by the developer.

CONFLICT

Taxi driver James Gorst, who said he represented the NDP, said the policy of Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, which is handling the sale for Ottawa, is in conflict with statements by Robert Andras, federal urban affairs minister.

Gorst said he wasn't happy with the "conduct of the negotiations" and added he was going to look further into the "people concerned and their relationships to one another." He didn't elaborate on his comment.

Council went into a half-hour in-Camera meeting before producing its resolution to table the rezoning bylaw.

The resolution said council tabled the matter "having regard to the constitutional problems involved. . . ."

The resolution goes on to say that while the Crown owns the land, it is "not the intention of council to proceed with the matter of rezoning until the Crown has disposed of its interest . . ."

Council will then review the matter it says.

Airports Face Strike Monday

Move Will Force Grounding of Jets

Times News Services

Air traffic controllers have set Monday, 4 a.m. for a nation-wide strike which will ground all commercial air traffic.

President J. R. Campbell of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers' Association said members of his association this week voted 1,549 to 85 to strike.

The controllers also rejected a conciliation board report that recommended a 15.5-percent wage increase in a 27-month contract. Present base rate ranges between $7,000 and $14,600.

A strike means complete withdrawal of air traffic controllers across the country and parts of the North Atlantic. Virtually all commercial air traffic over a designated area covering Canada and about 800 miles out into the Atlantic will be grounded.

VISUAL FLIGHTS

Both Air Canada and CPA Air said the strike will cut off service but an Air Canada spokesman in Toronto said the company could "operate by visual flight rules in perfect safety." He did not say if Air Canada would adopt this policy.

CP Air spokesman in Vancouver said the company is trying to arrange use of American airports to salvage some overseas flights.

Earlier today, electronic technicians who sparked 24-hour walkouts at several airports, are returning to work. They have set a Tuesday strike after holding study sessions to protest settlement of a new contract by their union officials — International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

CONTRACT EXPIRED

The controllers contract expired Sept. 30. Negotiations for a new contract started with the treasury board in August.

The neutral public service staff relations board recommended that a mediator be called in to assist negotiations and both the treasury board and the union accepted this.

A union statement said the board made a "farce of the collective bargaining legislation."

A treasury board spokesman said he could not comment on the decision to strike until the government was officially notified.

He said the government offered to meet with the controllers when the conciliation board report was handed down last week. The controllers had replied they would be willing to meet with the government Jan. 18.

AWAIT ANSWER

The treasury board told the controllers it would like to sit down with the controllers earlier, if possible, but would settle for Jan. 18.

"We haven't received any further proposal on a meeting time," the treasury board spokesman said.

Campbell told his news con-

LAST-DITCH EFFORT TO KEEP PORTS OPEN

SAN FRANCISCO — Longshoremen's union leader Harry Bridges has flown to Washington in an apparent last ditch effort to head off a resumption of the West Coast dock strike that was suspended after 100 days.

If there is no agreement by midnight Sunday, the 15,000 members of the International Longshoremen's and warehousemen's Union are expected to resume their walkout at 24 West Coast ports.

Port officials in Vancouver warn that a serious situation will develop if the strike occurs. There are 72 ships in Vancouver and another 60 or 70 would be rerouted to the B.C. port if the strike takes place.

ANDERSON'S PROTEST REJECTED

WASHINGTON (CP) — District Court Judge George Hart today turned down the request of Canadian MP David Anderson and the Canadian Wildlife Federation to intervene in American conservationists' court actions against the proposed trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

Judge Hart ruled that the lawyers for U.S. conservation groups are "extraordinarily able" and added:

"It is the court's view that if the American environment is protected, the Canadian environment of necessity must be protected."

N-Power Eyed To Save Fish

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

OLYMPIA — Nuclear power generation will be the main source of electricity in Washington State's future, Governor Dan Evans said today.

And state fisheries officials are hoping another massive fish kill will not occur next year on the Columbia and Snake Rivers because of water quality problems created by hydro-electric dams.

Evans linked the two subjects during a meeting with British Columbia's New Democratic Party MLAs in Olympia.

80 Per Cent of Salmon Died

Evans said the series of dams on the Columbia and Snake rivers led to unexpected nitrogen super-saturation in holding waters which killed off 80 per cent of the state's salmon run on those rivers last year.

"We are trying to correct the problem before next year's run but we won't be able to do it on time and all we can do is keep our fingers crossed and hope it does not happen again. We can't afford it," Evans told the group.

The subject arose under questioning from the MLAs who want to know what problems the hydro dams have created in Washington so they might better understand possible future problems in B.C.

Evans said no one suspected at the time the dams were built that they would have a cumulative effect in nitrogen build-ups in the water which killed the salmon when heavy melting snows created spillovers on the rivers.

The advantage of nuclear power, he said, is that it now appears to be almost pollution free. The state already has one nuclear reactor and another is being planned, he said.

Die Before Spawning

The fish kills first became evident four years ago when state fisheries staff noticed fewer salmon crossing over the spillways of successive dams up the Columbia and Snake Rivers.

They discovered the fish were dying before they reached their spawning grounds.

The problem became dramatically evident only last year. A state department of ecology spokesman said earlier this week there is no accurate way to measure the many millions of fish which have died.

The problems are of interest to British Columbia because of government policy favoring hydro-electric power generation and speculation that a dam in the Moran Canyon on the Fraser River may be built.

Dams Benefit Washington

The controversial proposal already has fallen into disrepute with the federal fisheries department. The provincial government has not committed itself to building the dam as far as can be determined.

Evans said Columbia River Treaty dams in B.C. have had the good effect of stabilizing water flows into Washington.

But he hoped a way could be found to meet future power needs without drastically altering and damming rivers in the state of Washington.

Aside from nuclear power, Evans said, geo-thermal energy sources may be the answer. These include natural steam and rock deposits underground.

State natural resources department director Bert Cole believes geo-thermal power is completely pollution free.

Career-Oriented Jobs For 4,000 Students

OTTAWA (CP) — About 175 students will be employed by the federal health department this summer in drug research projects under the supervision of scientists. Other students will be hired to welcome immigrants, pound parade squares, shuffle paper — the thousand and one occupations taxes create in government.

The public service commission has given university students until Jan. 31 to apply for 4,000 "career-oriented" jobs ranging from accounting to surveying.

Anticipating heavy competition, the commission says wise students should also apply through Canada Manpower Centres for one of the lesser jobs available.

These include positions at the bottom of a ditch, digging. Or sitting in an office, clerking. They may not be glamorous but they will pay — and the needy will be given preference.

TRAVEL GRANTS

The over-all summer program for students, announced Thursday, has a budget of $85 million, about $34 million for the Opportunities for Youth program and the rest for travel grants, regular jobs and educational activity.

The health department, besides hiring 175 students to test the effects of drug use, will provide grants of up to $2,000 for 800 athletes. The money is to be used during the summer to increase athletic ability.

Sports organizations will be consulted.

The defence department has budgeted $12.8 million for reserve and cadet training programs for 40,000 students during the summer. This is $2 million more than last year. A third-year course is being added for the militia. Naval and air reserve programs have yet to be worked out in detail.

CIVILIAN COURSES

About 2,300 students will be given a civilian training course in which community aid projects such as anti-litter and anti-pollution activity will be stressed.

The manpower department will set up 132 temporary student manpower centres staffed by about 500 students.

About 130 recent graduates will be hired in the next few weeks to work at regular manpower centres in areas where student centres will be set up. All regular centres will have staff to handle student applications.

The manpower department also will:

● Aim a national advertising campaign for student jobs at private employers and householders.

● Finance travel costs for 2,000 students to get a job away from home and help find such jobs.

● Use students as receptionists for arriving immigrants.

● Finance travel costs for 3,000 students to work in 11 European countries. Last year 1,000 students took part in the experiment. Wages are paid by the European country at its scale.

Meanwhile State Secretary Gerard Pelletier's department will spend $1.7 million to finance travel for 20,000 youths within Canada. About 5,000 aged 15 to 17 will travel under the Young Voyageurs program to another province or territory.

Grants for the other 15,000 will go mainly to "those who are geographically isolated, disadvantaged or belong to native communities."

Applications must be filed at least three months before a group plans to travel.

Pelletier's department will spend $1.2 million to staff some 96 youth hostels. Last year 80,000 young travellers slept at hostels, which will have larger staffs this summer. Applications from groups wishing to run hostels must be in by April 15.

HASH HAUL LARGEST IN HISTORY

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Customs agents seized what they called the largest hashish haul in history Thursday, confiscating 1,330 pounds of the drug from a truck which was unloaded on a Portland dock after being shipped from Karachi, Pakistan.

Agents reported finding the hashish concealed in the bed and fenderwells of a Volkswagen pickup with attached camper. They estimated its wholesale value at nearly $2 million and street value at more than $7 million.

Pollen Slams Groos

The Barnard estate zoning problem might not have occurred if Victoria had better representation in Ottawa, Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

In an interview, Pollen singled out Victoria MP David Groos, saying he thought Groos was "very personable, but I don't feel he's representing this area."

Pollen praised Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson, however, saying "the bright young man from Saanich tries to handle two constituencies."

CLASHED

The city and the federal government have clashed over the jurisdiction of control over what may be built on the Barnard estate on Victoria Harbor waterfront.

Pollen said that when "massive funds" are collected by Ottawa from the public and "dispensed with little national plan and little accountability, it becomes important to have a strong voice for the city in Ottawa."

Pollen said he would never propose that Ottawa give any land away. There are other options, among them public control of key lands through leasing.

"As I view the problems and solutions of modern urban planning, it's obvious that it becomes increasingly important that we have a very strong voice in the federal government." (See Page 17.)

NEWS BRIEFS

Launchers Moved

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam is moving mobile surface-to-air missile launchers to within a few miles of the demilitarized zone to harass U.S. planes.

Houses Blasted

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli troops crossed into southern Lebanon again today amid fog and freezing rain and blew up two more houses they said were bases for Arab guerrillas.

Gas Review Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board refused today to review its method of calculating Canadian natural gas requirements.

Such a review could have led to freeing for export trillions of cubic feet of natural gas now held in reserve to meet future Canadian needs.

Denmark's King Dies

COPENHAGEN (AP) — King Frederik IX of Denmark, a tattooed, music-loving sailor who reigned for nearly 25 tranquil years with gruff heartiness and much informality, died today after an illness of more than two weeks, the royal palace announced.

He was 72.

The eldest of his three daughters, Princess Margrethe, 31, succeeded to the throne.

Rahman Appeals to China To Recognize Bangladesh

DACCA (AP)—Sheikh Mujibur Rahman said today socialism is the only way to rescue the shattered economy of Bangladesh. He appealed to the world for aid while his government sets up the new system.

The Sheikh, sworn in as Bangladesh's prime minister Wednesday, asked for world support for his new nation's admission into the United Nations.

He asked China specifically to "recognize the heroic success of our national liberation struggle."

Sheikh Mujib said resources from Bangladesh and abroad must be mobilized to help build a new society "from its very foundation."

"The savages of the Pakistani forces have left our country totally devastated. Systematic genocide has exterminated almost three million lives. Entire villages have been wiped out."

Considering the destruction and the poverty among Bangladesh's 75 million people, Sheikh Mujib said, "it will only be possible to fulfil the aspirations of the people by establishing a socialist economy."

To do this, he said, a staff of the "most competent professionals is undertaking the task of preparing a comprehensive blueprint for a new economy. Such a blueprint will involve institutional changes in the fields of agriculture, industries and finance."

U.S. VIEW OF BENNETT: HE'S ANTI-AMERICAN

Times Staff

OLYMPIA — A Washington state legislator from Bellingham said Thursday he was surprised to learn Premier Bennett is not anti-American.

State Senator Frank Atwood said he always believed Bennett disliked Americans because the premier rarely visits his state.

Atwood added he feels psychologically closer to Vancouver than Seattle as do many of his constituents.

Reading the Canadian press, he said, has given him the distinct impression Canadians are strongly anti-American.

When Atwood was assured Bennett not only likes Americans but also seeks new U.S. investment capital and vacations in California he said:

"If he likes us so much, how come he never comes down here to visit us?"

"His comments came during an official dinner for B.C.'s New Democratic Party caucus during its three-day visit to Olympia which ends today.

The visit was arranged by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett who wanted discussions with Washington legislators on regional pollution and economic issues.

Today's agenda was to have included a conference with Washington Governor Dan Evans and further talks with state senators. Thursday Barrett addressed both houses of the Washington legislature, the first time a B.C. politician has done so.

Whiteoaks of Jalna Series Opens Jan. 23

TORONTO — Starring Kate Reid as the irascible, indomitable Gran (Old Adeline) and Paul Harding as the magnetic Renny, her grandson, CBC-TV's The Whiteoaks of Jalna brings to the TV screen the unforgettable characters of Mazo de la Roche's world-famous Jalna novels, stories of the legendary Whiteoak family.

For color telecast (Channels 2 and 6) Sundays, 9-10 p.m., beginning January 23, 1972, the full 13-episode series will be sponsored by General Motors of Canada Limited, and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

DUAL ROLE as Gran (Old Adeline) and as Gran's great-granddaughter Adeline in scenes from the world-famous Jalna novels. Make up for the "old" Kate takes three hours.

Widely-Known

Millions of fiction readers around the world know the Whiteoaks through the pages of Miss de la Roche's 16 novels, chronicling the lives, loves and sometimes stormy relationships of the Canadian dynasty that established itself on the shores of Lake Ontario in 1854.

But in the TV series, which spans the period from the First Word War until 1925, the year of Gran's 100th birthday (drawing much of its material from three of the original novels), the Whiteoaks are also projected into the 1970s.

The series blends past and present into a whole fabric, by means of parellel time sequences. In the present, Renny is an old man (in his 80s). Old Adeline has departed the scene, but her great granddaughter, Renny's daughter Adeline (also played by Kate Reid) copes with the frustrations of life in the present day.

In sequences reliving the past, Renny is seen as a young man, a cavalry officer in the First World War, and afterwards, as the master of Jalna under Gran's watchful eye, yet living his life by his own rules. He loves, hates and lavishes devotion on his horses and his family, perhaps in that order.

Romantic

Meg, Renny's sister (played by Amelia Hall) is seen first as a romatic but stubborn young woman, in love with Maurice Vaughan (David Hughes), yet too proud to marry him — having broken the engagement as a result of Maurice's infidelity.

His brief fling with a country wench has left him with an illegitimate child, the girl Pheasant (Blair Brown). In the 1970s Meg is a sweet, slightly vague old woman who still has a bit of steel at her inner core.

Says Fletcher Markle, head of CBC-TV drama, "Miss de la Roche created characters of such vitality that it is impossible to think of them dying with their creator.

"For that reason it was decided to present two stories concurrently in each one-hour episode of the series. One is taken directly from the books.

"It shows the formation of the Whiteoak's characters and the influences at work on them. In addition to this faithful recreation of Mazo de la Roche's world, we show the Whiteoaks in the present day, struggling with contemporary problems."

Mazo de la Roche wrote her first whiteoak novel, titled Jalna, in 1927, winning the coveted Atlantic Award and subsequent world-wide fame. After that came the other 15, out of sequence, but filling in the fabric of the Whiteoak saga from The Building of Jalna, in 1854, to Centenary at Jalna, in 1954. The latter was the author's last book.

Brisk Sales

Since the publication of the award-winning Jalna, the books have been translated into 13 languages and sold over 12 million copies. They are still selling briskly in both hardcover and paperback editions.

Last fall CBC completed negotiations with the estate of Mazo de la Roche for the television rights. Casting was announced in February, 1971, with shooting scheduled to begin the same month. Labor difficulties at CBC caused the suspension of filming after a few days.

Following some casting adjustments and a revision of the pilot script to allow for the change of seasons, the pilot production (which will be telecast as Episode 2 in the series) got under way in mid-May.

With John Trent as the series' producer, full production on The Whiteoaks of Jalna began in July, using various locations in the Toronto area and a permanent set (the house interior) at Lakeshore Studios.

Prime Time Declined

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon says he won't deliver his state of the union address during prime television time this year because he doesn't want congressmen to think he's using them to do some politicking.

"This year, an election year, it will be difficult enough to work with congress," Nixon noted. His address to the senate and house will be delivered Jan. 20, at 9.30 a.m. PST.

Last year he delivered it at 6 p.m. PST, when more people could see him on their home screens.

Congressmen feel "that the state of the union should be a speech to them and not just to the country," Nixon said, so in his election year he moved the time to midday so "congress will not have the feeling it is being used to talk over their heads to the country."

Nixon noted that the speech would still be televised, and that as president he gets plenty of chances to appear on television in the evening.

WAYNE TOPS 40TH POLL AS TOP BOX OFFICE DRAW

Big John Wayne, the Hollywood star who won few if any fans in Victoria last September with his comment on the Amchitka blast, seems to be as popular as ever at the box office.

In an interview while his converted minesweeper The Wild Goose was tied up at the city's inner harbor Wayne said Amchitka was "none of the business" of Canada and Japan.

But at 64 the old boy proved again in 1971 he is the last movie star who can attract the public to a motion picture simply because he is in the cast.

He has just headed the 40th annual poll of motion picture theatre owners by the Motion Picture Herald.

It was the 22th appearance of Wayne on the 10 top money-making list of stars in films.

He surpassed Gary Cooper, who made the top 10 with tiresome repitition.

Others, in order, this year were Clint Eastwood, Paul Newman, Steve McQueen, George C. Scott, Dustin Hoffman, Walter Matthau, Ali McGraw, Sean Connery and Lee Marvin.

An interesting sidelight is Miss McGraw's name among the top 10 box office attractions. She is the only female on the list.

Back in 1960 there were four ladies in the magic circle: Doris Day, Elizabeth Taylor, Debbie Reynolds and Sandra Dee.

But the amazing story of the poll is Big Duke.

FIRST IN 1949

He first appeared in the poll in 1949. The other nine were Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Abbott and Costello, Gary Cooper, Cary Grant, Betty Grable, Esther Williams, Humphrey Bogard and Clark Gable.

Of those still living none, save Hope, makes moves anymore.

The big guy, surviving removal of a lung cancer, broadsides from the left at his outspoken patriotism and some horrible scripts, rolls right along.

His best picture may be the one released this year, "The Cowboys," in which he plays a hard-nosed trail boss who drives his cattle to market with a pack of 10 schoolboys as drovers.

IGNORED

During his long career Wayne has either been ignored by critics or suffered their ridicule in silence. No one, however, remembers the names of the critics while John Wayne has carved his monicker in granite.

He is the craggy faced, bellowing celluloid version of Horatio Alger up on the screen.

In person he is a man of strong opinions, great physical strength and with an overriding sense of fair play.

When news of his being the top box office draw reached his sons Mike and Pat, the Duke was off the coast of Baja California on his boat fishing and lazing. He doesn't get excited about such things.

LIKES SUPPORT

But even the laconic Duke is pleased that his countrymen turn out in greater numbers to see him than any other actor.

In what is now supposed to be a medium for the young audience, Wayne still pulls them in. Whatever he has going for him, John Wayne is unique in his screen longevity.

As for acting, Wayne sums it up this way: "I'm not an actor, I'm a reactor. It's as simple as that."

Victoria newspaper readers will likely go along with that.

'Second Biggest Facelift' No Revolution

By TOM SHALES

WASHINGTON (WP) — Although U.S. television is about to undergo what has been called "the biggest second-season facelift in the history of the networks," viewers yearning for a video revolution will not find much immediate encouragement. If you hated the first season, you're not likely to love the second.

Thirteen shows are being dropped (one "temporarily"), eight new ones introduced, and eleven more shuffled about in the networks' perennial one-upsmanship ballet.

Almost every new program is based on an established formula, and this being the case, the best prospect is probably the one based on the newest hence least-explained program type.

And that would be, primarily, "Sanford and Son" which premiered this week. It's NBC's comic carbon of "All in the Family," and the network is not hiding the fact.

"Sanford" comes from the same production team, is also adapted from a British hit ("Steptoe and Son") and is being promoted by NBC with come-ons like "America, you're in for a yock; Archie, you're in for a shock!"

In the series, the most likely hit of the new crop, Redd Foxx plays a black junk dealer and Demon Wilson his rebellious son.

EMERGENCY

The other new programs have less recent antecedents. NBC's "Emergency" is Jack Webb's hospitalized version of his own "Adam-12," substituting an ambulance crew for a pair of itinerant cops.

ABC's "The Sixth Sense" about a parapsychologist's jousts with psychic phenomena, is reminiscent of "The Eleventh Hour," "The Twilight Zone," and NBC's current "Night Gallery." It debuts Jan. 15 with an episode called "The Heart that Wouldn't Stay Buried."

ABC's "Comedy Hour" represents a genre that dates back to pre-historic television, as well as to the old Kraft-sponsored specials on NBC. The first program in this new series, Jan. 12, was "The Friars Roast Joe Namath," emceed by Buddy Hackett.

The series will alternate weekly with "The Kopy Kats," a variety showcase featuring impressionists like Rich Little and David Frye, based on Kraft special of last season.

ANOTHER TRY

Don Rickles will make another try at a comedy series with "The Don Rickles Show" on CBS. It's another try by producer Sheldon Leonard to wrap a vehicle around an established star. Leonard's last attempt at that was the calamitous "Shirley's World," with Shirley MacLaine, one of ABC's recent excisions.

Other shows to be seen no more are, on NBC, "The D.A.," "Sarge," "The Good Life," "The Partners," and "The Funny Side" on ABC, "The Man and the City," "Getting Together," and "Nanny and the Professor," and on CBS "Funny Face," "Bearcats" and "The Chicago Teddy Bears."

ABC claims that "The Smith Family," which has succumbed to ratings anemia, will be back later this season.

The other ostensibly new programs are "The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour," pretested last summer and already on the air, and "Me and the Chimp," a comedy about a dentist who lives with an ape — surely the least promising invention in a year of minimal inspirations. Monkey shows have been tried before, and one, "The Hathaways," was a classic flop.

FOOTBALL REPLACED

To replace its Monday-night football games, ABC has scheduled an additional movie night and a "Show of the Week." The movie period will occasionally be used for the second half of blockbusters begun on the network's Sunday Night Movie — among them, "Cleopatra," "Ice Station Zebra," "Lord Jim," "The Blue Max," and "Where Eagles Dare."

ABC also is promising the recent hit, "Downhill Racer," with Robert Redford, on a future Monday.

Under its "Show of the Week" umbrella, ABC will air a variety of specials, some entertainment and some documentary.

Like ABC, NBC will do less pre-empting for specials this second season and will instead log them two-at-a-time at a regular weekly time — Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The 7:30 specials begin Jan. 25, after "Sarge" dies. The 8:30 specials have started already.

Occasionally, the two hours will be used for one long documentary, but usually there'll be two.

NEW OFFERINGS

The Public Broadcasting Service doesn't play the second-season game as rabidly as the commercial networks, but it has some new offerings. The new National Public Affairs Centre for Television (NPACT) goes on the air Wednesday, Feb. 2 with a half-hour series called "A Public Affair-Election '72" conducted by Sander Vanocur. This is the first regular offering of the PBS public affairs arm.

"Masterpiece Theatre" has already begun its six-episode repeat of "The Six Wives of Henry VIII," seen in slightly-trimmed form last year on CBS, to be followed by a sequel, "Elizabeth R," starring Glenda Jackson as Queen Elizabeth, who was, indeed, a sequel of sorts to Henry VIII.

Another historical series, "Biography," procued by National Educational Television, debuts Thursday, Jan. 20 with the story of black playwright Lorraine Hansberry ("A Raisin in the Sun"), starring Ruby Dee. Other notables to be dramatically biographed include George Washington, Galileo and Harriet Beecher Stowe.

HEARING AID FACTS No. 7

Problem:
Hearing Aid whistles

Cause:

Sound from the speakers is entering the microphone. This may be due to the following reasons:

1. Earmold may not be seated in the ear properly.
2. There may be a break in the tubing. (Eyeglass and behind the ear type hearing aids.)
3. The greater the hearing loss — the tighter the earmold must fit so sound does not escape from the ear.
4. Internal feedback inside the hearing aid.

Late-Night Films Next Month

A new series of late-night feature film programs will be launched on the CBS television network starting in mid-February.

The network said that negotiations had been completed with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the presentation of a large number of feature films, the titles to be announced. At the same time the network said that negotiations were currently being conducted with other major film companies for additional motion pictures.

The new series of feature films will be scheduled on Monday through Friday starting at 11:30 p.m. The running time of each film when broadcast on television will be about the same as it was when shown in theatrical release — usually about two hours. On occasion, however, the films could run until 2 a.m.

"The Merv Griffin Show," which currently is scheduled 11:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. will go off the air in mid-February, at the conclusion of the current contract for the show.

Cash Tops Laughter In Chaplin's Books

LONDON (Reuter) — Charlie Chaplin, one of the screen's greatest comedians, told reporters Monday he cares more about money than laughter these days.

In fact, the 82-year-old comedian said he never cared about making people laugh. "I am not interested in laughter. I just made a living from it. I'm just thankful people appreciated what I did."

Chaplin even rejected the idea that his films were designed as social commentaries for the times. He said "I have never intellectualized the little man. I thought of my work in terms of what would give me enthusiasm, make my boss laugh and give me money."

He added "money means more to me than you think. It's a long story and it goes back to my youth. I didn't starve but I didn't have a regular bed.

Next Season Could Be a Big One for Women

By DAN LEWIS

* * *

NEW YORK— When next season rolls around for television (1972-73), it could be a big year for women. You might run across Joan Crawford and Susan Hayward and even Jennifer Jones all starring in their own series.

How about Joan Crawford as a doctor in a medical series? A woman-type Marcus Welby? And Susan Hayward as a lawyer, a la Owen Marshall?

The William Morris Agency, world's largest talent agency, is in strong negotiations with networks for two such series, which would actually star Miss Crawford as a medico, and Miss Hayward as a lawyer. The agency also has been told by another of its clients, Jennifer Jones, that she too would like to star in a TV series.

In an age when there is keen man versus woman competition, it will be interesting to see how the female stars do in the wake of a disastrous invasion this year by big-name male movie stars (Anthony Quinn, Rod Taylor, Henry Fonda, George Kennedy all cancelled, and Jimmy Stewart and James Garner barely holding on).

ANOTHER POINT

There's another point of speculation, too. Until now, women who have made the grade in television have done so either in variety (Carol Burnett) or mostly in situation comedy.

Situation comedies have been the most successful outlet for women talents, top examples being Lucille Ball, Mary Tyler Moore, Doris Day, Elizabeth Montgomery, Marlo Thomas, and even Sandy Duncan, despite going off early due to an eye illness.

HAYWARD

JONES

CRAWFORD

Otherwise, there have been only a few isolated instances of successful efforts in dramatic or adventure shows by actresses in television. Barbara Stanwyck, of course, toplined "The Big Valley," a Western drama which had a good run, for four seasons and then into good syndication.

HE HELPED

And there was Diana Rigg, although second-billed to Patrick MacNee, had as much to do with the success of the British adventure series, The Avengers.

Far less fortunate was Anne Francis a few years back as a karate-chopping private eye, Honey West, a series which barely lasted one season on ABC-TV. And what could have been more disastrous than Lana Turner's attempt at television as star of the Harold Robbins' series, The Adventurers, a spinoff of the big selling novel. Miss Turner lasted just half a season and along the way punched her producer.

Actually, actresses have been starred on TV dramas — in the daytime series, less endearingly known as soap operas, but they have been the oppressed and pitied.

Now, with Joan Crawford wearing a stethoscope, and Susan Hayward to defend her if she ever gets accused of malpractice, it could very well cue in on the next TV trend.

MOVING MOUNTAIN

Talk about taking the mountain to Mohammed, when CBS-TV invited television editors and columnists to Los Angeles for a briefing on the new midseason shows, it was discovered that Don Rickles, star of one of the new shows, was going to be tied to a previous commitment for a nightclub engagement at the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas — a 35-minute flight from L.A.

So CBS packed the visiting writers into buses, took them to the airport and flew the group to Las Vegas for an hour's lunch and mass interview with Rickles. Then everybody returned to Los Angeles by mid-afternoon.

The network took 30 writers from L.A. to Las Vegas to talk to Rickles. When I suggested to one network spokesman that it seemed more feasible to me for Rickles to fly to Los Angeles and talk to the group, and then return himself, rather than cart 30 people to Las Vegas to his tableside, the network man shrugged and replied: "There were too many complications in trying to do it that way."

In Hollywood's wondrous way, it became less complicated to bring 30 people to the star than bring the one star to the 30 people.

Today Completes 20 Years Today

By JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Every weekday morning as television viewers have begun to stir themselves, Frank McGee climbs into a limousine outside his Scarsdale, N.Y., home and heads for work.

On the 40-minute ride into Manhattan he reads the newspapers and chats with his fellow pre-dawn commuter, Joe Garagiola.

At about the time the sun strikes the East Coast, McGee and Garagiola, along with Barbara Walters and Frank Blair, will greet early risers with a familiar salutation:

"Good morning, this is Today."

Today, the longest-running daily television show, completes its 20th year on the air today Blair, the only member of the cast to survive the entire 20 years, said, Today "started out as an experiment and turned into an institution."

The Today show is indeed as much a part of the morning for more than five million viewers as coffee and orange juice. Its potpourri of news, weather, information, and light entertainment reassure them that the world is still there.

Its audience in Washington is as impressive as a high-level political caucus. Large numbers of senators, congressmen and cabinet officials tune in regularly. Lyndon B. Johnson was a constant viewer during his days in the White House, although President Nixon is said to watch less often. Rare is the cabinet officer, senator or politician who would not trade a few hours of sleep to get his point across to this audience.

McGee, who succeeded Hugh Downs last October as the program's fourth host, said: "When I was in Washington in 1957 I did news inserts for Today. Then I'd go out on my assignments and I'd find a staggering number of people had seen the show and had comments."

When Today first began on Jan. 14, 1952, as the brainchild of NBC President Sylvester Weaver, Dave Garroway was host and the emphasis was on gimmicks and gags. Television was in its infancy and a view of the going-to-work traffic in New York — or the antics of chimpanzee J. Fred Muggs — was enough to wow them. The show became more news-oriented when John Chancellor became host in 1961.

"We've probably reversed the proportions between serious and light pieces," said Stuart Schulberg, the executive producer since 1968.

Schulberg said the main change he has made is not to book guests too far in advance.

"I felt when I took over it couldn't properly be called Today. It was Yesterday or Last Week. I've tried to keep it topical by changing around overnight."

He did just that the night the UN voted to admit mainland China and oust the Nationalists. A skeleton crew came in within an hour of the vote and worked through the night lining up guests.

"We sometimes call people at four in the morning and say, come on in," said Schulberg, a round-faced man with a beard like a Nantucket whaler. "Some people hang up on us, but most come in."

SAUDI ARABIA TV LOOKS FAMILIAR

By RICHARD K. SHULL

NEW YORK — "We open our broadcast day with our flag on the screen and some sayings from the Koran. Then there are the children's cartoons followed by 'I Love Lucy.'

"Then we do the evening news and follow it with a documentary or travel show. After that, we have entertainment programs like 'Bonanza,' 'FBI' or 'Perry Mason.'

"We end the night with an old feature film, usually American."

That's the way television is these days in Riat, Saudi Arabia, according to producer-director Saad Faraih.

And as he said it, the realization came through that television has become a global monolith with very little difference in program Ark., ules between Stuttgart, Ark., and Saudi Arabia, or any other two places on earth you chose to pick.

But even though Faraih already has what appears to be a typical U.S. station's daily format, he's in this country for 90 days for a first-hand look at how TV is done over here.

Specifically, Faraih is the producer-director of drama for Saudi Arabia's seven state-owned stations. They aren't yet interconnected as a network but he expects that within three years.

His programs, which usually have a background of Islamic culture or Mideastern history, also are circulated and broadcast over stations in Tunisia, Jordan and Kuwait.

The government-controlled stations for which he works aren't the only TV source in Saudi Arabia. In two of the most populous areas there are the Armaco stations, which broadcast purely entertainment programs for employees of the Arabian-American Oil Co.

As Faraih explained it, Armaco does not offer news or public affairs shows, only wall-to-wall entertainment with American-made TV series. The shows, he said are broadcast on TV with dubbed-in voices in Arabic, although a companion FM radio frequency broadcasts the original English dialogue for benefit of the American oil company employees in his country.

Versatility 'Routine'

By MIMI MEAD

NEW YORK — When pressed with the tired old journalists' quesiton about his hobbies, Jack Lemmon cheerfully replied, "Golf, music — and the routine." By routine he means the routine of being one the country's most versatile performers: movie actor, comedian, director, mime, singer and dancer — although he is not so well known for the two latter talents.

The Lemmons had been to the theatre the night before and the conversation turned to the stage. Lemmon's acting career started on the stages of Rivers Country Day School and Phillips Andover Academy in Massachusetts and Harvard University, where he was a member of Hasty Pudding and the Dramatic Club.

"I love the stage," said Lemmon. "I did a revival last year of 'Idiot's Delight' in Los Angeles with Rosemary Harris. I'd love to do a Broadway play. The last time I did a play in New York was 1960. But it's the logistics. As long as my film career's going, I can't take on a Broadway run."

There is no question that Lemmon's film career is going. The winner of an Oscar for "Mr. Roberts," he has had three Academy Award nominations ("Some Like It Hot," "The Apartment" and "Days of Wine and Roses"). His films include "Irma La Douce" (during the filming of which he met Felicia in Paris in 1962), "The Great Race," "The Fortune Cookie," "Luv," "The Odd Couple," and, most recently directing but not appearing in "Kotch" starring Walter Matthau, in which Felicia also appeared.

Lemmon seems to be one of the few who is never out of work. He thus might be considered a pundit on the Hollywood scene.

Many Viewers

The Elizabeth R television series, currently being seen on the CBC network, was seen by 28½-million viewers when first telecast by the BBC in February, 1971.

Webb Bosses Show Starring Ex-Wife

HOLLYWOOD — You practically need a program to unscramble the family relationships on the Universal soundstage where Saturday's debuting Emergency series is filming.

The new NBC offering, based on the exploits of the Los Angeles Fire Department Paramedic unit, co-stars Bob Fuller, Bobby Troup and Julie London.

Julie is Mrs. Troup in real life, but in the series she'll be playing Bob Fuller's love interest.

Miss London was, at one time, Mrs. Jack Webb. And Webb is the producer boss of the show in which she and her current husband will co-star.

Julie and Bobby are parents of a nine-year-old daughter and twin sons who are eight years old.

Julie and Jack have daughters Stacy, who is 21, and 18-year-old Liza.

And from a previous marriage of his own, Troup is the father of now-grown Cindy and Ronne. Cindy is employed as a script girl on Jack Webb's Adam-12 series, and Ronne has guested on that series and is a regular on My Three Sons.

Asked about his unique relationship with the former husband of his present wife, Troup smiled and said, as if he had never before analyzed it, "It is unique, isn't it? We're lucky, I guess. It's just worked out like that in the last five years or so."

PARTNERS

That was about the time the fellows became partners in the local China Trader restaurant, where Troup served for much of the four-year period that business involvement lasted as piano-player-singer.

Proof that the partnership ended on a pleasant note is certainly evident by Webb's casting of Bobby and Julie in Emergency key roles.

The idea for the show actually emanated from NBC, who gave Webb a go-ahead in mid-November for a two-hour World Premiere episode for Jan. 15 viewing, plus 10 hour-long segments, with the possibility of four more.

With an almost impossible short deadline, things have been pretty much in a state of emergency around the Emergency set since.

"Only Jack could pull it off," Bobby muttered endorsement of Webb's producing talents the day I visited the lot. "They're still building sets on one side of the studio, while we're shooting scenes on the other side."

As the doctors who care for the emergency patients rushed to them by L.A.F.D. ambulances, most of Fuller's and Troup's Emergency acting will be done on a studio hospital set.

Los Angeles location shots will be utilized for the action involving Randy Mantooth and Kevin Tighe, who portray the paramedic heroes whose real life counterparts are making history on the streets of Los Angeles, responsible for saving lives after only three-month medical crash courses.

For Troup it's been a devious course that has brought him to his present Emergency doctor berth: from composer to musician and singer, and quite frequently in demand TV and movie actor.

He started out at the University of Pennsylvania as a business major, expecting to go to work in one of the two music stores his father owned in Harrisburg and Lancaster, Pa.

But then he became involved with Mask and Wig club activities on campus and composed Daddy for a musical revue staged by that group.

The song, which spoke to Daddy about wanting "diamond rings and everything," became a big hit.

Bobby wrote Baby, Baby All the Time, his second well-received tune, during the Second World War while in the Marine Corps. And by the time he received his military discharge as a marine captain in 1946, he knew he wanted to pursue a full-time composing career.

"I returned home to Lancaster, and decided to head for Los Angeles."

NOTHING HAPPENED

He drove the distance from his Pennsylvania home to Hollywood. And on that drive the inspiration was born for his next hit, Route 66.

After that burst of fame, Bobby recalled, "Nothing happened. And so I started playing clubs, singing, playing the piano, and later adding a base and guitar to form a trio."

EMERGENCY starts Saturday and its exploits involve Robert Fuller (left), Julie London and Bobby Troup.

PETER RABBIT FILM HEADS FOR CHINA

LONDON (AP) — The mainland Chinese are to get a look at two films from the West — one showing Peter Rabbit and Squirrel Nutkin, the other with Julie Christie and a teen-age voyeur.

The Chinese government has agreed to buy the children's movie The Tales of Beatrix Potter and The Go-Between, the award-winning love drama starring Miss Christie, a spokesman for the British film and record company EMI said.

"We submitted a list of 10 of our films and they selected these two for limited screenings for film clubs and student film-makers in China," the EMI spokesman said.

ALL TIMES ARE LOCAL

JAIL SCENE REALISTIC

VERSAILLES, France (Reuter) — Police reinforcements were called to the local jail when a fake courtroom uproar being shot for a film led to a real prison riot.

The uproar had been staged in the Versailles Palace of Justice by director Claude Lelouch for a film he is making.

Prisoners in the jail thought there was a demonstration outside and, caught up in the spirit of things, began to break furniture and chant slogans.

IT'S PROF. ARNAZ

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Now it's Prof. Desi Arnaz, that one-time Cuban singer who became a wealthy actor and producer.

The appointment of Arnaz to a visiting lectureship that will pay him $10,000 during the spring semester was announced Tuesday at San Diego State College. The four-month term begins Feb. 7.

Arnaz will hold "a rank comparable to full professor," a spokesman said, teaching studio production and acting to upper-classmen and graduate students.

Arnaz became a vocalist with a band at age 17 and later organized his own band. After several movies in the 1940s, he married Lucille Ball and, as president of their Desilu Studios, built a major television enterprise.

Arnaz and Miss Ball were divorced in 1960, and she won half of their television empire, then valued at $20 million. Two years later he sold his interest in the firm to Miss Ball and subsequently became an independent TV producer.

In 1963, he married Edith Hirsch.

My Three Sons In Deep Trouble

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Aside from the various forms of Lucille Ball's comedy show, the longest running prime-time situation comedy series on television is — My Three Sons.

The reason more likely than not is the show's star, Fred MacMurray.

It's been a dozen years since MacMurray and the original cast took to the air. There have been major changes in the cast, a death (William Frawley) additions, births, romance and, of course, comedy.

UNEXPECTED

"I certainly never expected the show to endure this long," said MacMurray. "In fact I decided against doing it at all in the beginning.

"When producer Don Fedderson offered me the show I told him that I had just enough money saved so I wouldn't have to do a television series. But he talked me into it about a week later when he said I could complete all my scenes in three months and be free the rest of the year to make movies or do whatever I wanted."

For the first time in its long run, however, My Three Sons is in trouble. The finely honed intellects in CBS programming put the family show in the 10 p.m. time slot on Monday nights this season.

Ratings dropped. Letters of complaint poured in.

"What family," MacMurray asks, "will keep the youngsters up that late on a school night?

"This year, beginning Jan. 6, they switched us to 8:30 on Thursdays which is a little better — except that we're opposite one of the most popular shows on the air, Flip Wilson."

SHOULD QUIT

MacMurray is beset by a feeling that the show should quit while it is ahead, before it slides down the ratings to embarrassingly low status.

"You know that's the action you should take," he said, "but you're never quite sure how the ratings will go from season to season. Maybe we'll just stay on the air until we're kicked off."

"I'm sure that Steve Douglas, the character I play, has been helpful to some parents who apply his reasoning and ideas to help raise their children."

...s emergence on public ...vision this season with his ...show seemed a logical ...p to Moyers, but left others ...ering.

...oyers arrived on the na... scene eight years ago. ...n President Lyndon John... called him up from his native Texas to be presidential press secretary and legislative trouble shooter.

Moyers then moved from Washington to New York where he was publisher of Long Island Newsday, a successful newspaper. Then he wrote his book on the state of America as seen through the eyes of the people across the land.

He also became conscious of the impact and scope of television and the grasp it has on the people.

"I'm an old print man and I thought we had a good newspaper with Newsday. We built it to 500,000 circulation, but it was all on Long Island. Now, I'm reaching for a national audience," he said.

He said he got one of his strongest indications of television's pervasiveness last summer when he was waiting out a cloudburst in a truck stop restaurant in Colorado.

"There was only the waitress and me in the place," he said, "so I tried to strike up a conversation.

"'Rain's really coming down,' I said.

"'Yup,' she replied.

TV NOT ON

"'Reminds me of the great flood,' I said.

"'Huh?' she replied.

"'The great flood . . . Noah . . . the Ark,' I told her.

"She replied, "I don't know about that. I haven't had the TV on in four days'."

Moyers made an ambitious start with his series last October by going to Vietnam and interviewing little people on what they thought of Thieu as president. His conclusion was the peasants felt Thieu offered the least onerous of the available alternatives.

In addition to the difficulties of gathering the story in the field in Vietnam, there was the additional problems of getting it home by satellite from Hong Kong. Technically, the show had its problems, but its message was clear.

More topical of Moyers' work was a recent show with rural natives of Virginia and North Carolina who are being driven from their homes to make way for a 40,000-acre reservoir on the New River.

Moyers said one of the functions of the reservoir will be to flush the Kanawha Rivers in West Virginia which is choked with pollution. Why, Moyers wondered, couldn't West Virginia clean up its industrial pollution rather than drive 5,000 people from their land?

He talked with the people who would be dispossessed, including a lady whose family had held the same land since it was granted by the English king in 1768.

"I also interviewed a power company official who gave me a lot of beaucratic jigamapoke," Moyers said, "about changing the character of the river." Moyers's conclusions were with the people.

He said the thrust of his weekly show is to "take a large theme and bring it down to the average people. Just because you never heard of someone doesn't mean he's not interesting," he said.

In his weekly quest for the words of the people, Moyers said the big hazard with his TV series is professionalism.

"We guard against getting too slick, too greased, in what we do. I don't want to sound like all the others.

"When John Steinbeck toured the country in 1961 gathering material for his 'Travels with Charley' he pointed out that everywhere he went he heard the same announcer giving the news," Moyers said.

So in addition to acting different by moving around and listening closely, Moyers also wants his show to sound different, like maybe it was being done by a former newspaper publisher who is interested in people.

Barbara toured with shows on the west coast as a singer and dancer. Later when her voice changed she switched to non-singing roles and its unusual timbre started a new career for the petite performer.

"I was an extra in pictures when I was 16 and I was under contract at the old Fox studio," she reminisced. "I appeared in a series of comedy shorts called East Side, West Side. After a year and a half with the studio stock company they dropped my contract, and that of another promising comedienne, Carole Lombard.

"A short time later I joined a theatre stock company and played in Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, then travelled to Australia and New Zealand where I appeared for a year," she said.

Barbara, free-lanced with Hollywood radio stations until joining the cast of "First Nighter." When the program moved to Chicago she was put under exclusive contract to the sponsor. She also starred in the equally popular radio program, Dr. Paul, for several seasons.

Now, when not giving voice to cartoon characters, she has been acting in TV series like Dragnet, Adam 12, Ironside and Marcus Welby, MD. Some of the movies for TV that she has done are Fear No Evil, Trial Run and Lost Flight, and theatre audinces saw her recently in The Shakiest Gun in the West with Don Knotts, and in Alfred Hitchcock's Topaz.

Between acting and "speaking" engagements, Barbara devotes her time to her hobbies of interior decorating and sewing, now that her children, Christopher Michael, 24, and Barbara Luddy Jr., 21, are married.

Lady and the Tramp features the talents of songstress-composer Peggy Lee and is a Buena Vista release.

Ballerina Out of Action

LONDON (CP) — Canadian ballerina Lynn Seymour is ill with suspected glandular fever, says a spokesman for the Royal Ballet at Covent Garden. She will be out of action for some weeks.

The 32-year-old ballet star, who was born in Wainwright, Alta., and raised in Vancouver, was to have danced the lead in Romeo and Juliet Jan. 12 and in two other Covent Garden ballets Jan. 14 and 15.

Festival Moves

NEW YORK (AP) — The Newport Jazz Festival, after 18 years in Rhode Island, is moving to New York this summer with 27 events scheduled from July 1-9, producer George Wein said.

Wein said the festival which annually attracts thousands of jazz fans from throughout the world, would include two outdoor concerts at Yankee Stadium and six days of concerts each at Carnegie Hall and Philharmonic Hall.

Last year's festival at Newport, R.I., was cut short two days when thousands of young people crashed through ticket gates and took over the stage July 3. About 300 persons were treated for minor injuries.

The festival also had experienced declining attendance in recent years with audiences in 1969 and 1970 ranging around 40,000 compared with earlier draws of 60,000.

Rebuttal Time Urged

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A United States government agency has recommended that radio and television stations be required to provide free time for groups wishing to contradict commercials.

The controversial proposal by the Federal Trade Commission, if implemented, could cost the stations millions of dolars in lost revenues through having to give free air time.

The FTC made the recommendation to the Federal Communications Commission, which regulates the broadcast industry.

When Mort Got Mugged Cycle of Shows Spawned

By RICHARD K. SHULL

HOLLYWOOD — Mort Werner got mugged in New York one night and a whole cycle of TV shows which threaten to engulf the industry was spawned.

Little did the mugger realize what he was doing when he bopped Werner, the programming vice-president for NBC network.

As Werner told it to me, sitting in his office in Rockefeller Centre, "When I got out of the hospital I had to go to California on business. The first guy I bumped into out there was Jack Webb.

"There he was, Sergeant Friday, my old hero and America's image of law'n'order. I had to tell him about my mugging."

One thing and another and law 'n' order returned to TV in the form of a revival of Webb's "Dragnet." In turn, it begat "Adam 12" and "The D.A."

When others saw how well the audience was reacting to Werner's revenge, law'n' order shows blossomed all over the dial, including more shows by Webb, "O'Hara, U.S. Treasury" on CBS and "Emergency," due to start in January on NBC.

It's awesome to think what would have happened to the American dairy business if Werner had been assaulted by a flying cow instead of a mugger.

Composer Dies at 57

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John M. Elliott, 57, composer of such songs as It's So Nice to Have a Man Around the House, died this week in hospital of a heart attack.

Elliott was the managing director of Irish International Television Ltd. in Dublin. He was engaged in a television series and film project in Ireland.

Elliott wrote the score of a number of motion pictures and composed more than 600 songs for films. His other songs included Sam's Song, Elmer's Tune, and I Don't Want to be Kissed.

Big-Big Star Shows Fall Way-Way Short

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

WASHINGTON (WP) — All summer long, the trumpets of publicity blared and the drums of audience promotion rolled with the certainty that the 1971-72 television season would be dominated by movie stars, those performers with proved box-office appeal, not to mention golden Academy Award statuettes.

Executives at all three networks were certain that viewers would flock, gratefully, to shows with such brand-name peerformers as Anthony Quinn, Shirley Maclaine, James Stewart, George Kennedy and James Garner. Enthusiasm was so great that the normal, precautionary step of making a pilot (sample) of a series was forgotten.

FAR SHORT

What resulted were a collection of poorly conceived and badly executed programs and by year's end, nearly everyone knew that the audience response wasn't even close to the promise of the summer.

The big-big-star shows had varied from disaster to mediocrity. None could be called outstanding or exceptional or even good.

Shirley's World did have Shirley Maclaine, but it also had the look of a series that had been hastily slapped together. It was a silly little travelogue that had been cranked out without care or the painstaking attention a program needs.

Anthony Quinn is a splendid actor, but Man and the City didn't provide much chance for him to show his skills. George Kennedy, a splendid character actor, was cast as Sarge, a priest who had once been a police officer.

CANCELLED

All three series were cancelled at mid-season.

James Stewart, whose long career had elevated him to a folk-hero, came in a silly little situation comedy. It was supposed to provide laughter based on the generation gap. It hasn't beeen cancelled, but its ratings have been totally unimpressive.

That leaves James Garner of Nichols and he is supposed to be different. He had already enjoyed a wonderfully successful TV series, the marvellous Maverick series of the late 1950s. He had waged a court battle to get out of Warner Bros. contract and had moved upward in movies as the leading man for such actresses as Kim Novak, Doris Day (twice), Julie Andrews, Melina Mercouri and Jean Simmons.

In just 15 years Garner had moved from the Warner Bros. stock company of performers who were paid $500 a week to his own organization (Cherokee Productions) and part ownership of the films that he made.

WELCOME

When James Garner indicated that he was willing to return to television, NBC-TV was absolutely delighted. He got a piece of the ownership and, according to Al Stump in TV Guide, was to be paid $40,000 for each of the 24 episodes that he made.

Frank R. Pierson came up with the idea for Garner's show. It was to be Nichols, the sage of a man who reluctantly served as a sheriff in the southwestern section of the United States. Instead of a horse, he rode a motorcycle and he didn't carry a gun. In time of need, he might borrow one.

"Nichols" was only a distant cousin to Bret Maverick, but he did bear a strong resemblance to Garner's role in a movie called Support Your Local Sheriff.

Public interest in Garner was strong and the ratings for the premiere of Nichols were a joy to the people at NBC. That first week (Sept. 16), Nichols ranked 19th among the 68 programs in prime time hours.

ENGLISH

For most viewers, however, one look at Nichols was enough. The program started to slide. It ranked 33rd the second ratings period, 39th the third and 43rd the fourth time.

(Studying audience ratings might turn a man into a cynic. Nichols won good ratings only once after the premiere. It was 15th in popularity the third week of October, but for a special reason. That was the Thursday night that CBS-TV in a burst of cultural responsibility, scheduled three splendid documentary programs. Most of the audience avoided culture and turned in to Nichols.)

Sometimes, a show in trouble can be saved by moving it to another night. Nichols was shifted to Tuesday. It didn't help. By the end of November (and no national ratings are reported during December), the very expensive Nichols program ranked 55th. It was being seen in 11.8 per cent of the nation's 60 million TV homes. Worse, of those persons watching TV when Nichols was being telecast only 18 per cent of them watched Nichols.

Those numbers indicate quite plainly that Nichols isn't likely to be around for a second season, but don't expect Garner to disappear.

When he was growing up in Oklahoma his name was James Scott Bumgarner but his schoolmates never called him any of those names. They called him Slick and he still has marvelous survival instincts.

All James Garner needs for TV success is a decent series in a good time slot.

THEY FELL WITH A BOOM

KENNEDY MACLAINE QUINN

Different Role Filled

MAGOG, Que. (CP) — Local programming on cable television is not supposed to match the professionalism of network television, says Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

"It's like asking city council to be competitive with the Parliament of Canada," he said at in impromptu news conference this week.

He and commissioners Pat Pearce, Armand Cormer and Real Therrien were being questioned by journalists at the studios of Transvision Magog Inc., a small cable system here, about 90 miles southeast of Montreal.

Local programming fills a different role than conventional television shows, Juneau said.

CITES IMPORTANCE

These programs could be just as important to viewers as the slick network television productions. Taxpayers were always interested in what city councils were doing.

Juneau said he is happy to see a small operation like Transvision Magog Inc. providing studios for productions by young students.

There was scope for young people to try new ideas in local programming.

"If it tries to be too professional, it will lose its spontaneity," he said. The commission opposes advertising on cable because it fears operators would try to cater to a mass audience.

He said the CRTC has no statistics on how many people watch local shows on cable.

Stars Show Contempt Towards TV

By DAN LEWIS

NEW YORK — There remains a certain contemptuous attitude toward television on the part of the "legitimate" actor.

The stage actor doesn't find television as fulfilling as a live performance. The movie star resents the way television decimated his business.

So there is a condescending acceptance, but that's only for one very good reason. The almighty buck is the great pacifier.

The theatre has been devastated by a combination of economic and sociological factors. The movie industry has been plunged into one of its worst depressions in history, not much so much from economic factors but its own inability to meet competition — namely television.

So, if you can't lick 'em, join 'em. That's why there was a mass invasion of TV by big-name movie people, this past season. It's where the action, as well as the money is.

Performers become big stars from television, but usually the stardom is not transmitted to public appearances, except in a few rare instances, such as young David Cassidy. He has become the idol of teenagers off "The Partridge Family," for reasons other than his acting skills. The series catches on, and the star has captivating, endearing or charismatic charms.

Mostly, it's the vehicle and not the individual. It probably explains why so many TV stars have fallen on their faces in other media and personal appearances.

This was the focal point of a recent discussion I had with Sandy Dennis. She's what is considered a New York actress in the profession, up from the stage into a movie that came out of a Broadway original ("Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf") and an artistically successful brief move career (including an Academy Award nomination) before the industry collapsed.

Sandy has been spending most of her time in theatre lately (currently in Chicago, starring in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little") but has made two movies this year — both for television.

She'll next be seen on the small tube Friday night, Jan. 21, in a CBS New Friday Night Movie, titled "Something Evil." She plays a suburban mother with two children, a boy 10 and a girl 12, in a bizarre plot about a devil in their newly-inhabited house who tries to possess one member of the family in an effort to drive them all out. Aside from the devil, it's a perfectly normal household. The shooting schedule was just two weeks.

NOT ACTOR'S MEDIUM

Now Sandy is not putting down television, nor its product. Her point, however, is that television is not really an actor's medium.

"The burden doesn't fall on the actor," she declared. "In television, it falls on everyone else, the director, the producer, the editors, even the grips.

"There is so much physical emphasis," she continued. "What the viewer sees is action, not a performer."

Baez Makes Fighting Words About Lib

SAN FRANCISCO (PSS) — Joan Baez is the kind of female who makes women liberationists cringe. As a singer and an outspoken pacifist, Miss Baez does not have many good things to say about the feminist movement.

"One of these days some of those feminists will bump me off in an alley," she says, "because personally, I can't take them seriously. In the past, I've made wisecracks about women's lib, and I'll continue to as long as the people in women's lib continue to act like morons.

"I believe that women are oppressed, but I can't go along with their emphasis on power," she continues. "In the process of obtaining power, you inevitably oppress some other group.

"But still, the liberation of women is essential. Personally, socially and sexually — women are totally misunderstood."

TAX PROTESTOR

Joan Baez, at times, has all but ignored her singing career to become involved in social and political causes. She first made her opinions known almost nine years ago when she refused to perform on ABC-TV's "Hootenanny" when fellow folk singer Pete Seeger was banned from the program. Several months later, in a letter addressed to the "Eternal Revenue Service," she refused to pay the 60 per cent of her federal income taxes that she said went to defends spending.

Since then, she has sung at dozens of anti-war and civil rights rallies, organized national "draft card turn-in" days, served two brief jail terms for civil disobedience — while her records have continued to sell in the millions.

Miss Baiz's newest album, "Blessed Are," is an impressive display of both her singing and songwriting abilities. Although she has penned songs before, never has she written so many for a single album. In this two-record set, nine of the 20 songs are her own. So while she was once a singing spokesman for other song-poets like Bob Dylan, she has now emerged as a songwriter in her own right.

The 31-year-old Miss Baez has come a long way since she first appeared on the music scene more than a dozen years ago. She made her public singing debut at folk music clubs in the Boston area, which eventually led to her critically-acclaimed appearance at the Newport Folk Festival.

BAEZ . . . makes women cringe

FOURTEEN ALBUM

Now, 14 albums later, she has a following so loyal that at her sold-out live concerts she is showered with gifts — from flowers to love beads by a fanatic following. Standing ovations are as much a part of her concerts as the music itself.

Her 1968 marriage to anti-war activist David Harris seemed to strengthen and solidify her own political beliefs. Harris, the founder of the Resistance movement, spent 20 months in federal prison for draft evasion.

"When you look around for things that are exciting," says Miss Baez, "there has actually been a mental change in this country. In the olden days, young men showed up on induction day, and went in unless they had a bum leg or a bad ear. But now, it's really a different mentality.

"Five years ago, most people didn't think they had enough courage to go to jail. That has changed a lot — not enough — but it's changed a lot.

"Courage isn't something you're born with. It's a question of vision. When it becomes clear what you have to do, it becomes less of a big deal to do it."

Although international political tensions seem to have left Joan Baez's pacifistic beliefs in the shadows, the slim, brown-eyed singer still remains optimistic.

"A non-violent soldier like myself doesn't promise anybody anything. But I do suggest that we make more sense than the alternatives that I see going on. It's true that human nature is basically evil, but it's also basically good. It's a question of which side you want to organize. We've got to begin 'to build,' rather than accept the concept 'to destroy.'"

CANADIAN TELLS EMPIRE STORY

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Any television producer who sets out to tell the story of the British Empire to the British public with all its passionate opinions on the imperial past is a brave man— especially if he happens to be a Canadian.

Max Morgan-Witts, born in Detroit but raised from an early age in Calgary, is ready for the controversy he sees as "inevitable," taking into account the fact that one generation looks back on the Empire with nostalgia, while many younger Britons are ashamed of it.

"We record history without departing from the facts, but without doubt, a percentage of the audience will be offended," he says.

The £500,000 ($1.25 million) series, made by the BBC in conjunction with Time-Life Books, was his brainchild, conceived in 1969. Since then, a team of five producers—Morgan-Witts is editor-in-charge—has shot 75 miles of color film in 30 countries.

The first of the 13 weekly episodes of The British Empire hits screens here tonight. It portrays an impressionistic feeling of Britain at the zenith of empire, in the diamond jubilee year in 1897, when Queen Victoria ruled one-quarter of the globe and its people.

The fourth episode is devoted to Canada's place in the Empire story. Asked whether his researches here had thrown up anything surprising, Morgan-Witts said he did not realize at the beginning "quite how much the Canadian frontier and country was threatened by its neighbors to the south, and for how long— and how strong that threat was to the Empire."

The idea of doing a television history of the Empire "just came to me," Morgan-Witts, 40, said in an interview.

"I suppose it was because I've worked in so many former imperial countries, and I've always been interested in history."
